• Improved genetics are enabling us to produce highest quality lamb carcasses like these in less time, but can we produce enough of them to match supply?

Buoyant lamb market – Where to from here?

By Ian Turner of Superior Selections

THE AUSTRALIAN prime lamb market has never seen better times with unprecedented prices currently up around $7.60/kg and above.

Predictions are they could well go to $9 or $10/kg in the next year or so.

The only impediment at present seems to be the seasonal conditions being experienced by many producers, especially in NSW.

I have always believed the marketplace is the greatest administrator or legislator for future direction and outcomes.

Also, every prime lamb producer thoroughly deserves the rewards they are currently getting after pushing through many tough periods during the last few decades.

Those who have consistently produced high quality lambs close to major markets have done well, but there are others in more marginal country who have faced greater challenges and costs in their production programs and have not always been well rewarded for their efforts.

Gross margins in efficient sheep and prime lamb production are clearly ahead of grain production at present, which is where a lot who deserted sheep through harder times headed. A balance is always good policy.

So why are we experiencing such good and positive prices?

Simply, it is the result of market driven outcomes around supply and demand.

When we get a sudden rise in prices, we are generally euphoric, and when we get a sudden fall we get frustrated and sometimes angry, but both outcomes are the result of supply and demand being way out of kilter.

In such cases we tend to get a surge of irrational actions and reactions. When you get a 25 percent lift in prices over a four week period from an already buoyant market price, as we saw this year from mid-June, it rings a few alarm bells for me.

It is great if you were on the receiving end of that lift, but is it sustainable?

And do we want it to remain that high and even continue to surge towards the $9 and $10/kg?

A vast majority of producers will probably say, "Yes", but to quote a theory I was taught in physics at school, "For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction."

MLA and various other industry groups have done a magnificent job promoting lamb worldwide, to the point we are experiencing high export demand from many countries, including domestically.

This is the ideal situation because if one market falls over it only creates a very small ripple in the marketplace, unlike the tidal wave that hit the Australian beef industry in the late 1970s.

Then the USA, our dominant and virtually only customer at the time, instigated tariffs and quotas and killed off our export trade and industry overnight.

It took over two decades to recover and those who went through the aftermath of that will never forget.

The domestic market has seen lamb surge into popularity.

The development of new restaurant cuts from larger, leaner lambs, vastly improved genetics and successful MLA promotions, especially via 'Slammin' Sam Kekovich', have again put lamb at the top of consumer desires. The product has lived up to expectation to sustain that demand.

We are not dealing with a crash here at present, but could the current scenario lead to one? I don't want to be a 'Hanrahan', but to me there are some worrying signs.

Just as a river is often smooth before a waterfall, there are things that should attract our attention and future planning.

What could possibly go wrong?

With such a sudden surge in prices, processors will be under huge pressure.

In particular, export contracts are settled forward, and just like grain futures, the product needs to be supplied at that contract price.

When they have to pay above that contract rate to fulfil a contract it creates a loss situation. They don't like running at a loss any more than any of us do.

With a rapid rate of change in prices they don't get the chance to renegotiate prices.

Lambs do not go as a whole product to a vast majority of markets, export or domestic.

If one customer wants the premium lamb rack cuts, then a market needs to be found for the rest of those lambs.

In the 1980s a lamb industry delegation to South East Asia for example found a great appreciation for the product and the new premium cuts, but $2.40/kg was all they wanted to pay.

There are cuts on the lamb that can be sold at the lower prices as long as there is a premium received for the high demand cuts.

A surge in prices as we are seeing now puts many of those lower priced cuts out of reach of the markets they presently go to.

For example, what would you be prepared to pay for neck chops and flap?

There is a huge incentive for producers to chase these prices while they exist, with future breeding stock.

For nearly three decades we have been eating our breeding flock at a faster rate than we have been breeding, to the point that we now have less than 50 percent of our peak national flock and only 40 million breeding ewes.

Only 70 percent of these are annually rearing a lamb, with around 30 percent of lambs lost from scanning to weaning.

While there have been great advances and education in achieving higher lambing percentages and survival rates, it only takes a season like 2018 in a large portion of the country to cause further flock decline which would throw the supply and demand situation further out of kilter.

Simply put, we desperately need to produce more lambs from less ewes to have any chance of matching demand.

We risk lamb becoming unaffordable to the domestic consumer, and as much as they may still desire it, will only eat it on very special occasions.

As producers of a wonderful food product that is highly desired around the world, can we afford to see it 'progress' to become purely a luxury product? Our present situation is built on mass markets.

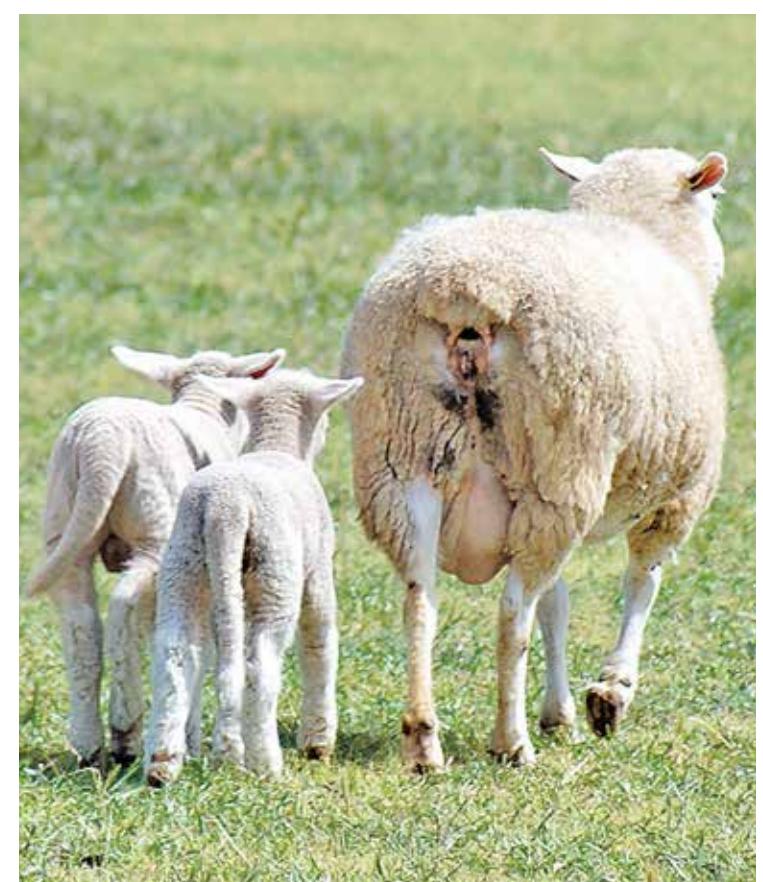

I've never been comfortable with telling a client/customer to, "Suck it up or go elsewhere". If we get too expensive compared with all the other options, that is exactly where many of our customers will go.

Luxury items are even more sensitive to supply and demand situations in a very fickle marketplace.

Yes, we are dealing with a free market situation and it is what it is, but unless we can increase our supply to match that demand, we need to be aware and plan for the possibility of less palatable outcomes in the not too distant future.

Every chain is dependent on each link within and is only as strong as its weakest link.

The consumer is the main link in the lamb industry chain. We need to be careful not make them the weakest link.

• Increasing lambing percentages and especially lamb survival rates is paramount in increasing supply to match current demand, or we risk lamb becoming a luxury item only.

Seriston maximise client success

IF OUTSTANDING prime lamb industry rams that combine frame and extra length with powerful early growth and muscling are what you seek, then a visit to the Seriston White Suffolk and Suffolk studs at Avenue Range should be on your agenda.

