MOUNT Gambier City Council has conceded a number of significant cost outlays are not included in its publicly stated Community and Recreation Hub, but are refusing to confirm the overall figure.

Despite council claiming the total build cost of the Community and Recreational Centre is $57.3m, a significant jump from the initial $39.1m figure, confidential documents released to The Border Watch state a true project cost of $64m.

Outgoing council chief executive Andrew Meddle conceded the construction phase contingency was not included in the $57.3m figure, but said the estimated cost of contingency was "unknown and dependent on multiplicity of project variables".

But he did not answer questions about the cost or the percentage rate.

Medi-hotel traffic drops

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Blue Lake City reportedly saw a sudden increase in flow of visiting traffic last month with Mount Gambier's medi-hotel almost at full capacity for the whole of September.

Currently at 48pc, the site was completely booked-out from September 20, following mostly 90pc capacity for the remainder of the month according to SA Health.

As of 10am on Wednesday, 25 of the 52 on-site rooms were in use with 29 people using the facility to quarantine.

This month, numbers have sat on or below 70pc, fluctuating as people move through the Limestone Coast.

Limestone Coast Local Health Network executive director of medical services Elaine Pretorius said the facility was busy, but had since settled down.

"When we were full, we were thinking we might have to open a second hotel," Ms Pretorius said.

"I think there was this rush with people thinking they should come over when they could."

"It has been a good process, but it is a lot of hard work for those locked up in a medi-hotel for two weeks."

Ms Pretorius said most people using the facility were relocating for jobs or were essential workers who had to be in South Australia.

"We do not see as many people from Melbourne as such, but more of the regional people," she said.

"When people come across, they have to apply for an exemption and once it is approved, it will say they are excepted to quarantine. They then have to book in and can not cross until they have completed quarantine."

"They are escorted by police to the hotel, swabbed on day one and day 11, have their daily temperature checks and also undergo various types of analysis."

COVID-19 UPDATE

THE Mount Gambier Hospital has slowly reintroduced routine face-to-face components which had previously been restricted due to Covid-19.

Ms Pretorius said for the moment, most hospital restrictions had not been relaxed however face-to-face education appointments and group sessions had been reinstated and Country Health Connect staff were back in the community providing care.

"One can only do that many Zoom meetings and there is quite a bit of evidence surrounding Zoom meetings being much harder work," she said.

"I think a good balance between face-to-face and some quick work-like meetings on Zoom is what we will be striving for in the future."

"There has been a lot of feedback from particular patients which were desperate for some face-to-face visits and appointments."

Ms Pretorius said hospital restrictions remained and were closely aligned with Victorian sites.

"I know Victorian premier Daniel Andrews has been criticised enormously, but he is very conservative and with COVID-19 I think that is good," she said.

"I think if we trust the Victorian roadmap, it will give us some indication and reassurance."

Ms Pretorius said visitation and aged care facility restrictions were strict, but for good reason.

"This will continue until we have an indication from Victoria with how things are going," she said.

"There are plans to perhaps extend visiting hours and to allow more people to visit at the one time."

A challenge Ms Pretorius said Limestone Coast sites were facing was staff not being able to work in more than the one facility.

"How long can we sustain people not being able to move in between the one place," she said.

"At some point you start buckling because you are actually duplicating your staff and we are starting to feel that."

"This will especially be evident when people want to start taking leave and with Christmas coming up."

Hospital visitors are still required to undergo a quick screening process before entering the building, involving a questionnaire and temperature check.

Names and numbers are also now recorded for contact tracing if required.

Ms Pretorius said the site saw approximately 400 visitors each day.

"I was amazed when I heard and I just thought what are all these people doing here?" She said.

RELOCATION OF TEST SITE

MOUNT Gambier Showgrounds has become home to the city's Covid-19 testing site after relocating from the hospital on 22 September.

Since Covid-19 began, the Limestone Coast has recorded approximately 34,000 tests.

Last month, the Mount Gambier hut made 2186 tests, approximately double of July's statistics.

Ms Pretorius said the first week of operation from the site's new facilities was tough for the SA Pathology team, but a structured routine had since been established.

"It is good for us here on-site at Mount Gambier because we do not have the cues of cars and have parking free again. It is just easier to get in and out of the site," she said.

"I think testing is going to be a very large part of our lives for at least the next six to 12 months, so we have to have a long-term solution for the testing."

"SA Pathology have been fantastic throughout it all and the team has to be recognised as I believe they have set us up for the success South Australia has had."

Naracoorte is expected to also move its testing site to the town's old nursing quarters.

REMINDER TO THE PUBLIC

MS Pretorius said she recognised people were frustrated and possibly felt like things should be over by now.

"In South Australia, we have really been able to do our daily lives quite easily," she said.

"I understand the impacts on the economy and one can not stand unsympathetic for sacrifices people have made."

"We just need to stay a strong for a little bit longer ... The alternative is too much to bare."

Cross border frustration

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

MEMBER for Mount Gambier Troy Bell has fired shots at SA Health and the state's Transition Committee for delays of up to four weeks for exemptions to be approved to cross the border.

In yesterday's sitting of parliament, the independent MP lambasted the state's health department and the committee about ongoing application issues for South Australian residents attempting to traverse the Victorian border.

Cross-border community members are required to complete online pre-approval to enter South Australia under the existing essential traveller requirements.

Individuals seeking essential traveller status for urgent medical, dental or health treatment, compassionate grounds or to provide health services must apply for an essential traveller health exemption from SA Health before submitting a travel application to police.

Exemption requests are considered by an exemption committee led by South Australia's chief public health officer Professor Nicola Spurrier and authorised officers.

But Mr Bell says the extensive application process has been dogged by bureaucratic delays, with applicants requiring answers are being "shuffled from agency to hotline to person".

Mr Bell told the chamber the lack of regional representation on the state's Transition Committee – comprised of Professor Spurrier, Police Commissioner Grant Stevens and chief executives of the Premier, health, treasury and trade departments – was

He said it was "completely unacceptable" decisions impacting regional communities "are being decided by people based in metropolitan areas with no concept of the challenges of living regionally and in a border community."

Mount Gambier MP Troy Bell.

"It's completely unacceptable that decisions which impact their lives are made by people far removed from their situations," Mr Bell said.

"It's completely unacceptable that regional South Australians living near a border feel they are being treated like numbers by government agencies.

"The majority of our electorate office work in 2020 has been to advocate for people, both Victorians or South Australians, who are frustrated and cannot get any answers from government agencies," he said.

"Their stories are often very difficult."

"There are people who have been referred to homeless services, have lost businesses and relationships, have missed family funerals."

Mr Bell said a man who had applied for an exemption to return permanently from South Australia from Victoria on September 22 was granted permission to enter South Australia this week.

According to Mr Bell, the man had expected to relocate on October 6, but did not receive an answer from SA Health or a timeline as to when his application.

"Finally, he wrote to the South Australian ombudsman requesting a decision," Mr Bell said.

"In his letter, the spoke out about the ongoing impact on his mental health, his precarious living and financial situation and also about the frustration of not even getting a response from SA Health."

"We are aware of one young woman who has been waiting five weeks for her exemption to be approved."

"This situation is not good enough SA Health."

Hub's $64m question

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

MOUNT Gambier City Council has conceded a number of significant cost outlays are not included in its publicly stated Community and Recreation Hub, but is refusing to confirm the overall figure.

Despite council claiming the total build cost of the Community and Recreational Centre is $57.3m, a significant jump from the initial $39.1m figure, confidential documents released to The Border Watch state a true project cost of $64m.

Outgoing council chief executive Andrew Meddle conceded the construction phase contingency was not included in the $57.3m figure, but said the estimated cost of contingency was "unknown and dependent on multiplicity of project variables".

Mr Meddle said the contingency was "as per industry standard", but did not answer questions about the cost or the percentage rate.

However, confidential documents viewed by The Border Watch reveal a $4.2m contingency fee, $2.6m for project management, cost manager and design and $40,000 for an opening event which is not included in the final figure.

The single largest expense was a 25pc locality fee, which was not included in council's intermediate $39.1m design, which documents revealed "as loading on top of the cost of building the hub in a capital city."

In response to a question on why the locality loading was not include in the original cost estimate, Mr Meddle said the fee was deemed unnecessary based on advice at the time.

"The tender process revealed the true cost of the build and a locality loading of between zero and 25pc, depending on the tenderer."

City Council had initially earmarked $10m for the project, with an expected $20m contribution from the Federal Government and $15m from the State Government.

The Federal Government ultimately granted the $15m under the Regional Growth Fund, while the State Government pledged $10m in April 2019 – leaving council with a $15m shortfall in funding at that time.

However, the updated figure leaves City Council with a potential shortfall of $39m against the project cost – the original cost of the $39.1m facility.

At a confidential meeting on July 1, staff and elected members heard council was in a "very strong financial position" and has "access to funding at interest rates that are the lowest they have been for many years."

"The council has grants to deliver the project totalling $25,350,000," the report says.

"This would leave a shortfall of $31,429,244.50 against the construction cost and potentially $39,125,750.76 against the project cost, noting that the contingency may not all be used.

"Presuming there is one loan facility at $37m for 20 years at 2.75pc, the annual cash payment for principal and interest is likely to be in the vicinity of $2.4m.

"Over a 50 year term, the principal and interest annual payment will be in the vicinity of $1.4m."

The documents also reveal operational costs – including court and pool use, cleaning and wages – would be between $2.5m and $2.6m "with some variation" over the first four years.

Australian-first CT scanner in the Limestone Coast

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

LIMESTONE Coast residents requiring heart scans have access to the best imaging equipment in Australia with the Mount Gambier and Districts Health Service housing the nation's first high-end CT scan machine.

The machine is operated by Benson Radiology and can scan up to 60 patients a day for conditions ranging from stroke imaging, cardiac issues and sinus infections.

The powerful machine produces images of the heart and its blood vessels and brings to life 3D models of complex cardiac conditions.

Mount Gambier resident Julie Lomman was one of the first patients to undergo the scan for any underlying cardiac conditions after she found herself out of breath while on a leisurely walk with a friend.

After visiting her GP, Ms Lomman was referred to a specialist in Adelaide where she underwent an ECG scan.

"The cardiologist saw the images and said I needed to have a CT scan and I thought I would have to do another trip to Adelaide," she said.

"I was surprised when she told me I could have the scan done in Mount Gambier because I didn't know we had the machine.

"The stress of having a scan done is enough without the stress of having it in Adelaide.

"You have to drive up which takes you five hours and you probably have to stay overnight in accommodation, which is time consuming and expensive.

"Having the scanner in Mount Gambier takes that all away."

Featuring a significantly larger gantry bore than other scanners, Ms Lomman described the new

Ms Lomman said the new machine was patient-friendly and featured a significantly larger gantry bore than other scanners.

"People who have claustrophobia don't need to be worried because you don't go into the machine," she said.

"You slide the bed down and they just get your chest area.

"It is not invasive at all – they do put an IV into your arm because they put the contrast dye in, but it is a lot less stressful than some of the other scans."

In the first three days of operation, Benson Radiology performed CT coronary angiograms on more than 20 patients.

The technology used to reconstruct the images incorporates a multi-light source cinematic rendering developed by animation studio Pixar.

Benson Radiology managing partner Dr Dale Alison said the new CT system provided benefits to both patients and medical professionals by diagnosing a number of conditions faster and more accurately.

"It is easy to use and provides some other functions which will help with hip and knee replacements," he said.

"With this machine, you can see the bones around metal implants better.

"The new machine provides a full service and more comfortable scanning experience.

"We are proud to be the first hospital in the country with this system, which will expand local treatment options and reduce the need to travel to major metropolitan hospitals to seek medical treatment."

Fishermen fined for illegal haul

A MOUNT Gambier man has been banned from rock lobster fishing for three years after he was caught with 17 illegally caught lobster – eight of which were undersize.

In December 2019, fisherman Luc Lam and two Victorian men – Raymond Tang and Eric Nguyen – were caught on a boat near Port MacDonnell with illegally caught lobster.

The men were not allowed to fish for rock lobster as their pots were not registered with the Primary Industries and Regions as is legally required.

The trio were convicted and ordered to pay fines, levies and prosecution costs totaling $5799 each.

All three men were banned from rock lobster fishing or being in possession of rock lobster for three years, unless purchased from a fish processor.

In addition Lam, who was the operator of the boat, was convicted for breaching the Harbours and Navigation Regulations as the vessel did not have operational navigation lights when returning to port in darkness.

Primary Industries and Regional Development Minister David Basham said the convictions were a timely reassurance for recreational fishers to adhere to the law.

"South Australia is one of the few states that allows the use of recreational rock lobster pots and I know recreational fishers value the ability to experience the premium catch," he said.

"It is important for all fishers to be responsible and do the right thing to ensure the long-term sustainability of our fish stocks for future generations to enjoy.

"With the season opening, if you see someone doing the wrong thing, please contact Fishwatch by 1800 065 522 or via the SA Recreational Fishing Guide app."

Fire eye in the sky

A CUTTING-EDGE robotic camera will provide an eye-in-the-sky across the Tantanoola district over the 2020/21 fire season in an Australian-first trial of the technology.

The sophisticated FireHawk camera has been installed on the Bluff communication tower, halfway between Millicent and Mount Gambier, capable of providing 360-degree scans and 24-hour surveillance from its vantage point.

The forestry sector has invested in the $60,000 trial following a State Government decision to suspend use of two fire towers, the Bluff and Penola North, due to safety concerns related to their poor structural condition.

Early results of the trial have shown the camera can detect fire up to 30km away, providing industry with confidence the technology has the potential to significantly enhance fire management this coming fire season.

The technology has been installed by the Green Triangle Fire Alliance, a group representing about 90pc of the region's forest growers, to provide improved protection for its assets and guard the broader community.

The camera's panoramic scan of the landscape is streamed up-to-the minute over a 24-hour cycle and using tailored algorithms, its artificial intelligence sends alerts to fire managers' mobile phones when smoke is first identified, allowing for an immediate ground or aerial response.

The technology is currently used in countries such as Chile and South Africa as a defence to protect forest and agricultural crops.

Green Triangle Fire Alliance chair Laurie Hein said the region's trial had highlighted the potential for a camera system to further augment the existing fire detection systems.

He believes cameras will be commonplace fire management tools in the near future alongside other emerging technologies, such as drones and geostationary satellites.

"This technology is one of the more advanced detection tools we have seen in fire management in the Green Triangle since the introduction of digital communication tools," he said.

"For the first time we will have 24-hour surveillance, scanning the landscape for a fire threat anywhere within the tower radius, providing immediate data to our network of fire managers.

"We know that early detection is critical in managing and suppressing wildfire and this system has the capability of providing a far greater level of defence than we have ever experienced before."

Green Triangle Forest Industries Hub chair Ian McDonnell said the trial was another key milestone for the forest and timber sector, which was introducing world-best technologies to protect and support the supply chain.

He said the industry could not see a repeat of last fire season, which destroyed 70,000 hectares of plantation forest nationwide leaving a major gap in domestic supply.

"This new technology will provide a heightened level of response, arming our highly experienced fire spotters with the enhanced ability to spot and coordinate the extinguishing of a fire earlier.

"Instead of climbing the dizzy heights of the fire tower they will be working in the comfort of an air-conditioned office, working alongside forest managers and fire-fighting personnel to protect not only our forest estate, but that of the broader community with a coordinated response."

FireHawk project manager Martin McDonald said the camera technology removed the OHS liability for forest growers, who are forced to remove fire spotters from towers in extreme weather conditions, such as high wind or temperature days, as was the case on one extreme fire danger day during the 2019/20 fire season.

"The system will alarm a located fire or smoke sighting and place cross hairs on that location until it is cleared by an operator. If a smoke sighting occurs but then dissipates, the fire can still be located as the system gives accurate initial location data. All images are stored on a database that can be accessed as required," Mr McDonald said.

South Australian Primary Industries Minister David Basham said the government was supportive of the trial, stating the protection of life and property from bushfire was an essential priority ahead of the 2020/21 summer.

"ForestrySA is an active member of the Green Triangle Fire Alliance which helped to establish the current fire detection pilot program and we look forward to seeing the results of the trial," Mr Basham said.

"The State Government owns and maintains seven fire towers in the region with infrastructure inspections on the entire network carried out last year."

Mr Basham conceded there were safety issues associated with the Bluff and Penola North towers.

"ForestrySA will work with emergency management agencies to ensure high level fire prevention and detection capability this summer and will comply with recommendations of the Keelty Review into last summer's bushfires."

CONTROL HUB: Green Triangle Fire Alliance chair Laurie Hein (seated), from Green Triangle Forest Products, and committee member Andrew Matheson, from OneFortyOne, operate the FireHawk management system.

Uni campus to offer secondary teaching degree

brett.kennedy@tbwtoday.com.au

A SECONDARY education degree will be offered at University of South Australia's Mount Gambier campus from next year, hoping to upskill and retain the region's residents within the high school workforce.

Uni SA will add both a Bachelor of Secondary Education and Bachelor of Social Science to its Mount Gambier course list following extensive consultation with industry stakeholders, aiming to meet any future demand across the education, ageing and disability sectors.

The four-year secondary education degree, which will be limited to mathematics and digital technologies specialisations for 2021, will build on the campus' reputation for producing high-quality primary and early childhood educators.

The move has been welcomed by Limestone Coast education director Adam Box, who lauded the success of the primary education degree program and hoped it could be emulated in the new secondary teaching course.

Conducted over three years, the Bachelor in Social Science will combine some elements with the existing social work faculty.

Both degrees will combine on-campus and online delivery in 2021.

Uni SA regional manager Ian McKay, who is based at the Wireless Road West campus, said the phased introduction of the secondary education degree was important for the campus and schools across the Limestone Coast and western Victoria.

"Regional secondary schools can often find it challenging to employ specialist teachers and over time having secondary teacher graduates locally will help support the staffing of our regional schools," Mr McKay said.

"We are excited about being able to introduce this degree as it meets an important need within our region."

Mr Box hoped the success of the primary could be emulated by the new course in what he believes will be a positive for the region's school system.

"The thing for the Limestone Coast is our distance from Adelaide means we do need to grow our own a little bit," Mr Box said.

"I think it is important we invest in our people and we have been doing that and the quality coming through has been pleasing.

"The key is they are here training locally and we have been able to retain a large number."

Mr Box said South Australia's transition of Year 7 into secondary school from 2022 was progressing well with several Limestone Coast upper primary and high school teachers undertaking co-planning exercises recently.

"The (Education) Department has got a very good team in the Year 7 to high school space," Mr Box said.

"There is still a bit of work to do but we still have time."

GROWING: University of South Australia regional manager Ian McKay is excited to offer two new degrees at the Mount Gambier campus next year.

Wattle Range selects council office site

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

AFTER an hour of debate, three failed amendments and an elected member voting against his own motion, Millicent's former netball precinct has been selected as the site of the new Wattle Range Council chambers.

The long-running issue was resolved by a divided council at Tuesday night's monthly meeting, eliminating the existing George Street office Apex Park, Jubilee Park and the Millicent RSL as prospective locations for the new office.

The site – located on the corner of Williams Road and North Terrace – was supported by a divided council at Tuesday night's monthly meeting following a motion by Councillor Peter Dunncliff to reduce the potential sites to three locations.

Cr Dunncliff told the chamber a resolution was needed for the issue following months of discussion and community consultation.

"We have done a lot of discussion – too much I think – a lot of community consultation and we have copped a lot of flack," he said.

"A lot of people who were quite against the new office block have met with our chief executive, walked through the office and see our point of view."

Penola-based councillor Dean Burrow called for the area around the Millicent RSL Hall to be included as a potential location for the new offices.

"We have an opportunity to build a building with a wow factor and I think there is a lot of opportunity in that area," he said.

"We have had the RSL here at council and I think with a little bit more talking to them, they would accommodate building over the top."

Cr John Drew rejected any development on Jubilee Park, saying it would be "tremendous shame for our district".

"It is our best park and it is highly utilized," he said.

However, Cr Dale Price said he had undertaken independent investigations into the site, with community feedback revealing Jubilee Park was the preferred location.

"I have actually made a point of asking people where they think we should build," he said.

"The feedback I had had is Jubilee Park and from people who had surprised me to have had that opinion."

After more than half an hour of debate, elected members supported reducing the potential locations to the former netball courts, the car park immediately behind the Civic and Arts Centre and Jubilee Park, including the Millicent RSL.

Following the passage of the motion, Cr Dunncliff sought support for the development of a concept design for the car park area.

Councillors discussed undertaking concept designed for both the car park and Jubilee Park sites, with a majority labelling it as unnecessary.

"I believe hidden underneath all of these questions is a belief we will probably end up at the netball courts," Cr Drew said.

"That is our only real choice and the cheapest."

"I feel is if we have a concept design at all, we will be wasting money."

Cr Graham Slarks vehemently rejected both Jubilee Park and the car park area, telling staff and elected members "common sense would dictate we build on an undeveloped site".

"We have a beautiful, well developed park and we are going to dig it up and put a building on it?," he said.

"I reckon you will have criticism doing that."

"Last week, the car park was utilized fully for an event we put on at the skate park."

"Putting a building there is going to be a hell of a mess."

The development of concept designs was rejected by Cr Drew, Cr Slarks, Cr Sharon Cox, Cr Dennis Muhovics and Cr Kevin McGrath, who then moved to proceed with the former netball courts as the site of the new office.

"We spent a lot of time beating around the bush and I would like to see that site redeveloped," Cr McGrath said.

"I think it would really enhance that end of town and complement the money we are spending on the domain."

Corcoran Ward councillors Drew, Muhovics, Slarks and Cox were joined by Cr's McGrath and Dunncliff in supporting the netball precinct site.

Cr's Price, Burrow, Rick Paltridge, Moira Neagle and Deb Agnew voted against the motion.

Council office cost unknown

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

THE price of Wattle Range Council's new council office could cost millions, but chief executive Ben Gower will not reveal a ballpark figure until concept designs are finalised.

Council will move ahead with a plan for the development at Millicent's former netball precinct – located on the corner of North Terrace and Williams Road – after a majority of elected members voted in support of the site at this week's meeting.

Earlier this year, council staff outlined total cost estimates for five potential sites ranging from $8.4m for a new structure at the former Millicent and District Community Club – which had since been sold – to $5.9m for a structure at Jubilee Park.

A report authored by Mr Gower in June estimated a $6.8m cost to build at the former netball courts, comprised of $3.2m for building construction, $1.3m for demolition, external works and car parks, $336,410 for furniture, fittings and equipment and $1.9m for statutory charges, professional fees and contingency.

In the report, Mr Gower noted the estimates had been produced "based on high level concept plans", but could would not have an accurate estimate of the final build "until a detailed design has been completed and the project is costed against those designs through a competitive tender process".

Speaking to The Border Watch this week, Mr Gower said he had "no idea" of the true build would cost, saying it would be dependent on the site design.

"There's a number you can multiply by 1280 square metres and I have heard that number can vary from $1500 to $2500," he said.

"That is just for the building, then you have to fit it out with things like air conditioners, the tiling in the bathrooms."

"But I am not confident with the accuracy of the numbers and these are from architects and builders."

Mr Gower said although a car park would have to be constructed at the former netball courts, the site was likely to result in savings due to its geography and existing connection to utilities.

"The beauty of the netball courts is there's very little earthworks required as it's flat and it's level," he said. "There will be a small demolition cost to knock down the old building, but it already has the services such as power, water and sewerage which runs into the site and that keeps the cost down."

The primary Wattle Range Council office was constructed in the 1930s as a school and while it has undergone a number of renovations over the past 90 years, no major work has been undertaken on the facility since 1997.

Mr Gower said the building was structurally unsuitable to be refurbished and had "significant ongoing maintenance problems".

"Due to its limitation in size, council staff are now spread over multiple sites to avoid congestion," he said. "The existing office building is now no longer fit for purpose."

Council's proposed expenditure has attracted some community opposition, with the "Stop Wattle Range Council spending on new office complex" Facebook group attracting more than 500 members.

The group, led by unsuccessful council candidates Ron Buwalda and Nicole Looby-McRostie, urged ratepayers to sign petitions and contact the Local Government Minister in an attempt to stop the project.

Mr Buwalda said while he does not agree with the requirement to build a new complex, the netball court site was best option.

"Why, as a so called responsible council, would you direct the chief executive office to spend money on getting this site surveyed and costing done and then ask the ratepayers if they actually want the building to go ahead?"

KALANGADOO stalwarts Kerry Dowdell and Peter Savage say they have "given up hope" on the reinstatement of the town's sole police officer after almost four years without a permanent presence.

The two prominent community members have called for a definitive answer on the future of the single-man station or progress the clean up and sale of the site and the purpose-built police residence.

The pair – who are both recipients of Wattle Range Council's Citizen of the Year Award – say the neglected property has created a habitat overgrown weeds and plants has created a habitat for snakes.

Mr Savage said the untamed front and rear yard of the police residence posed a risk to nearby community members, with snake sightings in the vicinity of the property.