This selection focus has led to the distinct Seriston type produced today.

Principal, Anthony Hurst has continually sourced the best genetics he can find over the years to match the selection principles he put in place from the beginning of his stud breeding program over 25 years ago.

Are there any lamb producers who are not serious about maximising the success of their enterprise? Certainly, those who are should give serious consideration to the outstanding quality on offer at Seriston.

These are totally paddock raised rams that have seen no grain in their raising, so they have achieved their impressive growth and carcass attributes on grass, just as commercial producers would like their progeny to do.

When there are greater rewards on offer for prime lambs, the higher the quality, the higher the rewards.

While most lamb producers can make a profit in the current very buoyant market, it is those who use higher performing genetics who maximise their retains and come out even further in front.

Anthony Hurst will again present a wonderful team of over 180 White Suffolk and Suffolk rams for competition at this year's Seriston annual on-property ram sale on Friday, October 12.

The offering will see the second drop of progeny from the significant investment in three top Deltap Grove White Suffolk sires made in 2015, including two sons of their top performance sire, DG 'Ricochet'.

The blend of growth and carcass attributes of these additions into the Seriston program has been particularly positive.

- The length, depth and muscling combination of Seriston White Suffolk and Suffolk genetics like these White Suffolks at last year's sale is appreciated by more clients every year, with available ram numbers increasing in line with that demand.

Also, Seriston 32, a top homebred son of Waratah 130645 is another sire with his second impressive drop of White Suffolk progeny on offer this year.

In the Suffolks, Seriston's investment in a top Kerangie ram also paid off, again having many impressive sons in the Suffolk rams on offer.

Local area producers have known and appreciated the quality available at Seriston for a long time, but as the word on the results their rams have produced in clients' paddocks has spread, more have joined them.

To ensure all potential buyers are able to compete at value for the rams they need, matching supply with the increased demand has been one of the challenges Anthony Hurst has faced, with sale numbers almost doubling from 12 years ago.

He is very mindful that there are different buying budgets, plus the needs of bigger volume buyers being able to average out their buying accounts.

To this end he has been successful with a good percentage of rams selling in the 'great value range' over the last two sales.

Measurement for eye muscle area rather than just depth has arguably been a significant contributing factor in achieving the renowned Seriston type.

Genetic correlations usually mean that an emphasis on increased muscle depth leads to smaller and shorter earlier maturing sheep.

This then restricts the market weight range options open to breeders who use these smaller types.

Insisting on maintaining size and length with early muscling has required more time and patience to achieve, but the buyers are the beneficiaries of this patience at Seriston.

Anthony Hurst welcomes enquiry with more details also available on the website: www.seriston.com.au.

Warrawindi confident their premium genetics will impress

WARRAWINDI Farms are a growing business focussed on maximising production, combining four breeds for sheep grazing enterprises in South Australia.

Increasing demand worldwide for sheep and lamb meat is gaining momentum, and Australians have a great, clean, grass-fed product to sell.

Confidence is high that the sheep and lamb industry will be very sustainable and profitable for many years to come.

Warrawindi is confident in investing in the best genetics for the future, not only in the best terminal sheep but the best maternal sheep for lamb production as well.

The Poll Dorsets are supreme in growth rates compared to any other terminal prime lamb sire.

Warrawindi uses the top growth and muscle AI and stud sires in Australia, culminating in big robust rams backed with above breed averages EBVs.

The Suffolks provide lambing ease for younger ewes and ewe lambs but still have enough grunt to produce heavy sucklers.

The Suffolk also provides hardiness and superior meat tenderness for today's trending market.

The Border Leicesters are one of the main ingredients in the prime lamb industry.

They supply easy care, high fertility, milk, growth and mothering ability in base Dams, the first cross ewe is one of the best and safest production machines you will ever own.

Warrawindi's newly purchased East Friesian breed has been in Australia for over 20 years.

Quoted as being the most productive sheep in the world, with the highest milking ability and the longest lactation.

A Merino ewe will on average lactate for 90 days, crossbreeds and most other sheep average 180 days, Border Leicesters 220 days and East Friesians average 300 days lactation with 25 percent more milk per day.

Weighing up the pros and cons of pure East Friesians has led to the development and super successful use of East Friesian / Border Leicester cross rams for over

Merino, first cross and composite ewes to produce the ultimate maternal ewe for maximum production under the Australian climate.

Warrawindi East Friesians is the largest stud in Australia, producing over 200 pure and East Friesian / Border Leicester cross rams which will be available in their 2019 sale.

Warrawindi will be offering in their 2018 sale 150 Poll Dorsets, 25 Suffolks and 25 Border Leicester rams on-property on Friday, October 12.

The sale commences at 1.00pm, with viewing from 12 noon or by appointment beforehand. Lunch will be provided.

Regular updates and individual rams of interest also on

Ryevew quality up there with the best

RYEVIEW had a very successful showing at Millicent last year.

This ram also became supreme sheep of the Millicent Show.

He is one of two top Coolawang rams purchased at the October 2016 ram sale by Ryevew, with their first progeny available for your selection at the sale this year.

In April 2017 Ryevew was thrilled to sell Suffolk and White Suffolk cross lambs at the Mount Gambier Saleyards for $228 / head.

These lambs were by rams similar to those represented in the sale this year.

The four White Suffolk stud sires with progeny represented in Ryevew's annual sale this year are listed below. They have confidence that these flock rams will produce top results for you because of their good EBVs & high indexes.

Sires of the flock rams represented in the Ryevew 2018 annual sale are:

Ashmore 130266 (17.3 Pwwt, 0.58 pfat, 0.5 pemd, 193.37 Carcass Plus). Another Suffolk stud sire purchased in 2016 has produced some of the quality progeny represented at this year's sale. He was purchased from the Anna Villa:

Bowen 140417 (10.70 Pwwt, -0.17 pfat, -0.17 pemd, 154.54 Carcass Plus); Anna Viila 150022 (9.8 Pwwt, -0.4 pfat, -0.1 pemd, 150.00 Carcass Plus).

In 2015 Ryevew purchased 90 percent of the Border Leicester ewe lambs at the Duenclin dispersal sale.

In 2016 they purchased half of the remaining mixed aged ewes in lamb.

This gave Ryevew a definite re-entry to the Border Leicester world.

The Border Leicester flock rams in this year's sale are showing good growth and width with good EBVs to suit.

They are only 12 to 14 months of age. The figures of their sires are below:

Duenclin 120660 (7.1 Pwwt, -0.0 pfat, -0.4 pemd, 127.75 Carcass Plus, 7.6 NLW% (number of lambs weaned)); Duenclin 120767(T) (7.7 Pwwt, -1.1 pfat, 0.2 pemd, 141.17 Carcass Plus, 5.5 NLW%).

Ryevew's Lambplan data/figures recorded demonstrate that their White Suffolks are breeding with EBVs and eating qualities that continue to be right up there with the average Australian White Suffolk flock.

From their participation in the genomics program, they can supply eating qualities for their White Suffolk offspring.

All Ryevew sheep are Ovine Brucellosis Accredited Free (No. 306), in the MAP scheme (MN3V No. S107).

All sheep are vaccinated with Gudair and treated with Eryvac and Scabi Guard.

They are also treated with Cydectin Eweguard and dipped with Avenge at shearing in mid August.

Ryevew also sell their rams vet checked prior to the sale and have a structural guarantee to cover the unforeseen.

All this is done so that they can provide you with an assurance that the flock rams for sale are healthy and structurally sound.