"We have probably given up hope on getting a police officer back because it has been so long, but we wish they would do something about the assets," he said. "There is a family living next door to the police house and they have seen a snake in the yard. What happens if the little kids next door gets bitten by a snake? This is the best house in the street and it is just sitting here, not being used and is now a hazard."

Ms Dowdell echoed Mr Savage's comments, saying residents were fearful of snakes in and around the property.

She said people had expressed interest in purchasing and renting the house – which was built in 2010 – but was unable to as was still owned by SAPOL despite being vacant since 2017.

"Someone had actually asked about buying it and they were told it wasn't for sale," she said. "It is such a shame because it is a beautiful house and it's sitting there with no one in it.

"A new family could move in there and it would be a great thing for our community."

The pair acknowledged it was unlikely a police officer would be reinstated, but urged the State Government to consider staffing the station.

"We have been noticing more police driving through, there definitely has been an increase in police presence," Mr Savage said.

"But having police permanently in Kalangadoo is a better deterrent and stops things happening rather than catch people after they have done something."

Ahead of the 2018 state election, then Shadow Police Minister Stephan Knoll committed to retaining a permanent police officer in Kalangadoo, saying the Liberal Party had absolutely no plans to close any police station.

Former Police Minister Corey Wingard previously claimed he did not have the authority to direct the Police Commissioner to keep the station open – despite extending the opening hours of metropolitan police stations against the advice of commissioner Grant Stevens.

Mr Wingard said he was awaiting the completion of a statewide review into regional policing – which has been underway since 2018 – to be finalised before any announcement on the future of the station.

In a letter to Mr Wingard earlier this year, Wattle Range mayor Des Noll requested a definitive response on the position of the Kalangadoo Police Station.

Current Police Minister Vincent Tarzia – who replaced Mr Wingard in July this year – responded in September, saying "operational decisions of SAPOL are ultimately a matter for the Commissioner of Police".

"SAPOL advise that the Kalangadoo Police Station is still subject to ongoing review by the Regional Review Team," Mr Tarzia said.

"Due to SAPOL's Covid-19 commitment, the Regional Review consultation process has been placed on hold."

In a statement, a spokesperson said police did not have a time frame regarding the release of the final outcomes.

Mr Tarzia noted Kalangadoo "will continue to be policed by the neighbouring police station at Millicent".

Mr Noll expressed disappointment with the response and described the prolonged situation in Kalangadoo as a "community relations disaster".

"I am disappointed SAPOL have left this so long regarding the status about the police station and talking to the local community about what their intentions are," he said.

"The community just want to be advised either way whether it is to be reopened or not. That is all they want to know and it will give them clarity."

Committee recommends sporting funds

A MOUNT Gambier City Council committee has recommended a $35,000 boost towards the Apollo Football Club's $104,000 pitch lighting project.

The People and Place Committee endorsed funding for nine clubs under council's $100,000 Sport and Recreation Capital Works Program at last week's meeting.

Committee members supported a $10,000 contribution towards the North Gambier Football Netball Club's netball changeroom and shelter facility, $14,000 towards the Mount Gambier Harness Racing Club's recording platform and $12,000 to the Blue Lake BMX Club for the construction of a track perimeter fence.

Funding for the Mount Gambier Bowls Club, Blue Lake Golf Club, the Mount Gambier RSL and District Bowling Club, Mount Gambier Golf Club and the Mount Gambier Swimming Club has also been recommended by the committee.

Since the program's inception in 2010, council has provided approximately $900,000 in grants to help with new developments.

The recommendation will be discussed by elected members at next week's city council meeting.

McDonald Park toilet upgrade

THE AGING McDonald Park toilets will soon be replaced with a new facility after a Mount Gambier City Council committee backed a provisional budget allocation of $150,000 for the project in next year's budget.

At last month's council meeting, elected members voted in support of a staff recommendation to remove two old toilet blocks at McDonald Park and construct a replacement facility in 2021/22.

A staff report said council had received "several requests" to upgrade the amenities adjacent the netball courts.

The report said staff conducted investigations of the conditions of the existing sewerage systems and building and determined the construction of a new toilet block incorporating male/female and accessible toilet facilities was most appropriate.

However, the report said the budget commitment was not recommended in the current financial year given the "existing budget deficit and significant capital expenditure already committed to projects from the council's asset management plans".

EDITOR'S COMMENT

IT WAS only a few short months ago I wrote a farewell piece to this community, thanking our readership for its support over many years.

I am now thankful to usher in a new era for The Border Watch as a weekly paper, continuing a legacy spanning 159 years.

Make no mistake, it has not been an easy journey back to publication.

So much of the joy and satisfaction from working at The Border Watch came from the team – a family – and while six of my colleagues have returned, many are missed.

For those fortunate enough to continue with the newspaper, I am proud of the enthusiasm and passion they have brought back to the newsroom.

After all, working for The Border Watch was never a self-serving opportunity.

The responsibility and privilege of keeping our community informed and sharing the stories of our fellow Limestone Coastians propels us forward each day.

Community is at the core of every newspaper and we invite our community to engage with The Border Watch, to take ownership over the stories you would like to read and help continue the 159 years of history captured within its pages.

The bouquets, the critic, story ideas or that photo you proudly captured – The Border Watch is a platform for the entire community and we look forward to resuming and forging stronger relationships across the Limestone Coast and western Victoria.

The eyes, ears and voice of our community has proudly returned.

Iconic imagery stands test of time

MOIRA NEAGLE

NOW HERE'S A THOUGHT

MY husband and I were talking to a team of young men putting on a roof for a new house here in Millicent.

They had done work for us so when my husband saw them he came home and told me.

When they worked for us, I would make a batch of fruit scones each day for them. They went down a treat. So, I did this again.

The smiles on the two youngest members when they saw me pull up, was priceless.

Whilst scoffing scones, one of them was drinking an energy drink.

My husband couldn't help but comment and asked, "Do you know what's in these drinks?"

He picked up the can and was trying to read the ingredients.

The team leader, Josh, stated, "You look like the Lion King holding Simba up with that can!"

I was amazed at Josh's transference of an image from his childhood.

I said to him that his generation's heads are full of images from Disney and Pixar whereas my generation's imagery harks back to much earlier, pre-screen infested, lives.

I recall watching Toy Story with my two young sons and noting the toy soldiers formed a tableau of The United States Marine Corps Iwo Jima Memorial located in Arlington, Virginia.

It is of a group of marines raising the American flag.

The tableau meant nothing to my sons but I immediately identified it.

I guess filmmakers of children's films like to slip in images and one-liners for the adults who are viewing their films too.

My sons tell me that they get so much more out of watching old episodes of 'The Simpsons' now because they can recognise so many of the implanted images and the references to films, art works, etc.

The young roofer then downed the energy drink!

Congratulations to the Limestone Coast community

In what can only be described as a turbulent year, it's important for us all to recognise and celebrate the wins that continue to occur within our respective communities, despite the challenging climate.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16, 2020

I urge you all to remember this date as it will continue to symbolise a very significant event for the South East community.

This date represents the re-emergence of your local newspaper, The Border Watch.

Like you, I was terribly upset with the prospect of potentially losing this distinguished, 159-year-old masthead.

It must also be acknowledged that "The Watch" never missed a single edition up to August 21, 2020.

Whilst I am so pleased that The Border Watch will return, I also urge you, the local community, to continue to support your local newspaper.

The Border Watch has long been recognised for outstanding excellence in all areas, including editorial and photography and this important work can only survive if you choose to invest in it each week.

We all need to recognise the importance of independent local journalism.

I strongly believe this is more important than ever as a healthy newspaper helps to maintain a strong, local community.

I am full of admiration for the new company directors and staff who will be expertly guided by the brilliance of local Editor, Mr Brett Kennedy.

May you continue to champion for Mount Gambier and the surrounding districts for many more years to come.

Elm Lane tree removals triggers strong response

AGEING and unstable elm trees are currently being removed from one of the Mount Gambier district's iconic photography locations in the interest of public safety.

Elm Lane, which links the Glenburnie racecourse to Ruwoldt Road, has long been the backdrop to many wedding, family and vehicle photoshoots due to the towering rows of elm trees.

In a statement last week, the Mount Gambier Racing Club said it had made the difficult decision to completely remove the elm trees either side of Elm Lane.

The statement said the trees in question were in excess of 90 years old, and cause a significant safety risk to both people and vehicles accessing the racecourse and to property in the vicinity.

The decision triggered a flurry of comments on The Border Watch Facebook page with residents sharing their memories of the iconic spot.

Lots of lovely wedding photos taken on that beautiful avenue of trees. Another picturesque area will be taken away.

GARRIE

Shame but when it's for safety's sake it's just got to be done. Sounds like they've done everything to try and keep them.

SANDY

Hopefully they will replant with a nice Australian tree. Out with the old in with the new.

DEBORAH

We live in a very destructive politically correct world where litigation is at the forefront of everyone's mind. Very sad decision indeed and one has to wonder are they going to change the name of the Lane.

SHANE

What an absolute joke, there's potential risks like this everywhere in life, if you want to act like this and eliminate them all go live on the moon! Yes we need to reduce risks when needed too, but this just seems over the top. What a soft, overreacting world it's becoming.

JAKE

Can't believe they are chopping these down! Made an amazing back drop for our wedding photos.

Changing of the guard

brett.kennedy@tbwtoday.com.au

TAKING the reins of the highly regarded DeGaris Lawyers legal firm, Donna Jaeschke knows she has big shoes to fill as Bill and Lyn DeGaris enter semi-retirement.

Forging its reputation over 44 years trading at Mount Gambier and Millicent, Ms Jaeschke (nee Edwards) proudly became a full partner of the legal practice earlier this month and will now manage the business' daily functions.

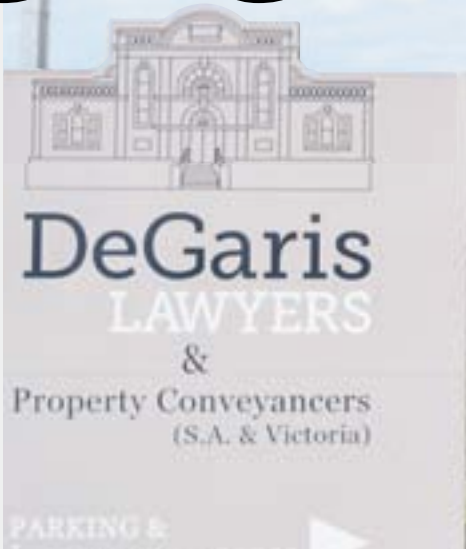

While Ms Jaeschke always held high hopes she would one day lead the practice where she has honed her craft for almost 11 years, that reality has arrived quicker than anticipated.

As Bill and Lyn DeGaris plan to relocate closer to family in Adelaide, four decades on from the promise Bill made to return to the capital city "shortly", Ms Jaeschke is proudly forging her own path in the city which helped shape her.

Moving to Mount Gambier with her family as a five year old, Ms Jaeschke was educated in the region before moving to Adelaide to study law.

After four years at university, Ms Jaeschke returned home in December 2009, ahead of the final year of her degree, and completed all practical assessments while at DeGaris Lawyers.

By February 2011 Ms Jaeschke was admitted as a lawyer in South Australia and has been an Associate Partner of the firm for the last seven years.

"Being in a rural legal practice as opposed to a city firm, there is a such a large scope for the work you can do," Ms Jaeschke said.

"In a city firm you can often be relegated to one area," she said.

"Here I've been able to experience a vast range of law."

Community is a core motivator for Ms Jaeschke and her regional roots have helped fuel her career pathway.

"I've always loved the community aspect of Mount Gambier and the region," she said.

"I enjoy all those things that everyone does – like playing at a local netball club and being involved in a local football club."

It is Ms Jaeschke's community-minded approach which appealed to Mr DeGaris and fills him with confidence that she will continue the legal firm's sterling legacy.

"I think she is a natural listener, a good recorder of facts and I think she provides advice to people in a very matter of fact way," Mr DeGaris said.

"I am delighted, we are very lucky to have a good group of lawyers and practitioners in the practice," he said.

Mr DeGaris will continue to practice, visiting Mount Gambier fortnightly to consult with clients, provide professional services to the community and support the firm.

Ms Jaeschke is supported by lawyers Heidi Hancock, Nick Kidman, Jonathon Brohier and Dajana Vujica, conveyancer Amanda Pascoe and loyal staff Kris Allen, Amber Kidman, Deb Van Riet, Angela Turner, Emma Soper, Anna Haskas and Nikki Blackwell.

"With the group we have working with us now I am sure the future of DeGaris Lawyers is assured and I look forward to watching the firm increase its service provision to the Limestone Coast community for many years to come," Ms Jaeschke said.