You are cordially invited to attend Ryevew's on-property ram sale on Monday, October 15, 2018 at Burkhill Lane, Millicent. A free lunch will be available.

Four percent rebate to all outside agents.

Enquiries can be made to Elder's Millicent (David Little, Hayden Biddle or Scott Altschwager) or contact Michael or Julie Osborne on (08) 8733 3393, 0408 838 568 or via email ryevew@bigpond.com.

Johnos Border Leicester focused on breed future

JOHNOS Border Leicester stud has made some subtle changes in the last three years and are excited to be seeing the outcome from those changes.

Once again they are holding a sale in 2018. This year it will be held at the Mundulla Showground on the original day that Johnos started their ram sale some 20 years ago.

It will be conducted on the second Monday in October starting at 11am.

The stud will be offering approximately 80 Border Leicester rams including SuperBorder$.

Johnos has a strong breeding program, producing the rams you require.

They will again be showing rams at the Royal Adelaide Show.

This year Border Leicesters are the feature breed, so if you are looking for show rams Johnos will have some on offer on sale day.

The stud continues to be involved in Superborder$ which has a genuine focus on the future of the lamb industry and moves with the changes as needed.

Superborder$ is in its 20th year and still very strong and relevant today.

If you are looking for performance rams Johnos has them. They are all about breeding for your requirements.

If you want to keep the ewes yourself, or sell them on, they are here to help in any way they can.

Johnos congratulates all the breeders who had first cross ewes sired by their rams in Naracoorte last year.

Although it was a tough day in regards to weather, your ewes stood up with the best of them. Well done.

• Exceptional growth and muscling is clearly evident in these Janmac rams. They are examples of the quality Poll Dorset and White Suffolk rams on offer at this year's on-property Janmac sale on October 3.

Janmac – Quietly achieving excellence

WHILE THE Hausler family of Janmac Poll Dorsets and White Suffolk, Goroke has been selling large and even drafts of rams to clients in Western Victoria and the South East of South Australia for a long time, it's their achievements in the last few years that has come under wider notice.

They again had another total clearance of the 184 rams at their annual sale last October, a result that verifies the strong competition from commercial breeders seeking rams that are certainly performing in their paddocks and producing increased profit margins.

Stock agents have described the highly productive and functional Janmac rams as, "Durable rams with the genetic potential to turn grass into top end dollars".

"Naturally we are ecstatic with the last sale result, picking up more clients and everyone seemed to go away happy with the value they received," co-principal Grant Hausler said.

The increased demand for their rams has been built around the quality they have been producing.

Janmac has always been striving for excellence with strict selection criteria for balance, structure, conformation, fertility and performance, especially growth rate and muscling.

These traits will be clearly evident in this year's offering on Wednesday, October 3, on-property at Goroke.

It is Janmac's willingness to invest in the right genetics to achieve their objective that makes the difference.

A substantial lift was achieved in their Poll Dorset flock when Janmac combined with the Rowett family in SA to purchase Kurralea 110011 in 2012 for a then Poll Dorset breed record price of $28,000.

Newbold 120065, an elite performance ram on Lambplan followed with his first progeny sold in 2015.

Kentish Downs 130291 was purchased for the top price at their 2014 sale to follow on with that lift in consistent quality by going over the outstanding daughters of the other two rams.

In 2016 they purchased the Poll Dorset ram Kurralea 150036 Tw for the $13,000 top price at the Kurralea sale to follow these rams.

A total of 87 ewes were scanned in lamb to him with his first lambs being "exceptional" according to Grant Hausler. Those first progeny will be on offer this year.

Looking for further advancement in the future, they followed up with two very significant Poll Dorset purchases last year.

Kurralea 160435, the Adelaide reserve champion ram was purchased for $12,000, while they also took a share in Kurralea 160234, the Melbourne reserve senior champion purchased by Ulandi Park for $15,000.

The first progeny from both these rams will be on offer next year.

Grant and Bryce Hausler apply the same breeding principles to their more recent and smaller White Suffolk stud, catering for lamb producers who favour this breeding option.

The highly credentialed Wingamin bloodlines feature strongly in this stud, while they followed up with the significant purchase of Anden 150022Tw in 2016 for $8000.

This ram had a Lambplan Carcass Plus index of 219.95 and was a son of the then record $36,000 Anden ram that sold to WA the previous year.

The ram bred exceptionally well for Anden when used as a ram lamb, with eight stud ram sons selling in last year's Anden sale, twice topping at $10,000.

Again, the Hauslers are delighted with this infusion, with Janmac's first progeny on offer this year.

Grant and Bryce Hausler welcome enquiries on their 2018 offering, with more information available on their website (www.janmac.com.au) and with regular postings on Facebook.

The James family thoroughly test the breeding quality of their Border Leicesters in their own commercial flock with great success. The best presented pen for the ninth time in 13 years at the annual Naracoorte first cross ewe sale in November last year is an example of the quality of their genetics, this pen going on to again top the sale at a Naracoorte record of $366.

Coolawang in touch with client needs

THE MUNDULLA based James family's Coolawang Border Leicester stud has always had a strong commercial focus in their breeding objectives.

However, on top of client successes, it is the success of their genetics within their own commercial flock that is the real measuring stick that can't be ignored, and strongly influences the breeding decisions they make in their stud flock.

Being in this position to thoroughly assess progress within their own commercial flock gives them instant first-hand feedback on how their genetics perform and which lines bring the best results.

This is then a direct benefit to all the other clients who have come to appreciate the quality of Coolawang genetics over the years.

The James family's success at the annual Naracoorte first cross young ewe sale is clear evidence they are right on the mark with yet another sale topping (a record $366) and best presented pen result. This latter award was achieved for the ninth time in 13 years.

Their entire line of 541 ewes in that sale averaged $356.95. That is exceptionally consistent high quality production.

The success experienced by many of their clients in the Naracoorte ewe and ewe lamb sales further backs up the Coolawang brand as one that can be thoroughly trusted.

Coolawang's Border Leicesters are produced with a balance of structural excellence, especially with strong bone and constitution, high fertility background and top Lambplan measured performance.

While they seek elite performance levels, they do not focus on figures based selection alone, but these are considered in conjunction with phenotype.

Extended lifetime performance of rams is a point overlooked when selecting on figures alone.

As an important extra bonus, Coolawang's move to testing and selection for worm resistance will ensure that the Coolawang rams will be able to withstand annual worm burdens better than most other options.

Thus commercial producers have every reason to be excited by the quality on offer in this year's annual Coolawang sale draft of 15 stud and 180 flock rams, to be held on Thursday, October 11 at 11.00am on their Mundulla property.

This is also an increase in numbers which should keep supply in line with anticipated demand, ensuring there is still value buying within the sale for those who seek higher numbers or operate on varying budgets.

Independent phenotype assessment of the Coolawang sheep at major shows is a constant test to ensure the James family has their actual and desired breeding objectives aligned with the highest standards.

A continued dominance at the Adelaide Royal is evidence they are on the right road, not only within the breed, but also across breeds.

At the last Adelaide Royal they were again awarded champion Border Leicester ram for the sixth year in a row.

Coolawang will again be entering a full team at the 2018 Adelaide Royal, presenting an opportunity to all who attend over the first three days to inspect the tops of their 2017 drop.

Trevor, Judy and Lachie James welcome your enquiry, but all prospective purchasers can get updates on their website (www.coolawang.com.au) or through regular posts on Facebook.

An efficient, stress-free scanning service of your flock

ANIMAL Scanning Services Australia has been servicing clients in southern Australia for 20 years.

Jeff Southall resides in Kingston SE, but services clients over much of South Australia and Western Victoria.

With his friendly approach, Jeff tries to make diagnosing the state of the pregnancy by ultrasound as stress free as possible for the ewes and the staff working with the sheep.

To that end all of the equipment has been designed and adapted for free flow of stock and to minimise injuries to staff and animals.

When he turns up at your property the equipment, clean and disinfected, is designed to easily transport from the trailer to the side of the drafting race.

The sheep flow up a low ramp with antibacker, through the scanning crate where Jeff momentarily clamps them while putting his ultrasound probe on their side.

Once diagnosed Jeff then drafts the sheep with his air operated draft or the sheep can be sprayed with raddle for later drafting.

Jeff brings everything that would normally be needed for the job including a spare ultrasound, EID equipment, generator, air compressor, three panels, draft, ramp, diagnosing crate and onboard water for his pressure cleaner that he uses to wash the equipment before loading back into his trailer.

Generally all that the farmer needs to supply is a basic yard, two people to keep the stock moving and a dog if they have one.

Jeff has found that there are lots of different things farmers want to do with their stock after scanning to maximise feed, lamb survivability and minimise labour.

He caters for these needs by offering normal wet / dry diagnosis or single / twin / triplet, empty plus a combination of foetal ageing with early / late lamb diagnosis.

For electronic ID Jeff has the latest Truetest XR5000 with XRP2 panel reader enabling him to collect data for customers even if they currently only have tags and are looking to collect history on their sheep before investing in the hardware.

A fair few of his clients minimise their risk by still having the rams in when he scans the first time that year and he drafts the rams into the dries as he goes, so that the dries have potentially already been joined but are less than the minimum 40 days in lamb that Jeff needs to identify pregnant stock.

He's happy to come back for these mainly small mobs to rescan later in the year.

For Jeff the best part of the job is catching up with people year after year and watching their progress.

If there is a problem with the joining he can normally tell you when in the joining the problem was, so that the managers can identify the event and hopefully control that in the future.

Jeff is proud to welcome his son Eoin Southall into the business.

After more than five years of training part time and scanning under Jeff's supervision last season, Eoin has become a professional sheep scanner.

He has a duplicate set of equipment the same as Jeff's, same scanning style and attitude as Jeff but with youth on his side, so if you're looking to have a long term relationship with your sheep scanner and can put up with Eoin going a bit slower this year to get his accuracy right (but knowing he will be faster than Jeff in years to come) give them a call and ask for Eoin to scan your sheep.

Jeff and Eoin pride themselves on their punctuality. You can contact them on 0427 660 106.

They don't answer their phone while working, so please leave a message and they will get back to you.

Cloven Hills tailor genetics to suit individual requirements

AS CLIENTS build their maternal prime lamb flocks, it is rewarding to see them meet their targets from selecting specific genetic traits, whether it is lambs hitting target weights earlier and/or having more on the ground to start with.

Cloven Hills' ewes and rams offer exceptional growth, fertility and carcass traits (eight out of the top 10 Australian Maternal 2017 drop rams on the MCP+ Index are from Cloven Hills).

Moderate ewe adult weight (65kg) and hardiness also means they perform well under pressure, year after year.

However, each farming business has a different starting point, and two rams may look the same yet be genetically quite different in what they deliver.

Cloven Hills enjoys helping to build short lists of rams which target clients' individual genetic objectives, enabling them to more easily select rams physically by type and within budget.

The stud takes great satisfaction in watching how clients, who focus on particular traits in their ram selections, are achieving real gains in their flocks.

Cloven Hills offer this obligation-free service to existing and potential clients alike, so feel free to call, text, email or drop in at their open day on Thursday, September 27 or their ram sale on Monday October 8.

K&S Fuels – Locals supporting locals

WHEN IT comes to fuel, K&S Fuels has no peer, servicing the South East of South Australia for over 60 years and the only local fuel distributor in the region.

They now operate out of their new fuel depot at 40 Graham Road, with admin staff and drivers situated at the one location in Mount Gambier.

K&S Fuels has been servicing the fuel requirements of local motorists as well as agriculture, logging, transport and fishing industries.

K&S Fuels has been getting the job done for over six decades, with good customer service and a reliable fuel supply being the cornerstones of their business.

Their mantra has always been "locals supporting locals" and that hasn't changed, with them ensuring the community's fuel needs are met, and with generous support to organisations and community groups.

K&S Fuels has seven state-of-the art B-doubles delivering fuel from Adelaide and Melbourne into the South East region as well as supplying local customers via their rigid trucks.

The business has a long-standing relationship with Caltex, supplying this region with quality Caltex fuels, oils and lubricants.

K&S Fuels also operate seven Caltex service stations throughout the South East of South Australia.

From supplying diesel to the region's fishing ports, including Port MacDonnell, Beachport, Southend and Cape Jaffa, to their supply to the man on the land, K&S Fuels has forged strong ties with all the key local fishing, forestry and farming industries.

They also offer a convenient fuel card system which keeps its customers on the road 24/7, not only locally, but also nationally as part of the Caltex group.

Contact K&S Fuels today for all your fuel needs on (08) 8721 1770 or drop into one of their Caltex depots or retail service stations.

Paxton set to kick goals under lights

THE PAXTON stud at Western Flat continues to prosper, looking forward to its first on-property sale offering their Poll Dorset and White Suffolk rams at open auction.

The stud took the big step last year of offering their Border Leicester rams at an on-property auction.

Paxton stud principal Martin Harvey said that they couldn't have been happier with how the sale went.

"We sold more rams than we ever thought we could, and the prices were above what we expected," Martin said.

"We were thrilled with the support we received from existing and new clients."

"I was really happy with how the rams presented, and still felt that there were sufficient rams in all buyer price ranges."

"It was particularly pleasing to sell two stud rams to the Pembroke and Morton studs. It is very difficult to sell stud rams when dealing privately," he said.

The Paxton stud is going to try something a little different by having a twilight sale on September 26 starting at 4.30pm, selling their terminal rams.

"We built a new selling shed last year that is very well lit up and it is hard to find suitable days and times with so many sales being conducted in the South East," Martin said.

Clients will be well looked after with food, refreshments and fellowship following the sale.

The stud will offer about 200 rams of both Poll Dorsets and White Suffolks.

The Paxton Border Leicester rams will be offered on October 12 at 2.30pm at Broadview.

The stud will be showing at the Adelaide Royal Show, with the Border Leicesters being the feature breed this year.

Paxton will offer about 150 rams at auction.

According to Martin the sheep industry is flying and many of their clients had record first cross ewe lamb sales last November.

"It is fantastic to walk down the sale pens at Naracoorte and see so many Paxton genetics on display and our clients enjoying the spoils of their consistent hard work," Martin said.

The stud has continued to buy genetics from all over Australia, with new additions from the Aberdeen Poll Dorset stud in NSW and Allendale stud from South Australia, plus the Ellingerrin Border Leicester stud ($10,500 Horsham champion) from Victoria.

Days Whiteface has also added a very handy white Suffolk ram ($12,000) to the sires used at Paxton.

All Paxton rams are MN2V and Brucellosis free, backlined, capsuled and Glanvac 6-in-1 vaccinated.

All rams have Lambplan figures available.

Inquiries are welcome at any time, call Martin Harvey on 0407 582 079.

PRIME LAMB FOCUS

Yarramie flock rams produce exemplary lamb breeding results

YARRAMIE Poll Dorset stud is offering for sale 70 premium flock rams from its 2017 stock.

The rams are well balanced, well fleshed and have good body length.