Auction supports the vulnerable

A CHARITY auction fundraising to support vulnerable Limestone Coast children will launch on Friday 16 October with 14 Pioneers Basketball Club playing jerseys up for grabs.

The Mount Gambier-based club has partnered with OneFortyOne (OFO) for the virtual memorabilia auction, which will raise funds for Backpacks 4 SA Kids.

The charity provides backpacks to help relieve stress and anxiety children face when removed from their family, often in traumatic situations and without the opportunity to gather personal belongings.

Each backpack contains age appropriate emergency clothing, toiletries and other necessary supplies for children aged 0-16 years who are taken into care as a result of neglect or abuse, family violence, or are experiencing homelessness.

Pledging to match the fundraising total dollar for dollar, OFO Jubilee Sawmill general manager Paul Hartung encouraged the Limestone Coast to support the cause.

"This is a great opportunity for community members to get behind a worthy charity which is doing some excellent work right here in the Limestone Coast," he said.

"There are local families and children who need support so any assistance we can give to an organisation such as Backpacks 4 SA Kids will go a long way."

Backpacks 4 SA Kids volunteer representative Karen Richards said having the backing of OneFortyOne and the Limestone Coast community was a tremendous help to the charity.

"It's those little things which make the biggest difference, and these backpacks go a long way to supporting local children who are in a crisis."

"It is a great community but there are also people in the region who need help," she said.

"Some of the best feedback we've had is from children we've helped on the Limestone Coast. One child was so excited to have their own toothbrush and toothpaste because they were not allowed to have these things for themselves when they were removed from their unsafe home.

"It's those little things which make the biggest difference, and these backpacks go a long way to supporting local children who are in a crisis."

Pioneers Basketball Club president Tom Kosch said the club was humbled to be involved.

"We have been proud to partner with OneFortyOne since the company came on board as a Platinum Partner in 2018 and we are even prouder to be involved together in something as special as this to help vulnerable children," he said.

The auction will be held via OneFortyOne's Facebook page from 9am on 16 October until 23 October, with winning bidders to donate directly via direct deposit to Backpacks 4 SA Kids.

The charity supported 540 children its first year in 2012 and has grown to now support more than 6000 children and 1000 carers annually.

Reminder to check yourself before its too late

MOLLY TAYLOR
molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

EARLY breast cancer detection through simple checks and regular self-monitoring could save Limestone Coast lives.

Each year, BreastScreen SA provides more than 90,000 free screening mammograms to South Australian women primarily aged 50 to 74.

With October marking Breast Cancer Awareness Month, Limestone Coast acting breast care nurse Chris Nobes said she wanted to remind community members how important routine examination and appointments were for all females.

Beginning her employment around a month ago, Ms Nobes is relieving for nurse Dana Mulraney and has smoothly settled into helping provide service and support to patients and their families.

Ms Nobes said breast checks were an easy task for men and women which only took a few minutes per day.

"It can save us a lot of heartache and sadness," she said.

"We should be encouraging each other and making sure we all do it and it is not anything to be embarrassed about either.

"It should be a part of our lives and we need to teach our young children as soon as we can too."

The primary role of a breast care nurse is to support people who have breast cancer as well as their families and carers.

They provide information, physical and psychological care and give practical advice to patients and carers about diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation.

Ms Nobes said the role was rewarding as she felt as though she had made a huge difference in people's journey in sometimes the smallest ways.

"It is lovely to help and guide them through and know you have a value to them and their families by just letting them know you are there," she said.

"It can be an unusual situation to be put in sometimes and we can provide a helping hand to guide them in the right direction and just provide reassurance.

"I think many appreciate just having a friendly face to speak to or call and tell them whatever they like without any fear of upsetting anyone."

Ms Nobes said during her short time of service she could see there was a need for more breast care nurses.

"Unfortunately there is only one full-time nurse for the whole Limestone Coast region and I can certainly see the need for more," she said.

"I have had phone calls from Kingston, Keith and across the district and I am not able to see them straight away or do not get to travel there at all."

Ms Nobes symptoms can often go unrecognised, but as soon as something was unusual, the individual should approach a general practitioner.

"Being aware of how our breasts feel and what is normal for us is key to knowing when things change," she said.

"In the instance when it does change, you can go and see a general practitioner and get it sorted straight away."

"Early detection is the key and we are very lucky now with the accuracy of screening, it is able to detect the early stages before its even felt by us."

Symptoms could include pain, identified lumps or lumpiness, thickening of the breast, dimpling, puckering, redness or swelling, changes in size, discharge or crusting or an inverted nipple.

"The best way to check is to use the flat of your hand and do small gentle circles on your breast, making sure to go up to your collarbone and down under your breast on to the rib and under your arm," she said.

"Making sure you cover all the breast tissue is important."

"If it feels different from normal or the rest, then it is something to see a gp about as soon as you can."

Miracle cancer recovery

MOLLY TAYLOR
molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

PINK has always played a prominent role in Penola resident Jenny Pahl's wardrobe, but the bright colour now holds a heartfelt meaning for the stage four breast cancer survivor.

While helping her husband Jeff with farm work in April, Ms Pahl thought she clumsily pulled a chest muscle.

It was not given a second thought until a week later when an inflamed lump, which she had never noticed beforehand, did not disappear.

Everything changed for Ms Pahl and her family on 17 April when she was diagnosed with stage four invasive ductal carcinoma breast cancer.

A 3.4cm tumor was found on her chest, 1.1cm on her sternum, another on her main lymph node, which was highlighted as severe cancer, as well as a lump on her lung lining and rib.

Ms Pahl said she was blown away when doctors told her she had a "good" cancer as she did not believe it was possible.

"I just thought, how can you have a good cancer? Cancer is cancer," she said.

"You check yourself, but because I have dense breasts, it would take a mammogram or an ultrasound until it's too late and that is what happened to me."

"It is what it is and you just have to soldier on."

With no warning or suspicion, Ms Pahl said it was a complete shock to the system.

"Jeff thinks at night I used to breathe with a whistle and in November last year I had what the doctor thought was a 100-day cough and I could not stop coughing, she said.

"I was just in shock to know."

After surgery, chemotherapy and immunotherapy treatment, Ms Pahl was given the all clear and is now in remission.

"My oncologist calls me superwoman ... It was a miracle," she said.

"Other women which have less might have to have a double mastectomy, radiation and lymph nodes removed."

"I just feel like I do not know how it has happened. How can you go from stage four with two to five years to live, with now not having cancer at all?"

Ms Pahl said she knew seven people in Penola from all different walks of life which had been impacted by breast cancer this year.

"It always happens to the nice people ... It goes through your head, I am a good person, why is it happening to me?" She said.

"You get angry, but you just can not think like that because then everything turns into a negative."

"You just have to be positive and if it knocks you down, you have to get up again."

Ms Pahl said she experienced side effects towards the end of chemotherapy treatment which stripped her raw.

"What else do you want to take? Do you want to take my breasts? My life? My hair?," she said.

"I want normality, I want to live my life normally, but I just can not."

"The things we wanted to do in our 60s are the things we will be doing now."

Husband Jeff and son Brady shaved their hair in honour of Ms Pahl when she was going through treatment.

Ms Pahl said after her journey, she would tell all women to be checked no matter their age or circumstance.

"I always think, yes I better go and do that," she said.

Ms Pahl said she thanked Jeff, Brady and eldest son Josh for their support and her close surrounding friends and family.

Cancer awareness push

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

ALTHOUGH October is marked as Breast Cancer Awareness Month, it is an every day discussion point for Mount Gambier resident Sharon Tuffnell during her daily line of work.

Breast cancer is Australia's most common cancer affecting women, with an average of 55 people impacted every day.

In 2020, it is predicted 19,998 women and 170 men would be diagnosed with the life-changing disease.

Since establishing her business Bare Necessities Lingerie over 30 years ago, Ms Tuffnell has become a passionate spokesperson for breast cancer and all relevant topics.

Although she believed it was great there was a time dedicated to heightened awareness raising, Ms Tuffnell said breast cancer did not discriminate and could strike at any time of the year.

"Breast cancer does not unfortunately target just October," she said.

"Ladies are diagnosed with breast cancer sadly every day."

Ms Tuffnell said she suggested awareness could be raised not only during October, but every day of the year during routine conversations.

Working closely with Limestone Coast breast cancer nurses, Ms Tuffnell said herself and her employees worked with all clients to make sure they were fitted with the best product possible.

"Whether it is post surgical or not, every customer which walks through the doors is treated equally and with care and compassion," she said.

"We work closely with each customer as well as our local breast cancer nurses to make sure we choose the right product for each person."

Ms Tuffnell said having the right fitting bra is important for every woman, not just those who are or have been through cancer treatment.

"We do bra fittings all the time ... the first sign a bra does not fit properly is if it is uncomfortable," she said.

"It is important to be fitted to make sure you are wearing the right size bra and if everybody understood, they would realise why the wire dug into them or their lace scratched them."

"It is all about regular fittings, replacements and how you look after them."

Ms Tuffnell said she recommend all women to be fitted every 12 months or when a bra does not feel it is fitting correctly.

"As we all know, we fluctuate. Some ladies may have different sizes when fluctuating as well," she said.

The main choice is between underwire and non-underwire and there is often a swing back to non-underwire.

This is probably ideal for those who fluctuate a lot or if you have had any treatment.

"For different reasons, some people like it with or without, there is no right or wrong."

Ms Tuffnell said there were many products which were specifically made for those who had been through treatment.

Amoena recently released its new Adapt Air Breast Forms earlier this year, a redesign of its previous traditional breast form.

Ms Tuffnell said the newer design was possibly more suitable for females with protruding or uneven scarring.

Traditional breast forms sit against the skin, but the new design can adapt with the injection of air and mould around it," she said.

"It forms a much closer contact to the chest wall and it is much less weight."

"It took four years of developing and two years of trial to put them on the market."

Ms Tuffnell said the general feedback was the new form felt more natural and not like an external prosthesis.

Due to Covid-19, Bare Necessities' regular come and try day had to be cancelled due to representatives from Melbourne unable to travel to Mount Gambier.

"Ladies do not have to be due to buy one, but usually they can try it and they know when they are due for their next breast form they can move into it without a problem," she said.

Every two year Medicare offer a $400 rebate for breast form purchases.

Ms Tuffnell said she had positively witnessed breast forms give her clients confidence.

"You see ladies come in who are quite often self conscious, wearing a scarf because they want to cover difference," she said.

"Then after they are fitted, they will go out with the scarf over their arm."

"There is also the option of partial breast forms for those who have not had a full vasectomy, which is equally as important."

Ms Tuffnell said Bare Necessities Lingerie offered bra fittings five and a half days a week and encouraged all females to be properly fitted.

HEIGHTENED AWARENESS: Bare Necessities Lingerie owner Sharon Tuffnell encourages all females to be properly bra fitted and regularly screened not just during Breast Cancer Awareness Month, but through the whole year.

Taste of safari on doorstep

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Limestone Coast public has the rare opportunity to experience its own touch of safari this summer as a unique Robe agricultural tourism business invites the community for private inspection.

South Australia's only known camel dairy Humpalicious Camel Milk owners TJ and Warrick Hill and their 50 camels moved from Port Germein to the South East just over two years, building the world's first renewably-powered site.

When the lease of their former 200-hectare property ended, Ms Hill said they began investigating other places to settle and stumbled upon a 40ha block of vacant land on the outskirts of Robe.

"We thought about lifestyle, tourism, cool weather and it all seemed to work," she said.

"We have had to start from scratch as there was no water, power and the fencing needed work.

"We have been milking the camels for around a year now and have installed solar and wind which we plan to continue to expand on."

Ms Hill said an aspiration was to become an agricultural-focused tourism business which invited public on-site for behind-the-scene tours and exclusive tasting of products.

"From what we know, we are the only camel dairy which has opened up to public because it is so difficult milking camels and it is time-consuming," she said.

"Milking 17 camels takes three hours and you could do 100 cows in that time as they are bred for the machinery.

"Milking camels is quite difficult because they are wild animals and the teet distribution is the almost never the same."

With a passion for agriculture, Ms Hill said agritourism was important as she believed many people were disconnected from farming.

"When people walk through these glass doors and see these camels standing calmly right in front of them, they are blown away," she said.

"I think the thing I love about it is about re-connecting and introducing people to large animals and food sources."

Summer tours run from Thursday to Sunday morning with the farm also open in the afternoon for people passing through.

Ms Hill said tours involved walking to the dairy and informal, hands-on experiences.

"It is a really great way for kids to learn hands-on and the camels are behind a fence so it is safe for everybody," she said.