In an effort to produce quality prime lamb sires, rams are selected for their outstanding conformation and performance, while the ewes are selected for good length and muscle to ensure lower birth weights with rapid growth rates.

Quality stud sires have been purchased from Newbold, Morton and Koonungwootong studs.

Throughout the numerous changes within the Poll Dorset breed, Yarramie continue to supply traditionally based prime lamb sires without losing the concept of originality.

The Westgarths have developed a reputation for breeding superior flock rams.

They prove their performance through mass lamb production and strong constitution culminating in early maturity of supreme prime lambs.

Rams sold have performed strongly and evidently been proven by positive confidence from satisfied buyers.

New and repeat buyers will profit from Yarramie rams through high lambing percentages.

The lambs mature quickly developing good length, exceptional muscling, clean faces and large hindquarters.

Buyers have regularly topped the market with prime lambs sired by Yarramie Poll Dorset flock rams.

All sale rams are Brucellosis accredited free and are OJD status free (vaccinated) and out of an OJD clean flock.

Buyers can be confident in Yarramie flock rams, which will provide them with a solid foundation to attain prime lamb production and premium lamb sales.

Yarramie's flock ram sale will be held on Monday, October 15 at 1.00pm at the Glenburnie Saleyards.

There will be prizes offered to the highest bidder, the most volume buyer and the lucky draw winner.

Lunch is provided and there is a three percent rebate to outside agents.

For information or sales of Yarramie flock rams phone Kevin Norman (Green Triangle Livestock) 0418 849 155, Brian Spring (Ray White) 0429 100 057 or Graham Westgarth (stud principal) 0429 847 224.

Majardah's high performance in demand

THE MAJARDAH Poll Dorset and White Suffolk stud at Glencoe operated by the Price family continues to kick genetic goals.

Demand for Majardah rams last season saw the family supply ram lambs and surplus stud rams to clients to help them meet their mating targets, after clearing 100 percent of their 1½ year old sires.

While most of the Majardah rams stay local, repeat clients in Western Australia, Eyre Peninsula, the Victorian Mallee and Gippsland all bought high performance rams on offer from the stud.

Over 1300 stud lambs were weighed and double tagged at birth, with pedigrees and further measurements taken as they grow.

This information is submitted to Sheep Genetics for processing to generate Australian Sheep Breeding Values.

"Our sheep are achieving excellent ASBVs in a commercial environment," said a pleased Adam Price.

"This shows in the rams' capacity to sire lambs that are easy care with high growth rates, finishing ability and worm resistance," he said.

Keen to stay at the forefront of the sheep industry, the Majardah stud genomics tested over 250 rams in the 2017 drop for meat eating quality.

Whilst they are not getting paid for meat eating quality yet, processors have implemented DEXA technology which will soon highlight their best suppliers.

Further benchmarking of the Majardah flock through the world class Meat Elite group has ensured members have consistently achieved above average ASBV gains for the past 20 years.

The 2018 ram selling season will be an opportunity for producers to use the excellent returns from their lambs to invest in high performance rams that have the capacity to lift profitability into the future.

The Majardah stud will have 140 rams on offer at their annual sale on October 5, with a further 160 rams available privately.

Both the White Suffolk and Poll Dorset rams sit just over 20 Carcass Plus index points above the breed average.

Performance and profit can be achieved when producers purchase Majardah Poll Dorset and White Suffolk rams.

Sheep meat production at the forefront with KD Sheepstuds

THE SHEEP industry is in pretty unique times at the moment, and as long as it has four legs and says "baah", there's an encouraging feeling about the money it can make.

A sheep type should be selected to suit your climate, environment, labour availability, lifestyle and other species grazed.

You can chase the rainbow but usually it's costly to start and by the time you get there things have changed.

KD Sheepstuds have three types of composite sheep that they have developed using the best genetics available, to enhance greater profits and ease of management for sheep producers.

It doesn't matter what a breed is called or what its history is, according to Kym Staude the owner of KD Sheepstuds.

Sheep meat production is always front and centre with the breeding Kym pursues.

The overriding characteristic with any sheep at KD is the easy lambing.

With 18 years of recording and monitoring stud births, there is barely a lamb lost at birth due to difficult presentation, even from lambing ewes 11 months of age.

Hardiness, non seasonal breeding and mating while lactating are also attributes that are prevalent within the breeds KD Sheepstuds have.

The KD Composite sheep type that have been evolving for 18 years has had the Charollais (sheep) breed in the mix for the past four years.

"The hybrid vigour, growth and muscling amazes me every time I handle these lambs," Kym Staude said.

"Human nature tends to assume that 'big is beautiful' in some sheep breeds, but with the Charollais composites I say 'wow it's wide'.

"The lambs are typically born under 4kg and then take off from there on," Kym said.

KD Wool Composites are a full wool sheep type and each generation there is an increase in black hooved progeny, making them better for wetter areas.

They are suitable over Merinos, cross-breds of all types and their speciality is for use over maiden ewes or ewe lambs.

There is no reason why their progeny can't be retained as maternal ewes given that they consistently lamb at over 150 percent.

On September 11 KD Sheepstuds will have 40 to 50 rams available.

The dual purpose Dohne has been bred since 2007 at the stud.

They grow 4-6kg of 18-20 micron wool and they are not designed to be heavy wool cutters but to produce fast growing lambs with good carcass traits.

Dohne wether lambs can convert feed into meat more efficiently than traditional Merinos, and with growth rates up to 400 grams per day, at the current meat prices a bit less wool is easily made up for.

Dohne sheep can handle tough conditions and lambing of above 120 percent is a regular occurrence at KD.

Dohnes are used over Merinos and all types of strong wool type meat sheep to bring the micron back but retain carcass and fertility traits.

KD Sheepstuds will have 30 Dohne rams available on September 11.

For 20 years the stud has been breeding the shedding type sheep.

The Australian White sheep have been used since 2011 to use with a shedding composite that the stud has developed.

They are now producing the ultimate sheep for easy care and producers in wet areas can now use this type of sheep with confidence.

The difference is that KD Sheepstuds now have in excess of 90 percent black hooved sheep and no feet are trimmed on rams presented for sale.

This has been the greatest move ahead with their breeding of this sheep type.

The other factor is that Aussie White/KD Shedding Composite lambs are born with a thick hair coat.

Given the recent wet and cold months, there has hardly been a lamb lost due to the cold conditions.

The ewes are non seasonal breeders and one group of the stud ewes has just lambed for the third time in 15 months.

There are also young ewes that are 11 months old and are about to lamb.

The numbers of full blood Aussie White rams for sale is increasing, but now KD Sheepstuds have third and fourth generation AW progeny from their KD Composite ewe base that they know have all the right characteristics for this type of sheep they are striving for.

On Saturday, October 6 KD Sheepstuds will have 50 'Top of the Drop' rams available on-farm at Bordertown. There are 100+ rams available this season.

See www.kdsheepstuds.com.au for more information or phone Kym on 0412 070 971.

Gypsum Hill's dedication remains strong

SINCE 1977 Gypsum Hill Suffolk and White Suffolk studs have been supplying high quality terminal sires to the prime lamb industry.

Now over 40 years on, the vision and focus on the requirements for the industry is as strong as ever.

Founded in the tough climate of the mid north of South Australia, the studs relocated to the South East in 2008, purchasing a grazing property at Padthaway.

The studs are run in conjunction with a prime lamb operation, primarily first cross ewes mated to White Suffolk rams targeting the supermarket trade, and a commercial herd of Angus cattle.

The opportunity to purchase Gypsum Hill genetics has primarily been via their on-property sale, and this year it will be held on Friday, September 28 at Emmavale, Schuberts Road, Padthaway.

The sale will be held undercover in the new sale shed commencing at 2.00pm when Gypsum Hill will offer 75 White Suffolk and 15 Suffolk rams.

Over the years there have been trends towards different styles of sheep in the lamb industry, but Gypsum Hill's commitment has always been to produce rams with great confirmation and shape coupled with 'do-ability' and longevity that produce lambs which meet the current requirements.

Successful show campaigns during the 1980s and 1990s helped their focus on confirmation, and on-farm testing of these genetics in the stud's own prime lamb enterprise helped hone the style of sheep they were looking to produce.

For the last 25 years the use of Lamb-plan has been an important tool in continual improvement of growth and muscling of their rams.

One issue that Gypsum Hill has been addressing for a number of years now is the mature size of rams and the OH&S implications with the handling of overly big sheep.

The stud has been successful in developing rams that have moderate body size yet still produce finished lambs that meet the target market of between 22kg to 28kg dressed weight.

Another aspect Gypsum Hill prides itself on is presenting rams in ready to work condition without having spent their lives on grain feeders.

It would be an easy task to adlib feed rams to look magnificent for sale day, only to discover the negative impact this has on their lifetime performance.

Gypsum Hill offers free delivery where possible on rams purchased.

The stud has been Brucellosis accredited since 1977. This year all rams on offer have been Guidair vaccinated for Ovine Johnes disease.

The stud has made a near lifelong commitment to seedstock production and the lamb industry in general, and are proud of the sheep produced.

Gypsum Hill would like to invite interested lamb producers to attend their sale on September 28 to view the genetics on offer and the direction and vision of the stud operation, and importantly stay on afterwards and enjoy a light refreshment opportunity with them.

Mullinger Park stacks up with best in breed

MULLINGER Park's 2018 sale will boast over 300 high production Poll Dorset, White Suffolk and Suffolk rams with 10 specially selected rams which could fit into any stud breeding program.

Mullinger Park has been breeding Poll Dorsets for over 50 years and stud breeders Brett and Amanda Shepherd of Kybybolite are one of the largest sellers of British Breed rams in the South East.

The Shepherd's reserve champion Suffolk ram is a complete ram and reflects the rams the pair are trying to breed at Mullinger Park.

"Our rams are purely commercial focused. We show them to see where we stand in the show ring and they are stacking up against the very best," Brett said.

"We have focused on Lambplan figures and they are improving with every year and are adequate for the individual breeds."

"We are very happy with the quality of our breeding, we have invested heavily in new sires and AI programs over the years and of late have purchased close to 100 Poll Dorset ewes to cater to Poll Dorset ram demand.

"Our goals are to breed good length, good muscle, well structured sheep that can perform in all aspects of the industry, whether it's an early sucker or to grow them out to the heavy export weights," Brett said.

The Mullinger Park team

The depth of quality and performance in Kurralea rams is renowned and is evident in these two Poll Dorset and White Suffolk rams on offer this year. Both have Carcass Plus indices of 200 and are sired by K160435 (PD) and A. 'Cruiser' (WS - $68,000 record breaking sire). Over 300 rams will be on offer at their September 25 sale.

Client success best Kurralea endorsement

THE CONTINUED sales successes at the Prentice family's Kurralea Poll Dorset, White Suffolk and Suffolk ram sale are the headline news stories, but it is the success of their clients that is their primary focus and consequently the reason why the Kurralea headlines continue.

Last year 312 rams from the three breeds achieved a total clearance to buyers from three states, topping at $18,000 and achieving a wonderful $1605 average.

The question could be asked as to why Kurralea has continually achieved nation leading sales successes, but with a little research the answers rapidly become obvious.

From a breeding perspective, Kurralea has always strived to produce sheep that combine elite performance and structural excellence; bigger framed than many, but well-muscled rams that do the job for clients in wide ranging environments, allowing them to meet any of the multiple market choices.

It is this latter point that enables different clients the flexibility to successfully and efficiently target different carcass weights and grid specifications.

The fact that commercial producers continue to travel to Ariah Park from many areas of NSW and interstate to purchase these rams to improve their bottom line is a strong endorsement of the quality of Kurralea genetics.

James Baldry, Wallendbeen, NSW endorsed that quality when he said, "One of the benefits of Kurralea is the obvious genetic depth within the stud which assures consistency of performance and robustness of their rams, giving us even lines of marketable lambs that can be sold in the 18kg to 28kg carcass weight range."

"Having rams with good length and depth not only ensures greater feed conversion efficiency, but also having the ideal 2 to 3 condition score, even when taken through to heavy weights of 26kg to 27kg carcass weight is a real bonus," he said.

Other producers readily endorse the Kurralea qualities and their comments plus up to date sale information can be viewed on the Kurralea website (www.kurralea.com).

The 2018 Kurralea annual ram sale will again see over 300 rams from the three breeds on offer on Tuesday, September 25 commencing at 12.30pm EST.

There is certainly some exciting progeny from industry leading sires coming up in this offering, including a large number of White Suffolk sons of Anden 'Cruiser' 150277Tw, the $68,000 all meat sheep breeds record priced ram.

It will also be the second year Suffolk rams from Lucy's relatively new flock will be offered, while the longest serving Poll Dorset breed offering has numerous top sires represented.

Castle Camps aim to build on previous year's success

FOLLOWING a complete clearance of rams in both breeds last year, the Castle Camps Border Leicester and White Suffolk studs of Ian and Sue Carr is looking forward to the coming ram selling season.

This year the stud will again offer 70 White Suffolk and 70 Border Leicester rams at its annual sale on Friday, September 28.

The rams have come through a tight summer and autumn but with a bit of extra feeding they are starting to fill out and should be good by sale day.

This year's sale will see the first rams from some of the new sires.

In the White Suffolk section two sires represented for the first time will be Anden 15 108 (purchased for $4000) and Castle Camps 15 26 (an AI son of Ramsay Park 201).

Both these rams have bred very well and will have some excellent rams in this year's sale.

The sale will also see the last offering of sons by Woolumbool 12 7789, a ram that has left his mark on the stud with almost 300 progeny.

The Border Leicester section will see the first sons of Gleneth 15 320 and Ellingerrin 15 280.

These two rams have some very promising rams in their first draft.

Adding to these will be sons from proven sires Castle Camps 12 2228 and 12 2347.

Complementing these rams will be three AI sires: Johnos 11 83 and 10 606, plus Inverbrackie 14 8041.

Again many of the rams offered will have negative WECs (worm egg counts), a trait that is considered highly important by the stud.

Castle Camps' operation is run with a commercial focus in mind.

Their stud ewes are run under commercial conditions with importance placed on sheep with natural doing ability.

They continue to get great feedback for both breeds, with clients getting excellent results with both lambs and their first cross ewes.

This year's sale will be held on the property at 2018 Riddoch Highway, Keith on Friday, September 28 starting at 11.00am, with inspections from 9.30am.

Ian and Sue invite you to come and inspect the rams either on sale day or beforehand.

You can also follow them on Facebook or go to their website (www.castlecamps.com.au) for an online catalogue which will be available from early September.

Call Ian on 0438 566 030 to arrange a suitable time for an inspection.

A quarter century of auction success for Mulgundawa and Richmond Park MULGUNDAWA and Richmond Park have marked their 55th year of breeding Poll Dorsets and 30 years of producing White Suffolks.

Mary, Kevin and Mike would like to thank all who considered their 2017 offering. The confidence shown in their stock and attendance at auction means they will continue to auction 300+ rams in 2018 and provide you with the opportunity to purchase high quality sires throughout the entire offering.