"We offer camel walks where people can walk amongst the heard and people can taste the milk through milkshakes, gelato and coffee."

The farm is also planning to provide camel rides.

Ms Hill said the initial project stemmed back to when Mr Hill began involvement with the Anangu Pitjantjatjara Yankunytjatjara (APY) at the age of 20, beginning the first South Australian camel muster with his friend.

"One day they asked whether they (Warrick and best friend Roger) wanted to catch camels and off they went," she said.

Making Robe their new home, Ms Hill said she believed the farm has added a vibe to the Limestone Coast.

AGRITOURISM BOOST: The Limestone Coast is home to a vibing agri-business Humpalicious. Visitor Hannah, 6, enjoyed visiting the farm earlier this month.

Q&A

Today's Q&A is with Mount Gambier identity CAZ BARR, who moved to the Blue Lake City from Melbourne 18 months ago. Caz previously worked as a pilates instructor for eight years, but has just settled into an exciting new position with baby boutique Little Dottie.

- 1. What is the best advice you've ever been given?
"If it doesn't matter in 10 years, don't worry about it...."
- 2. What is something you like to do in your spare time?
Bubblebaths because they are so calming and I just love practicing self-care. Being in a bubblebath is my happy place for sure.
- 3. What is something people do not know about you?
I auditioned for Tokyo Disney as a Disney princess in Melbourne, but there was a height restriction which meant I did not make it. I knew I wouldn't get in, but I auditioned anyway because it was just one of those bucket list things.
- 4. What do you enjoy most about your job?
That it is not just a shop, but I am part of something bigger than I ever could imagine.
- 5. What would your last meal be if you could choose?
A big plate of warm Greek pita and dip. I miss the Melbourne culture of food and restaurants and that is what it reminds me of.
- 7. What is something you think the Limestone Coast needs?
Pixie dust. I think Mount Gambier has embraced pixie dust magic and they need more of it.
- 8. What guests (dead or alive) would you invite to a dinner party?
Black American ballerina Misty Copeland who was a game changer, my Nanna and Oprah Winfrey.

9. What brought you to the Limestone Coast and what has kept you here?
My husband and I met on Tinder and we fell in love in Melbourne and every time we visited Mount Gambier I told him we had to move here. I am obsessed and each visit I would have digital detoxes and just fully relax. I love it here for the people and community.

THREE ...
kindness...

- 1 Pick up some rubbish.
For most of us outdoor exercise is one of the highlights of each day. As you're walking around your neighbourhood you may notice litter lying around. It's easy to leave it and think it's someone else's job, but it's a kind thing to do for the community and the environment to pick it up. Take a bag and some gloves with you. This could be an iso activity for young children too.
- 2 Pay it forward in the drive through.
Shout the person behind you on your Friday night takeaway run. Alternatively, support a local business and pay for the person standing in line behind you. This could make someone's day, especially during a time like this.
- 3 Send a hamper.
Put together a care package for someone you love such as a friend or family member and have it mailed to them. There's something truly joyful about receiving something heartfelt in a time of mostly electronic communication.

LET YOUR light SHINE

Internet now at fingertips

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

FREE public wifi across Beachport's city centre is expected to become a tourism drawcard for those visiting the Limestone Coast these summer holidays.

The travelling hotspot has become the latest Wattle Range destination to have wifi technology installed, following Millicent earlier this year and Penola planned next month.

The project, costing approximately $31,000, was funded as part of council's 2019-20 capital works program with expected ongoing maintenance costs totalling $1200 annually for the seaside town.

With a main modem based at the township's visitor information centre, signal is expected to reach across Railway Terrace and Beach Road through to the location's main gathering areas including the jetty and waterfront.

Coastal Treasures business owner and nearby seaside resident Robin Cassidy said the ability for tourists and residents to have the internet at their fingertips would be beneficial for the surrounding economy.

"Free wifi is not available much in the country when comparing to metropolitan areas," Ms Cassidy said.

"I understand many people have enough data on their phones, but if the option was there I would say people would use it whenever possible.

"It should be considered a drawcard for those visiting the town."

Ms Cassidy said she hoped the wifi would increase visiting numbers this upcoming holiday season.

"Recently, we have had a lot of South East locals popping through for a visit because they feel quite safe to be out and about," she said.

WIFI INSTALLED: Coastal Treasures business owner Robin Cassidy has welcomed the instalment of public wifi across Beachport's city centre and hopes it will bring more visitors to town.

Picture: MOLLY TAYLOR

"We have also had people who live around the area visiting the store who have said they had never been here before, or were happy travelling on day trips or around the state.

"We hope we see more people during the warmer weather as well."

Before Covid-19, Ms Cassidy said she had friends travel overseas who had been required to download apps before booking into accommodation.

"I think having wifi available offers flexibility for businesses to use it in futuristic ways," she said.

"With the way the world is going, if you need to download an app, I would say people would choose to use the wifi if possible rather than using data.

"I have wifi in the shop so that is fine with me, but when I am out and about, especially in the cities, I definitely try and use free wifi.

"There are so many things which we search on Google now and I think it great people have the ability to log into free wifi to do that."

Council economic development manager Roger Babolka said the logic behind the installation was to offer the community more services.

"We want people to engage with the local community and stay longer," Mr Babolka said.

"It is all about providing a better environment for both locals and tourists."

Mr Babolka said he hoped visitors could use the wifi to search for Beachport attractions, plan their stay and hopefully develop an enjoyable experience while in the district.

"It has proven to work quite well in other areas across Australia," he said.

"We are in a very high profile tourism location across the coastal locations and the Coonawarra region so it is logical to have the facility available.

"It forms part of a broader review across our visitor information centres later last year to make sure we are providing an up-to-date service to tourists."

Mr Babolka said it was not just younger people who were tech savvy, with Grey Nomads as bigger users as the younger generation.

"They are on the road and wifi allows them to make contact with their family while travelling around and it is all good news."

A council marketing scheme to promote the technology, which is expected to include business windows stickers, will be implemented across the district soon.

Green Triangle Electronics has installed technology across all three sites.

Council offers dual free hard waste days

NARACOOORTE and Lucindale residents can dispose of hard waste under a free two-day initiative offered by Naracoorte Lucindale Council.

The Naracoorte Waste Transfer Station will accept household hard waste tomorrow at no cost, while Lucindale Waste Transfer Station will offer the same opportunity on 31 October.

Council said the free disposal days were part of its commitment to reduce incidence of illegal dumping.

The items accepted free of charge include furniture, floor coverings and timber offcuts (up to two metres in length), blinds and window coverings, bikes and toys, lawnmowers, TVs and e-waste (place on top of load), along with household quantities of building materials such as bricks, pavers and concrete.

With council preparing for an influx of waste on the two disposal days, residents are urged not to bring items which are accepted free of charge year-round.

This includes batteries, oil and steel such as whitegoods - washing machines, dryers, ovens, stoves and refrigerators and freezers that have been degassed, as well as sheets of iron and guttering, air conditioners, small items of scrap metal and hot water systems.

Waste not accepted free of charge, such as green and putrescible waste, asbestos (appointment only), business or industrial waste, should also be disposed of on other days.

Gas bottles, tyres, car parts, household chemicals, hazardous waste and treated timber are not accepted at council's waste transfer stations.

The free hard waste disposal collections will be held from 8am to 4pm tomorrow (Naracoorte) and October 31 (Lucindale).

Alternatively, residents are also encouraged to reduce landfill and support reuse by hosting a sale during the Garage Sale Trail on November 21-22.

Visit www.garagesaletrail.com.au to register for the free initiative, which is open to households, schools, community groups and more.

Youths jump at chance

MILLICENT'S nautical-themed skatepark was flooded by eager skateboard, bicycle and scooter riders for the town's third annual Skate Park League event.

Over 50 competitors took part in the Saturday competition, which followed skate clinics on Friday with an extra session required to meet demand.

The clinics were a key part of the two-day event with youths exposed to new skills and tricks in a safe environment, an important aspect given the lack of local coaches for the sport.

More than 250 people gathered for Saturday's competition with Limestone Coast entrants facing off against visiting rivals, including YMCA Skate Park League followers from the Murray Bridge and Adelaide areas.

"It was fantastic to hear that so many visitors from across the region and the state came to Millicent for the event," Wat- tle Range Council economic development manager Roger Babolka said.

"A crew of around 30 people (compris- ing participants, family and friends) trav- elled from Adelaide, Murray Bridge and Victor Harbour to attend the event," he said.

Mr Babolka also highlighted the Ad- elaide-based Chicks on Wheels team, which visited the region.

"With a crew of female-only skaters, the team was formed to encourage females in action sports such as skate, scoot, BMX and motocross to be active, social and build self-confidence and resilience," Mr Babolka said.

Headspace provided a social space for youths and Millicent Lions volunteers served hot food throughout the day.

T-shirts featuring the iconic Squid of the Millicent Skate Park, donated by Im- agine Millicent, were presented to members of the YMCA Skate Event team.

We would like to extend our thanks to the YMCA Skate Park League who make this event possible, with a big shout out to Alice Hogan, Josh Smith and Simon Ingels from the YMCA SPL Adelaide team."

Hotel's grand ghostly tales

The Grand Hotel's paranormal past has been reignited on the cusp of the long-standing facility's mammoth milestone birthday.

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Millicent-based venue, dubbed as one of South Australia's most haunted hotels, has attracted the attention of several investigators and ghost hunters over its 120 years since establishment.

Celebrating its major anniversary on 12 September this year, a string of historical conspiracies involving several resident spirits have since been associated with the popular venue and have circulated the nation for years.

Ghost Crime Tours paranormal investigators David Hogg and Darren Bacchus are among many who have explored the hotel themselves, deeming it to be one of their favourite investigations of all time.

Visiting in 2016, the experienced examiners have been working on a novel involving a series of ghost stories which will include The Grand Hotel.

Mr Hogg said the book Ghost Crime Tales is expected to launch next month and he believed the hotel's well-known association with past supernatural activity was worthy of a feature.

Stories and sightings by visitors and staff have been recounted in both upstairs and downstairs sections of the hotel and involve three main characters.

Mr Hogg said a young boy who plays around the pool and bar table area, a former female publican named Mary and an older well-dressed gentleman who leaves a lingering smell of tobacco are the most common stories told.

"We always had the thought of putting together some of our favourite stories into a book and getting it out for everybody to read," he said.

SPOOKY STORIES: Millicent's Grand Hotel, dubbed one of South Australia's most haunted hotels, celebrated its 120th birthday last month. Hotel manager Leandra Worrell said many visitors often confused the hotel as the town's oldest, but confessed it was the youngest instead, but had its historical features effectively preserved.

Picture: MOLLY TAYLOR

"We had heard about The Grand Hotel ghost stories for years... Everybody loves a good ghost story from back in the day.

"It is a gorgeous hotel with a tonne of history. There is nothing like being there in person, with the lights off, and waiting for everything to quieten down to see what happens next."

During the late night investigation, Mr

Hogg said they had tremendous success recording large EVP and EMF spikes when exploring several of the establishment's accommodation rooms and service areas.

Hotel manager Leandra Worrell said it was each to their own as to whether they believed the hotel's paranormal history.

"There are just so many stories and it makes you wonder as to where they all came from," she said.

"There has been a couple of unexplained things, just feelings and thinking there is somebody there, but there is not.

"I think I have grown accustomed to the spooky feeling because the whole time I have been here people have spoken about it."

Since taking on her managing role after the hotel changed ownership hands around four years ago, Ms Worrell said she often attended to the hotel's upstairs level.

"I go upstairs in the accommodation section just about every day now and at first it is a bit eerie," she said.

"The old man is believed to occupy a specific room so whenever I service the room I always say hello as I have been told he is grumpy.

"People have told me they have also had usual feelings when they go up there."

The hotel has been investigated on two other occasions since 2016 including most recently by Adelaide Haunted Horizons following an investigation at Robe's Caledonian Inn.

Ms Worrell said since her employment at the hotel, she had invested time into researching the history of the hotel.

"In 1899, a petition was put forward to build another hotel because people felt the other two venues did not provide quality accommodation," she said.

"People in Millicent said they did not want any more hotels as they had enough, and the only reason this was passed was because of the proximity to the railway station and the promise would be grand.

"For a long time it was actually the grandest hotel in the South East."

Shearer shortage

MOLLY TAYLOR
molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

A NATIONAL shearer shortage caused by border shutdowns and travel restrictions is creating unprecedented pressure this spring season across the Limestone Coast's agricultural sector.

Tough interstate and overseas travel bans have generated a huge shearing industry employment gap which regional contractors are struggling to fill.

Fast approaching considerably the busiest time of the year for shearers, South East Shearing co-owner Richard Rees said Australia's reliance on New Zealand was making operations difficult.