The 25th ram sale will be conducted at Richmond Park on Monday, October 8, located 11km from Robe on the Robe-Penola Road.

Approximately 150 Poll Dorset and 150 White Suffolk flock rams (May-June drop) as well as a selection of stud rams will be available for inspection from 11.00am on the day of sale.

The auction will commence on Poll Dorsets at 1.00pm with White Suffolks to follow.

Careful selection of sires in their breeding program has produced better muscled and better doing rams, still with profitable growth and desirable carcass shape.

Poll Dorset sires used to produce the rams on offer include two new Derrynock rams, 51/15 purchased for $14,000 (wwt 9.5, pwt 15, pfat +0.5, pemd 2.7, C+203) and 593/15 (wwt 10, pwt 15.4, pfat-0.1, pemd 1.6, C+196).

Also new is North Ulandi 10/15 (pemd 3.4 and +0.1 pfat, C+200.4). His progeny should produce high yielding lambs.

White Suffolk sires include Smithston 460/15, purchased for $10,000 (wwt 11.1, pwt 16.5, pemd 1.5, C+207) and Wheetlande 8384/15, (wwt 10.1, pwt 15.4, pfat-0.7, pemd 1.6, C+199).

Oakwood 25/14, Kurralea 67/13 (C+ 205) and Omad 129/15 will all have quality sons in this year's sale.

Sheep Genetics Australia figures are available on the SGA website and full catalogue prior to the sale.

Both studs are OJD MN3V (entire flock vaccinated) and Ovine Brucellosis accredited free.

The number of sheep offered should enable buyers to find quality and value.

A complimentary barbecue lunch will be available prior to the sale.

Enquiries can be directed to the vendors or their selling agent, Landmark, at either Millicent or Kingston SE.

Cashmore Oaklea's self replacing maternals thrive in all conditions

THE ANNUAL Cashmore Oaklea Performance Maternal ram sale will be held at the Hamilton Showgrounds on Friday, October 12 commencing at 11.00am.

The sale will have 450 high performing maternal rams on offer.

These rams are the cream of the drop from over 3000 maternal rams that were tagged at birth in 2017.

Cashmore Park will also have on offer a selection of nudie rams.

An open day will be held at Cashmore Park on September 27.

The annual Cashmore Oaklea ewe sale will be held by Auctions Plus on Tuesday, December 4 with approximately 10,000 ewes on offer.

Cashmore Oaklea Performance Maternals run an industry leading flock and have been producing self replacing maternal sheep genetics for Australian prime lamb farming systems for the past 36 years.

The flock is run in a harsh coastal environment at high stocking rates where only the best thrive.

The testing ground ensures co-principals Don Pegler and John Keiller make accurate decisions about replacement breeding stock and it is their guarantee to clients that the animals will perform in all environments.

The stud's sheep are selected for fast growth rates and high numbers of lambs weaned on a moderately framed, medium wool ewe.

Improvements in these important traits lead to increased farm production due to higher winter stocking rates, more lambs born and a higher utilisation of spring pastures.

As the kilograms of lambs weaned per hectare rises, gross income increases.

The 7000 ewe stud flock is fully performance recorded with a suite of measurements taken across an animal's life, building up a performance history and genetic picture of its dollar earning potential.

Always looking ahead, the Cashmore Oaklea team have been at the forefront of research with considerable investment into developing novel traits such as parasite resistance, adult weight and yearling NLW.

These are now mainstream industry Australian Sheep Breeding Values and Cashmore Oaklea is a leader in these areas.

Mr Pegler and Mr Keiller are practical farming people who love the challenge of making animals change.

They take satisfaction in seeing dams with strong maternal instincts, helped by calm dispositions, lamb easily and rear healthy offspring to target weights.

- Woolumbool's selection parameters are very much in sync with industry needs, while fertility runs strongly through Woolumbool genetics with a majority of their sale stock being from multiple births.

High accuracy measured performance data confirms Woolumbool's quality

UNQUESTIONABLE measured performance data has been behind the Clothier family's Woolumbool Poll Dorset and White Suffolk ram offerings since the stud's inception 30 years ago.

It is the depth of that data behind their current offering that gives them extremely high accuracies and gold quality level status with Lambplan, ensuring that what you see and read is what you'll consistently get.

Very few studs have that ranking Australia-wide.

This gives prospective purchasers amongst prime lamb producers not only trustworthy elite performance, but also greater confidence in the results they will achieve and consequently, potentially greater profitability.

The Clothiers are also members of the Meat Elite Poll Dorset and the Superwhites White Suffolk breeding groups breeding for elite performance levels.

Honest paddock growth and presentation is rigidly adhered to by the Clothiers, which gives no masking of the actual genetic capabilities of their rams.

Further, all rams have to pass an assessment for structural soundness before being considered for sale, whatever their figures may be.

For some who are used to purchasing pampered rams raised on feeders, adjusting to this paddock preparation may be difficult but the honesty of the Clothier family is second to none.

Based at Lucindale, they have concentrated their type in both breeds on medium frames with rapid growth to earlier maturity, producing rams that are very much like 'peas in a pod' and ideal for 'finished' prime lambs in the 22kg to 26kg weight range.

This is the money market weight range in today's lamb industry with a vast majority of both domestic and export lambs being sought by processors within this weight range.

Lamb eating quality is a newer EBV available to the industry through Lambplan and unsurprisingly the Clothier family has been quick to bring it to the forefront of their selection considerations.

A good eating experience for consumers is paramount in keeping up demand, especially now that high demand and under supply has pushed lamb prices to record levels.

Woolumbool has a loyal following of regular clients who continually get the results they seek from these genetics.

However, there is plenty of room for others to join them, with over 100 rams from each of their two terminal sire breeds on offer on Wednesday, October 3.

Their high fertility Multi-Meats are another exciting maternal addition to the breeding options they offer, these rams being available privately, while they offered a small selection of Poll Merinos at last year's sale for the first time.

The most important trait for profitability is fertility expressed through live lambs on the ground.

Woolumbool also excels here, with exceptional fertility levels through all their studs, not just the Multi-Meats.

A significant majority of their rams will be from multiple births.

Further, all Woolumbool rams have been measured and selected for worm resistance, an increasingly important trait for management and consistent performance.

More information and updates can be found on the Woolumbool website (www.woolumbool.com.au) and on Facebook.

Allendale's impressive traits again on offer

ALLENDALE'S 46th annual sale will be held on Friday, October 5 in conjunction with Day's White Suffolks and Maternal Composites.

Allendale will offer 115 Poll Dorset stud and flock rams, 65 Suffolk stud and flock rams and 40 Suffolk ewes.

The Poll Dorset offering will consist of 12 sire stud rams and 100 quality flock rams.

The sires of these sale rams average in the top 20 percent of all terminal sheep for post weaning weight, eye muscle depth and Carcass Plus index.

Along with this impressive performance data the Allendale Poll Dorsets are clean pointed, structurally correct with good confirmation and early maturity.

The Allendale Suffolk ram offering consists of 15 top quality stud rams and 50 performance recorded flock rams.

These Suffolk rams are well made, sound sheep with many rams excelling for eating quality traits.

The Suffolk ewes are a tidy line with many top sires represented.

Allendale strives for stock with type, performance and balance. Their sheep are MN3-V, Footrot free and Brucellosis accredited.

New designer genetics on offer at Detpa Grove

THE PIPKORN family's Detpa Grove White Suffolk stud record speaks for itself, arguably being one of the most successful White Suffolk studs in the country for the best part of two decades.

The quality on offer at Detpa Grove is truly elite and while they have regularly achieved headline stud sale successes, because of the incredible depth of quality, many of the prices have been very affordable, especially in the current buoyant prime lamb industry.

Besides their structural and breed type excellence, there was a vast majority of last year's offering, right through to the bottom run of flock rams, in excess of 200 on Carcass Plus index under Lambplan.

Of the 143 strong flock ram offering, 54 percent were over 200; 38 percent of the stud ewe offering and 70 percent of the stud rams also exceeded this level of performance, with the balance not far behind.

Along with elite phenotype, very few studs can get close to that level of verifiable performance.

The stud prefix may stay the same, but the genetic improvement continues.

The production of such high quality stock and influencing so many other studs around the country is no easy achievement, yet stud principal David Pipkorn relishes the challenge.

Astute infusions of elite genetics for both performance and phenotype have enabled Detpa Grove to bring exciting new family lines to the marketplace.

The genetic diversity within the stud allows both stud and commercial producers to keep investing in arguably the best all-round genetics available today.

This year's offering continues that theme. Could they be better than in previous years? Certainly David Pipkorn believes they are, which is great news for all sheep producers.

Of course, prospective buyers can make their own decisions on this, but unless they put themselves 'in the game' by attending the next

- These are just a small sample of the outstanding rams on offer this year at the Detpa Grove sale in October, demonstrating exceptional quality, performance and breed type. Detpa Grove continues to be industry leaders for both genotype and phenotype.

Detpa Grove sale on Thursday, October 11 they have little chance of securing these new designer genetics that can truly enhance the performance and quality produced in their prime lamb or stud breeding programs.

Some of the prominent sires of this year's offering include Anden Cruiser, the $68,000 industry and White Suffolk record breaking ram; Detpa Grove 140180, with another great crop of sons; Hillcroft Farms 130156, with high eating quality index and performance levels; Detpa Grove 140101, with some very classy sons; and Detpa Grove 160027, the stud's top keeper ram from the 2016 drop but since lost.

The Detpa Grove sale catalogue, plus regular updates on the stock on offer this year, can be seen on Detpa Grove's website (www.detpagrove.com) or you can follow them on Facebook.

Wrattenbullie go it alone

AFTER 26 joint sales with Leenala, Wrattenbullie will be conducting a standalone sale at the same venue and date as previous years.

The sale date is Monday, October 8 at 1.30pm at the sheep pavilion, Naracoorte Showgrounds.

Five stud rams and 120 flock rams will be offered for sale.

A team of eight rams was entered for the recent Hamilton Sheepvention, with six of these going on to represent Wrattenbullie at the Adelaide Show.

These rams are sired by Hillden 580-16, a big long ram leaving sons with good structure and growth, and Ulandi Park 125-12 used for his balanced set of ASBVs and his ability to breed big long clean rams.

The other rams were from home bred sires.

Five of these rams will be offered as stud rams at the sale.

Wrattenbullie's main focus for the year is presenting the 120 flock rams in ideal condition to go out and perform for clients.

They are well grown, sound rams with good skins and carcass.

With many lamb producers looking at ASBVs when selecting flock rams, the stud has introduced two sires: Valma 291-16 with Carcass Plus index of 210, pwt 15.8 and pemd 2.4; the other ram being Ulandi Park 125-12 with a Carcass Plus index 195, pwt 15.1 and pemd 1.58.

There will also be a few young rams by Bundarra Downs 6930-16. With farm biosecurity being an important focus for producers, Wrattenbullie has focused on it as a high priority.

They have maintained their OJD status being MN3V and have completed testing to maintain their Ovine Brucellosis accreditation certificate No. 280.

Gayle, Alana, Brad and Rod would like to catch up with you on October 8 where you can enjoy lunch and light refreshments before the sale.

Anyone wishing to inspect their sheep prior to the sale can do so by calling Brad on 0438 266 732 or Rod on 0467 646 026.

Days Whiteface offering the complete prime lamb package

TERMINAL and maternal options are covered at the one location with the Days Whiteface offering on Friday, October 5 of both White Suffolks and Maternal Composites.

The stud continually striving for increased performance while still maintaining the structural soundness that ensures their rams' longevity.

They constantly search for new genetics, both physical rams and AI sires, that add performance which will make your prime lamb enterprise more profitable.

Days Whiteface believe their rams have the growth and muscle the industry requires while still maintaining all important lambing ease.

The development of the Maternal Composite flock has been very rewarding with one of their long term clients recently recording a pregnancy rate in their ewe lambs of 156 percent to lambs joined.

This along with the tremendous carcass attributes of the composites makes them well worth a look.

A new string to the Maternal Composite bow has been the introduction of some Poll Merino genetics.

Days Whiteface chose a ram from the Merino database that has excellent ASBVs for fat and muscle. The progeny look very promising.

Days Whiteface will retain one to blend through some of their composite flock and will have a small group of these rams for sale among their composite offering on Friday, October 5.

• Days 150113 is strongly represented in the Days Whiteface 2018 White Suffolk offering.

Fertile, early maturing Stoneleigh Suffolks

STONELEIGH Suffolks was established in 2008 and is located near Lucindale in the Upper South East of South Australia.

The stud is run by Malcolm and Tania Smith and their three daughters, alongside their mixed farming operation, beef cattle and prime lambs.

Established with the aim to breed rams for their own commercial ewes, they soon found there was a high demand outside of their own use.

Stoneleigh Suffolks started with foundation sheep from Pine Ridge, Burwood and Allendale, all renowned breeders, and they now run 120 stud ewes and four stud rams, producing approximately 50 flock rams annually.

These are available for sale by private selection in mid September.

Alongside this year's flock rams they will also be offering four stud rams.

Stoneleigh Suffolks focus on producing high quality, early maturing, fertile Suffolk rams for the commercial based breeders.

The stud continually aims to improve their genetics, sourcing sires with structural excellence, stretch, and plenty of muscle, all traits required for the red meat industry.

Tania and Malcolm will again exhibit both stud rams and ewes at the Royal Adelaide Show.

Stoneleigh Suffolks is Brucellosis Accredited free, OJD vaccinated, and all stud rams have been Spider Syndrome tested.

- Multiple bearing Multimeat sheep.

Step up your lamb production potential with Multimeat genetics

NOW IS the time to move your lamb production system to the next level.

The development of multiple bearing sheep has lifted the lid on the potential of lamb production systems.

These genotypes use a single gene to lift the scanning percentages of your ewes by 60 percent. One cross and you have prolific sheep.

The rest of the world has had access to high fecundity ewes and now you can too. These ewes will conceive the extra lambs without extra feeding or the use of drugs, making them much more efficient at converting your pasture to meat.

Multimeat rams can be crossed with Merinos, crossbreds or composites to lift the scanning rates of wool sheep.

The new Multimeatmaster rams can be crossed with Dorpers, Wiltipolls or Aussie Whites to produce a clean shedding sheep with scanning rates between 180-200 percent.

These genotypes cannot compete at their normal levels of fecundity but this innovation will make them competitive with composite ewes which are barely worth shearing.

These new genotypes are supplied with carefully researched management booklets which explain optimum ways of managing these sheep to get the best out of them.

This research was conducted at Struan for the MLA and SARDI.

Application of this system results in a 25 percent lift in profitability.

Over 60 producers are using this advancement to achieve the same results as shown with the independent trial conducted on the Elmore field day site.

For more information have a look on the Multimeat Composite website or contact Colin Earl, email earl.kerami@bigpond.com, phone 0428 647 457.