Traditionally, Australia relies on approximately 500 New Zealand contractors to help shear between five to seven million sheep annually.

Mr Rees said he was currently employing approximately 70 people across South Australia and Victoria which was around 25pc below average than normal.

"The rest of this year is going to be a struggle," Mr Rees said.

"With New Zealand unable to come in and with the borders still blocked it is just going to make it hard.

"Everyone is crying out for workers and farmers are starting to worry they are not going to get their sheep shorn."

During a seasonal period, Mr Rees said it was usually possible to move Victorian shearers to South Australia when necessary, which could also not happen during today's current climate.

"The farmers have been good and they understand what is going on at the moment and everyone has to work together," he said.

Mr Rees said he was among many who have had to turn down new work as he did not have the employees available.

"Basically every contractor around South Australia would be the same boat," he said.

"The sheds are not being filled up. There might be a seven stander, but only three or four shearers might be available.

"Everyone is struggling."

Remaining positive, Mr Rees said it had also provided opportunities which were not available previously.

"We have had some workers who have lost their jobs with previously shearing experience who have come back into the industry," he said.

"We have also employed some young kids who are keen to enter the industry and are looking for work.

"Although it is not heaps of staff, we have and are training up a few more."

Mr Rees said although it was not an easy job, the rewards were there if people were to put in the effort.

"If you want to put in the hard yards, you will be rewarded. You also get to see a lot of the country side and are not stuck at the same place," he said.

Those interested in a career in shearing are encouraged to contact Richard Rees on 0429 679 640.

"We are always willing to put on new workers and those willing to give it a go," he said.

"We need all the help we can get at the moment."

BUILDING PRESSURE: South East Shearing co-owner Richard Rees is concerned for the shearing industry this peak spring season with it under unprecedented pressure due to COVID-19 restrictions which are limiting critical overseas employees to travel to Australia.

Pictures: MOLLY TAYLOR

UNCERTAIN FUTURE: South East Shearing wool handler Michelle Droppers is among many employees who may be feeling the pressure of a shearing industry foreign worker shortage this upcoming spring season.

SHEARING SHORTAGE: South East Shearing overseeing shearer Nathan Hannay may be feeling the building pressure of the inability of New Zealand workers unable to travel to Australia which traditionally play a large role during the peak spring season.

Agricultural towns celebrated

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

MILLCENT will have another tilt at the South Australian Agricultural Town of the Year title, with the 2019 finalist nominated for the award for the second year.

The inaugural finalist will battle it out against 70 towns across the state - including nine from the Limestone Coast - for the prestigious award.

Launched last year, the State Government initiative recognises South Australian towns that are excelling in agricultural practices and the flow on effect they have on communities.

Millicent was selected as one of five finalists from a total of 43 nominations, but the title to drought-stricken Cleve.

However, agribusiness and rural science graduate agronomist Lucy McCourt-Pearce is confident Millicent will perform strongly again in the South Australian Agricultural Town of the Year.

North echoed Ms McCourt-Pearce's comments, adding Millicent farmers are innovative and proactive.

"People here are quite prepared to look at new ideas on how to improve their crop and are prepared to invest to get returns," he said.

"Although we have good land and rainfall, it can also cause problems and farmers continue to look to innovation to combat it."

Primary Industries and Regional Development David Basham said the importance of agriculture and its ability to keep the economy moving had been demonstrated through the challenges of 2020.

"Regional communities play a key role in agriculture and this year's award will no doubt unearth stories of resilience, community spirit and determination," he said.

Visit agtown.com.au to vote prior to October 30, 2020. The 2020 Agricultural Town of the Year will be announced in February 2021 and a community event will be held in April 2021 to celebrate the achievement.

Furner farmer elected as Livestock SA Board member

A FURNER farmer has been announced as one of three new Livestock SA Board members.

Prime lamb producer Richard Kirkland successfully secured his position last month during the board's online annual general meeting along with Kangaroo Island's Marina Gregor and Robert Brokenshire from Mount Compass.

Mr Kirkland manages his mixed farming family enterprise with prime lambs, self-replacing ewes, cattle and cropping near Millicent. He has also worked in the wool industry as a shearer for a decade, shearing through Australia and representing the Australian shearing team in New Zealand.

Also a shearing instructor with TAFE SA, Mr Kirkland also continues to support young shearers and wool handlers holding shearing schools on his property for the last three years.

Two returning members Joe Keynes, Keyneton and Bill Nosworthy, Sheringa were also re-elected to the board. Livestock SA received nine nominations for the five positions.

These members join those continuing for the second year of their two-year term including Treasurer Gillian Fennell, Marla; Allan Piggott, Moorlands; Samantha Neumann, Barossa; Mark Dennis, Koppio and Glen Tilley, Tarlee.

Field sheep and cattle producer Penny Schulz and Kangaroo Island sheep producer Jamie Heinrich both retired from the board at the AGM.

Virtual sales

CASTERTON Saleyards will use a virtual platform to host its annual Joint Agent Spring Store Cattle Sale on Monday, 19 October, launching its 2020/21 selling calendar.

Over 800 head of cattle is expected to be auctioned through the AuctionsPlus sale, with potential buyers and sellers urged to register for the event.

NutrienAg stock agent Greg Bright hoped the virtual format would encourage new buyers to join the sale.

"This sale we anticipate selling more than 800 cattle, which is slightly less than normal due to the current excellent seasonal conditions," Mr Bright said.

The first-time virtual sale will also incur other firsts, with no spectators permitted on site.

"Due to state-wide COVID restrictions on social gatherings, we cannot allow spectators to visit the saleyards to witness the online buying and selling process," Mr Bright said.

"We hope to welcome back our usual spectators, as well as many new faces, to the saleyards sometime in the near future once current Covid restrictions are further eased."

Visit www.auctionsplus.com.au to register.

The auction starts at 12.30pm (Vic time).

Yards open up

WATTLE Range Council relaxed restrictions at Millicent Saleyards this week, reopening the facility to vendors and the general public following several months of limiting access to buyers, agents and staff only.

Wednesday's fortnightly sale at the livestock selling centre ended lengthy measures put in place as part of council's Covid-19 response.

Council chief executive Ben Gower said the facility continued to operate successfully under Covid-19 conditions with good cattle numbers and prices being achieved despite the restrictive environment.

"Based on the current situation, council considers it appropriate that we now look to relax some of the Covid-19 conditions and return operations back to some level of normality," Mr Gower said.

All sale attendees are required to sign in with their contact details upon arrival, wear a face mask while in the selling area, and observe social distancing requirements.

Numbers up at saleyards

WEDNESDAY 659 (38)

NUMBERS lifted slightly as agents yarded 659 head of live weight and open auction cattle. These sold to another large field of trade and processor buyers with both feeders and restockers active across the offering. Quality was generally good with some spring finish over the pens as some heavy bullocks and cows came forward with great weights and finish as the market ranged from firm to dearer in price. Vealer numbers climbed as steers to the trade ranged from 420c to 440c with feeder activity from 405c to 419c as restockers operated from 450c to 495c/kg. Vealer heifers made from 363c to 422c with both the trade and feeders active on these. Yearling steers lifted by 10c to 15c as the trade was active from 392c to 402c with similar heifers returning from 338c to 396c/kg. Feeder steers ranged from 391c to 420c with the feeder heifers selling from 320c to 402c/kg. Restockers sourced yearling steers from 436c to 450c/kg. Grown steers and bullocks ranged from 352c to 395c to the trade with feeder support from 354c to 410c/kg. Grown heifers to the trade ranged from 310c to 380c with feeder activity here from 346c to 382c as manufacturing steers sold from 291c to 352c/kg. Heavy cows remained firm in price as they ranged from 280c to 328c as the lighter selection returned from 270c to 300c while bulls made from 276c to 310c/kg.

NARACOORTE CATTLE
TUESDAY 866 (222)

NUMBERS rose as agents yarded 866 head of live weight and open auction cattle. These sold to the usual field of trade and processor buyers with both feeders and restockers active across the offering. Quality was generally good as spring continues as the market ranged from firm to dearer as trade cattle sold to similar rates as the week before while feeder types lifted this week. Vealer numbers were small as steers returned from 401c to 438c with the heifers selling to 420c/kg. Yearling steers to the trade were firm in price as they made from 370c to a high of 440c in an isolated sale as the yearling heifers sold from 319c to 430c/kg. Feeder cattle lifted by 10c to 20c as steers sold from 374c to 442c as the heifers made from 355c to 425c/kg. Restockers sought supply here paying from 416c to 442c on steers and from 348c to 413c/kg on heifers. Grown steers and bullocks were in short supply as they ranged from 370c to 415c with the grown heifers returning from 268c to 407c as manufacturing steers made up to 330c/kg. Heavy cows were also firm in price as they sold from 285c to 315c with the lighter types to the trade making from 240c to 271c/kg. Feeders were active here paying from 282c to 294c as restockers sought supply to 281c/kg. Heavy bulls sold from 242c to 300c with lighter types selling to 399c/kg.

NARACOORTE SHEEP -

NUMBERS climbed sharply as agents yarded 20,622 lambs and 2701 sheep to total 23,323 head with a rise of nearly 9000 head this week. These sold to a larger array of trade and processor buyers with an extra Victorian order along with a larger number of active restockers who competed strongly for lambs to turn out and grow on. The quality on offer was very good with some superb heavy pens with great weights and finish, as well as being fresh in the skin while an excellent line up of trade types was also presented. Pricing however mainly fell away after the highs of the week before, as both sheep and lamb markets eased by $10 to $12/head with more in places. The restocking lambs bucked this trend to lift by $5 to $7 with the extra orders providing the competition for these lambs. Light lambs to the trade sold from $116 to $142 with the light weight trade 2 and 3 score types returning from $144 to $154/head. Restockers were very active as they sought supply paying from $106 to $118 on lighter weights and from $128 to $150/head for heavier pens. Trade weight 3 score lambs made from $152 to $182/head as they sold from mainly from 750c to 780c/kg cwt. Heavy lambs sold from $174 to $214 as the extra heavy pens made from $204 to the market high of $243/head. Light old lambs made from $110 to $123 with the medium weights returning from $138 to $158 as heavy old lambs sold from $163 to a high of $198/head. Hoggets made from $110 to $180 with light ewes selling to $106/head. Medium weighted ewes returned from $115 to $145 with the heavier types making from $134 to a high of $198/head as most ewes sold from 520c to 580c/kg cwt. Wethers sold from $175 to $215 as rams made from $63 to $130/head.

TOP PICKS OF THE WEEK

SATURDAY VICTORIA

ABC, 7:30pm

Exquisitely designed, with lavish costumes and many elegant bonnets, this historical series is a feast for the eyes. Season three begins tonight in 1848, when a heavily pregnant Queen Victoria (The Cry's Jenna Coleman, pictured left) is shocked by two unexpected arrivals. Her half-sister Princess Feodora (Kate Fleetwood, Harlots) and the deposed French king, Louis Philippe (Vincent Regan), land on her doorstep seeking asylum. At the same time, the Chartist movement threatens the monarchy.

MONDAY SAS AUSTRALIA

SEVEN, 7:30pm

There's no cash prizes and certainly no winners at the end of this star-studded reality slough. Seventeen celebrity recruits have volunteered for the Special Forces selection course, a process that will push them to their physical and mental limits, subjected to extreme endurance tests, sleep deprivation, interrogation and psychological testing. No allowances will be made for the status, age or gender in the gruelling course, led by an elite team of ex-Special Forces soldiers. Former Bali inmate Schapelle Corby (pictured right) is frank about why she wants to take part in such an unpleasant experience: "I've been locked away for a very long time... I'm 43 now. I want to change my life."

TUESDAY THE UPSIDE OF DOWNS

ABC, 9:30pm

Born a generation earlier, 39-year-old actor Julia Hales (pictured above), who lives with Down syndrome, might have been put into an institution. If she were born today, her mother would likely have discovered Julia's condition in pre-natal screening and seriously considered a termination, despite the fact that life has never been better in developed countries for people with Down syndrome and their families. In this thought-provoking documentary, Julia wants to know what mothers-to-be are thinking when faced with the prospect of having a child with Down syndrome. She also meets several families, while showcasing her diverse community and the value they bring.

FRIDAY

THE GRAHAM NORTON SHOW

WIN, 8:30pm

Let's face it, the abbreviated filmed-at-home episodes of Graham Norton's long-running talk show filmed earlier this year belong in a time capsule. While the exuberant host tried his best, they were no substitute for the real deal. For season 28, Norton is back in the studio with a socially distanced audience and a selection of guest stars, both in-person and virtual. The famous big red sofa is a thing of the past, with celebrity guests now separated in pods. Joining Graham tonight is Hollywood star Ewan McGregor, dancer Ashley Banjo and music superstar Miley Cyrus, who will perform her new hit single Midnight Sky.

Coomedian Graham Norton hosts The Graham Norton Show.

Why would you want to be anywhere else?

If you have been searching for a great family home in a convenient and central location, this home is the one for you.

This beautifully positioned home offers a renovated kitchen/dining space with soft close cabinetry, pantry, dishwasher and electric cooking with a separate and cosy lounge accessed from the welcoming entrance area.

The wet areas consist of a central bathroom with separate shower and bath, laundry with lots of space and two separate toilets.

The three bedrooms are well sized and the master contains built-in robes.

The passageway has both linen storage as well as a recessed wall that could be used effectively as a study nook.

The family room is a wonderful addition for a family gathering and contains a built-in bar with sink and power as well as a Gambier Stone Split Rock feature wall.

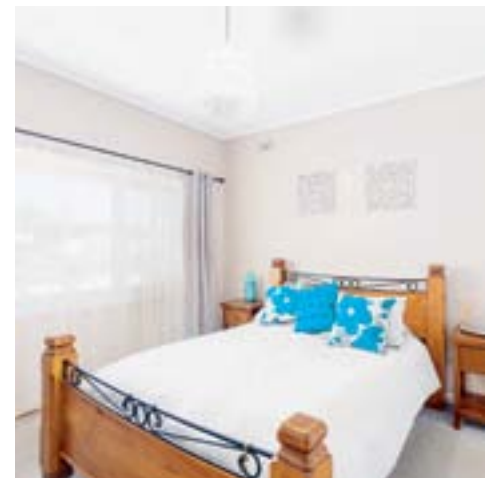

This area opens out to the stamped concrete pergola area where you will find yourself cooking the summer barbecues.

A single garage with roller door provides internal access into the home and with a bit of vision I could see this space being converted into a master bedroom suite with robe and ensuite, as the second toilet is located at the end of the garage.

The backyard provides lush lawns for kids and pets to play all day and includes wood shed, chicken coop and 6m x 6m caravan/boat/carport.

With shedding being so highly sought after, you will be thrilled with the 6m x 12m garage with lights and power and can house a 25ft caravan plus 2.6kW solar system.

Located directly across from Reidy Park Primary School this is a great family home in the sought after Lakes area.

Games to play on road trips

YOUR road trip destination is getting closer by the minute, but the long journey ahead can leave you feeling a little restless.

Let's face it - sometimes listening to the same playlist for hours on end, or a podcast that just doesn't seem to satisfy everybody - can get old fast. If you're looking for ways to pass the time during your restless road trip, switch up the scenery and introduce some games to play in the car. Whether you're on a family road trip or off on an adventure with friends, car games will entertain the crowd for hours on end.

From making use of your car's sound system, to just plain and simple chat - get everyone involved with these fun and simple car games that are sure to make time fly by!

Use your car's sound system

1. Guess the song

Suitable for all ages, this game is a crowd pleaser and takes little to no effort to explain how to play. It's as straight forward as it sounds - simply guess the song! Connect your smartphone to your car's sound system and put a playlist on shuffle - without peaking, the first player to guess the title of the song gets a point. You can even give bonus points for the trifecta - song title, artist and album.

Tip: Don't forget to consider who's in the car with you. Do you have kids in the back or are you road tripping with your friends? If you're playing with the kids, consider what would work for them - maybe a playlist for The Wiggles or songs that you know they love. For an older crowd, try playing in rounds and jump between different genres, artists or eras to switch it up.

2. Finish the lyrics

Test your music knowledge even further and finish the lyrics. Play a song of your choice and press pause for a player to finish the lyrics from where it left off.

Tip: Extra points for performance and delivery - sing your heart out for that extra advantage!

No equipment required

3. I spy

A classic game for the whole family - you can never go wrong with I Spy. Choose something in sight and start the game - "I spy with my little eye something beginning with..." and the first letter of the object you choose. The player who can guess the object wins.

Tip: To up the difficulty, consider setting a limit on the number of guesses that can be made before the player who started off the game automatically wins.

4. Categories

A game of categories will truly test your knowledge! Start with a category - depending on who you're road tripping with, choose something that works for everybody. Categories better suited for kids could be about topics like fruits, vegetables or animals. For an older crowd, try choosing something a bit more challenging like capital cities or languages. Everyone takes turns naming something in that category until someone's mind goes blank.

Tip: You can choose to end the game once the first player is out or play elimination until the last player is standing.

5. I'm going on a picnic

This game is all about memory. Start with "I'm going on a picnic and I'm taking..." an item that starts with the letter A. The aim of the game is to choose an item that starts with the next letter of the alphabet and repeating all the items said before you. The first player will start with the letter A, the next player will start with the letter B, and so on.

For example:

First player: I'm going on a picnic and I'm taking apples.

Second player: I'm going on a picnic and I'm taking apples and bananas.

Third player: I'm going on a picnic and I'm taking apples, bananas and capsicums.

Play elimination until the last player is left to be crowned a memory master.

Tip: Challenge other players by choosing a long-winded answer - "I'm going on a picnic and I'm taking an alpaca named Alex".

6. Would you rather

Would you rather be able to look back in time or look into the future? The best would you rather questions will leave someone stuck between a rock and a hard place. Think of something challenging, funny, gross or just plain simple - this is a great way to get to know the inner workings of someone's brain.

And there you have it! Try out these simple games to play in the car that are sure to keep you entertained for hours on end.

Border closure brings new life

South Australia’s favourite seaside town has become home for the McLachlan family after they were forced to flee their rural property just hours before imminent border closures.

SUSIE, Andrew and children Angus, 12, and Poppy, 9, made the sudden decision to leave their farm, which neighbours the Victoria-South Australia border, when harsh Covid-19 restrictions were implemented.

With land stretching both sides of the border, the family’s home was technically located in Victoria, but their driveway in South Australia, creating a unique situation of logistics and headaches.

Ms McLachlan said there was no viable way they were able to stay at their property as they would be essentially “locked-in” until borders re-opened.

“In the end we arrived home from football in Naracoorte one Saturday morning, packed up and left to move to Robe in four hours,” she said.

“It was quite disorientating.

“I think we were incredibly fortunate to have an alternative and a place familiar to us.”

Ms McLachlan said if they did not move, they would have been reliant on another party dropping groceries to the property’s

South Australian side gate.

“That was just not feasible, my mother in law is over 80 and I have two young children,” she said.

“A major concern would have been accessing medical treatment and the expenses involved.

“I think there were a few other people who were in the same boat as us.”

Ms McLaughlin said she and her family were grateful for the community’s support since their relocation.

“The community here is very strong and I think it is just about one of the most beautiful places in the world,” she said.

“I think the opportunity for kids to be able to go to the beach, get outside and catch up with friends is important and it is a well-resourced community.

“They have been welcomed so warmly by Robe Primary School and have been very inspirational actually.”

For the past two years, Ms McLachlan has been focusing her efforts on a project, founding her business Mindful Nutrients involving a micronutrient blend scientifically proven to boost mood and anxiety.

“I feel like I have a real mission with what I am doing, so there has been this tension as I know I need time to settle into this new life,” she said.

“I know I am dealing with quite a lot, but it is so important to keep progressing with the goals I am setting for my business and the community.”

Ms McLachlan said she was remaining positive and considered Covid-19 to be almost a blessing.

“I really believe crisis can actually make you a better person and allows people to contribute more,” she said.

“It opens up the understanding of how challenging life can be and you want to make sure, you can do what you can for others.

“It is very easy to get stuck and often people do not want to talk about the things which are hard.”

Reflecting on the past two months, Ms McLachlan said she hoped the crisis had changed people’s outlook on life.

“I was born with one hand and I probably do not think about things in the way most people do,” she said.

“It is important to get to know people and not judge them on the surface.

“There are a lot of lonely people and we can make a difference by change by just saying hello.”

Ms McLachlan said her family had settled into Robe nicely and were taking each day as it came.

MADE THE MOVE: Susie McLachlan and her family were forced to re-locate to Robe from their Victoria-South Australia bordering rural property when imminent border closures were imposed around two months ago. Since, they have made the popular coastal tourist destination their new home and Ms McLaughlan has found time to focus on herself and her business.

Drastic Robe greenery slash

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@btwtoday.com.au

ROBE’S city business district has been temporarily stripped bare of greenery with several ageing trees uprooted from pavement after being declared hazardous to the public.

Late last month, seven various long-standing trees were removed from the seaside town’s main street by council as part of an urgent works project costing almost $8000.

A traffic management report completed by Tonkin discovered a traffic line of sight issue which began investigation into the stability of tree structure across Robe.

Robe District Council chief executive officer James Holyman said investigations revealed trees had begun visibly moving, borer was present and many were posing damaging threats to heritage-listed buildings.

“From a community and safety perspective, I think we have done the right thing and we have had a lot of positive feedback about the street feeling more open,” he said.

“We did not want to take them out, but we had a couple which were leaning back towards buildings which looked like they were only being held up by the road and curb.

“We also had some which had some significant tree borer, so the decision came down to the safety of the community and protection of the private assets ... We would not have done it otherwise.”

Mr Holyman said it was always sad to remove historical green life, but he believed people needed to begin developing a mindset around green assets having a set lifespan.

“Trees have a life expectancy and unless you do certain things when installing them, which did not happen in this case, Gum Trees are also not really street trees,” he said.

“We are going to work with the community to chose some appropriate trees to replace what was taken out.

“It might take some time as even though the curb has been ground down, there could still roots and base of the trees and ground needs to settle.

“We do not want to put something in there and it sinks or inappropriately grows.”

The expected timeframe for new green-life installation is expected to be around six to 12 months.

“There are a lot of considerations as we evaluate our options, but we want to put something in there which is appropriate,” Mr Holyman said.

TREE REMOVAL: Robe District Council chief executive officer James Holyman stands on Victoria Street, where seven various long-standing trees were recently removed after being declared a community safety hazard.

“We have to take into account the coastal conditions we have here, particularly the westerly winds in winter which go straight down that street.”

Mr Holyman said although significant green life had been removed from Robe, extensive replanting had already begun in other surrounding areas.

“During this year’s business planning, council allocated $4000 towards greenery in Robe, so there is intention over time to do more,” he said.

“We bought 2000 plants which were installed in at Fox and Hooper beaches and we had re-seeded three other city areas.

“Even though these trees were removed, we are replanting in other areas.”

'Forever' home for five

SEVEN years after Ben and Jess Peters decided to become foster carers with ac.care, they have legal guardianship of five siblings who have found their "forever home" with the Limestone Coast couple.

Ben and Jess initially welcomed two toddler sisters into their home.

But four weeks later the girls' baby brother was born.

"We did the obvious thing and welcomed him into our home so the three could stay together," Jess explained.

"Back then we never knew they would be with us forever - let alone that another two sisters would later be born and join our family."

The two biological sisters born after their brother joined the Peters household as their family grew to a household of seven.

The couple secured legal guardianship of the five children this year after becoming foster carers in 2013.

"Here we are, a family forever," Jess said following the legal decision for the children, who range in age from three to nine.

"It has been very rewarding to know that we have been able to keep the family together.

"They have such a close bond and growing up together means they have the opportunity to support each other through life and are sharing experiences and memories in childhood."

The couple, aged in their 30s, have cared for 25 children across respite, emergency, short and long-term care, but are now focused on the five siblings, as well as recently welcoming a sixth child - a baby unrelated to the five siblings - into their long-term care.

Jess said being a foster carer was something she always wanted to do, even as a child.

"By the time I was in my 20s and had met Ben, we made the choice together to start our foster care journey," she said.

"Fostering allows you to give back to your community and make a difference in a little person's future and then, in turn, future generations.

"We do just feel like a normal family though, maybe a little quirker than the average family, but just a family all the same."

ac.care foster care manager Dani Atkinson praised Jess and Ben for their dedication to foster care and ongoing commitment to the five siblings now under their guardianship, as well as the baby now also in their long-term care.

"It is a wonderful outcome for those children to remain together in a safe, stable and loving home," Ms Atkinson said.

"We see diverse outcomes for foster care placements, sometimes with carers obtaining guardianship and other situations in which children are reunited with birth families, but our aim is always to provide stability, safety and a caring environment for young people."

The agency supports more than 200 registered foster carer families last financial year to provide safe homes and positive relationships to more than 375 young people across eastern regional South Australia who are unable to live with their birth families.

However, with the impact of COVID-19 on vulnerable families expected to prompt an increase in the number of young people in need of support, the agency hopes to recruit a further 30 foster carers this year.

Ms Atkinson said the agency welcomed inquiries from anyone interested in becoming a foster carer, with opportunities to commit to long-term, short-term or respite care.

"We would love to hear from anyone interested in finding out more about foster care and whether the time is right for them to open their heart and home to a young person in need," Ms Atkinson said.

More information about foster care is available at accare.org.au, by emailing care@accare.org.au or by calling 1300 ACCARE (1300 222 273) during business hours.

INSTANT FAMILY: Jess and Ben Peters have become legal guardians of five siblings they welcomed into their home and are now also foster carers for an additional baby boy, who is unrelated to the sibling group.

Covid confidence as cafe opens

WINE AND DINE: Hollick Estates restaurant and cafe manager Hannah Timms is part of the team who have been behind the successful launch of the establishment's Cafe in the Vines which opened its doors to the public in June despite the risks Covid-19 presents.

THE gamble in establishing a permanent cafe during uncertain times has paid off for Hollick Estates as the successful Coonawarra enterprise continues to expand its cultural reach.

After its popular restaurant was forced to close momentarily earlier this year due to Covid-19, the Penola-based wine company experimented ways to continue providing wholesome hearty service to the surrounding community.

The long-standing estate made the decision to launch its Cafe in the Vines during June, after an overwhelming response was received from a temporary on-site food van.

Communicating with council, the Racecourse Road property transformed a heritage-listed cottage into homely, rustic coffee shop.

Restaurant and cafe manager Hannah Timms said although she believed beginning a new business during Covid-19 was a risk, the risk had been worth it.

"It was such a risk, but all we did was hope it was going to succeed," Ms Timms said.

"It was one of those things where we would rather try and give it a go.

"We now have such an amazing site which is just not one thing, but so many great businesses under the one umbrella."

Ms Timms said earlier this year when COVID-19 restrictions were implemented, it was common knowledge people were missing daily human interaction.

"For us, we had to close our restaurant and we were stuck working in offices. We soon learnt there is a reason why we are in the jobs we are in," she said.

"I love talking to people and sharing my passion for food and wine, so I was really missing it."

Ms Timms said the decision to introduce a food van was made quickly and the response was instantly overwhelming.

"We knew a lot of locals had been at home for so long and people were missing the small things just like the quick hello," she said.

"We happened to find a food van in Penola and it took just a few bits and pieces to get it together.

"We knew we could not do what we were doing before, but we thought about all the hearty food and drinks we could provide."

Adopting delivering services, Ms Timms said the plan was to branch out and spread positivity to as many people in the region as possible.

"The whole Limestone Coast region had been quite safe and healthy and things were starting to reopen again," she said.

"This is when the permanent cafe idea was brainstormed, as a way we could build on our already well-established site and continue provide our quality customer service."

The cafe is based in a rustic cottage which was formerly Hollick Estates' original tasting room, having been used as a multi-purpose sitting space over the years.

Ms Timms said there had been ongoing dreams to use the building for everyday use.

"In a couple of weeks after getting approval, we had this gorgeous cafe," she said.

"We have had people from Adelaide coming down to the region to support the community who said they had never been here before.

"The word spread quickly. I am a big believer in customer service and we are so lucky we have such a kind-hearted community."

Ms Timms said the establishment of the cafe allowed all staff to remain employed during uncertain times.

"Not only did we reopen our restaurant, but with a cafe and we have grown our business during today's current climate which is very exciting," she said.

"As people can not go very far at the moment, we have people coming from across the Limestone Coast just for a drive.

"We are so proud of what this space has created, not only for staff, but also those who walk through the doors."

'Tuff' experience for Mount Gambier students

NORTH Primary School recently had an exclusive visit of thanks from South Australia Police and Australian Defence Force.

Before the holiday break, students wrote letters of gratitude to police officers, military personnel, nurses and support staff who have been working around the clock during the Covid-19 crisis.

SAPOL and ADF personnel visited the education site to provide a presentation thanking students during an end-of-term assembly.

Service men and women were grateful for the support and made the effort to attend the school and present gifts including two special minted coins and a hardcopy acknowledgement.

Mr Harmer accepted these tokens on behalf of the school and was overwhelmed by the gesture.

Following the presentation, SAPOL and ADF helped host special event Tuff Truck.

The event was a family-friendly boot camp style experience involving tire flipping, bar raisers, tug of war, heavy bucket challenge and a mud race.

Families were encouraged to participate and students and parents alike had fun during the challenge.

Keeping active on holidays

Port MacDonnell Community Complex hosted a successful October school holiday program with around 150 participants across its in-library activities.

A trial of take-home craft packs also proved popular with over 100 sent out across the two-week period.

Weekly Story Time sessions also resumed for the first time since early 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Grant District Council staff worked hard during Term 3 to adapt its programming to coronavirus restrictions.

The successful school holiday program was complemented by the popularity of Port MacDonnell's new pump track, which was frequented by residents and visitors alike.

Community facilities were turned in to makeshift hospital during the Spanish Flu outbreak of 1918-19 - scenes familiar in overseas countries during Covid-19 but thankfully not yet in Australia.

Insight into past pandemic

A viral pandemic is not new to Australia. Back in 1919, when local communities were still getting over the horror and senseless loss of life associated with World War I, the world was hit by an outbreak of the Spanish Flu. There were similarities with what the country is going through now, evidenced by newspaper reports at the time - the banning of indoor entertainment and the isolation of patients sound all too familiar. This extract from the Health Department pamphlet was published at the time.

A SMALL pamphlet has been issued by the Health Department dealing with signs of the disease, how the patient should be treated, and precautions to be taken to avoid infection.

The following extracts may prove interesting at the present juncture:

SIGNS OF DISEASE

The disease must be deemed to be probably present in every case of fever with headache and pains in the back and limbs. There is usually more or less prostration, frequently with signs of catarrh (excessive mucus build-up) and sometimes other symptoms such as vomiting, diarrhea and bleeding at the nose. Very great prostration, rapid and difficult breathing, altered colour and pains in the chest indicate serious complications.

In every case the patient should be placed in bed and a medical practitioner summoned as speedily as possible.

ISOLATION

By far the most important measure is the isolation of the sick. If the patient is not removed, he or she should be kept in bed in a well-lighted, well-ventilated room. No visitors should be permitted. Only one person in charge of the patient at any time should enter the room, and such person should take all possible precautions. The usual rules should be observed to prevent the disease being carried to others by drinking vessels, spoons, towels etc after time in the sick room. Cases with complications should be kept separate from simple cases.

PREVENTION

Crowds of all kinds should be avoided in streets... trains and indoor gatherings. The disease is largely spread by patients with mild attacks, convalescents and 'carriers' coughing without restraint, so that fine particles are shot into the air. All coughing should be smothered by a handkerchief or rag, which afterwards should be boiled or burnt. Gargles, sprays and inhalations are decidedly useful. A good, simple gargle is made with a flat teaspoonful of boracic acid, one of common salt and one of bicarbonate of soda, dissolved in a quart of warm water. It should be used before leaving home and upon returning. It may also serve as a douche for the nostrils. Inoculation with the special vaccine, according to experience in South Africa, probably lessens the liability to attack, and in more decided degree protects from complications. Masks covering the mouth and nose, properly made and properly applied, give a considerable degree of protection. They should be frequently renewed and sterilized by boiling. Those of the simplest, effective make are best. They should be used by all those brought into contact with patients. There is no reason for any panic. Fear is cowardly and very injurious. Cheerfulness increases resistance and prevents complications.

HEALTH DEPARTMENT PAMPHLET

DUTY OF CITIZENS

With a view to successfully celebrating the visitation the Government has, on the advice of the medical officers, issued a series of regulations. These provide that the occupier of every house wherein any person is suffering from influenza or the symptoms influenza shall report the occurrence in writing to the Town Clerk or Shire Clerk of the Municipal District in which the house is, and give the name, age and sex of the patient. The medical officer has also to make a similar report.

ISOLATION OF PATIENT

Every patient is to be isolated at his or her residence, or if such residence is unsuitable in the opinion of the Officer of Health, at any special place provided for the purpose, and every patient treated elsewhere than at a public hospital shall be kept in isolation until the Officer of Health gives consent to his release. It is also provided that every contact shall submit to such treatment or preventative measures (which may include isolation) as the Officer of Health specifies, and for such period as he directs. No person other than the nurse or necessary attendants shall visit any patient in any private house except under conditions specified by the Officer of Health.

Power is also given to the Council to have house-to-house visitation made, in order to ascertain whether any case of influenza exists or whether the regulations are being observed, and the Officer of Health and any other officer authorized by the Council may isolate any house or part of a house wherein there is a patient. The Council may also order the cleaning, purifying, ventilation and disinfecting of houses, schools, churches and other places of assembly by the occupier.

PENALTY FOR NEGLECT

It is provided that any person who fails to comply with the regulations or is guilty of any neglect or disobedience of them is liable to a penalty not exceeding 20 pounds and to a penalty not exceeding five pounds nor less than one pound for each day during which such an offence is continued, besides any cost or expense which may be incurred in remedying the default.

SWEETCORN AND BROCCOLI SLICE

Prep & cool: 50 mins
Serves: 8

Ingredients

- 8 eggs
- 1/3 cup gluten free flour
- 1/3 cup milk
- 1 head broccoli
- 1 x 400-420 grams can of corn kernels
- 1 handful of fresh parsley or chives
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Olive oil or butter for greasing baking dish
- ½ cup grated cheddar or mozzarella cheese (optional)

Method

1. Preheat oven to 180 C and grease a square baking dish with olive oil or butter
2. Drain the corn kernels and set aside
3. Chop the broccoli into very fine florets; almost like a very chunky broccoli “rice”. Roughly chop the herbs
4. Mix together the corn, broccoli and herbs (plus the cheese if you are using it) and spread evenly into the baking dish
5. Whisk together the eggs, then whisk in the flour, milk and salt and pepper to taste
6. Pour the egg mixture evenly over the rest of the ingredients. Bake in the oven for approximately 35 minutes, or until the slice has set and the top is golden brown
7. Allow to cool slightly before slicing into pieces.

Note:

- The slice can be kept in the fridge for around 4 days
- You don't need to use gluten free flour if you don't need the recipe to be gluten free. Simply use plain flour (white or wholemeal) instead
- For a dairy free slice, use a non-dairy milk and omit the cheese
- Instead of the fresh herbs, you can add some slice spring onion or some roughly chopped baby spinach

WHOLEMEAL VEGETABLE AND PUMPKIN SEED MUFFINS

Prep & cook: 40 mins
Serves: 6

Ingredients

- ½ cup pumpkin, roughly chopped in 1cm dices
- ½ cup zucchini, roughly chopped in 1cm dices
- ½ cup spring onions, sliced
- 1 large handful baby spinach leaves
- 1 cup skim milk
- 2 eggs
- A pinch pepper to taste
- 2 cup wholemeal flour
- 1 tsp baking powder
- 2 tbsp pumpkin seeds
- Low fat cream cheese, to serve

Method

1. Preheat oven to 180c.
2. Place pumpkin into a microwave-safe bowl, cover with water and cook in the microwave for 3 minutes or until slightly softened. Drain and add zucchini, spring onions and spinach.
3. Lightly beat eggs and milk, pour over the vegetables and season.
4. Sift flour and baking powder over the top and stir until just combined.
5. Spoon mixture into baking paper lined, non-stick muffin trays, sprinkling with pumpkin seeds, and bake for 25 minutes or until done.
6. Top with low fat cream cheese to serve

RASPBERRY ALMOND MUFFINS

Prep & cook: 50 minutes
Serves: 8

Ingredients

- 250g self-raising flour
- 100g ground almonds
- 150g caster sugar
- ½ tsp bicarbonate of soda
- 3 eggs
- 300mL buttermilk
- Zest of a lemon or orange
- 1 vanilla bean, seeds scraped or 1 tsp of vanilla extract
- 100mL olive or other vegetable oil
- 250g fresh or frozen raspberries, plus extra to top
- Flaked almonds, to top

Method

1. Preheat oven to 180C. Line a muffin tray with muffin liners and set aside.
2. In a large bowl, combine the flour, ground almonds, sugar and bicarbonate of soda.
3. In another bowl whisk together the eggs with the buttermilk, zest, vanilla and oil until smooth.
4. Pour the wet ingredients into the dry ingredients and mix until just combined. Gently stir in the raspberries and divide the batter amongst 8 muffin liners.
5. Top each muffin with 3 raspberries and a scattering of flaked almonds.
6. Bake in the preheated oven for 30 minutes or until a skewer comes out clean when inserted.
7. Allow to cool for a few minutes in the tin then transfer to a wire rack to cool completely.

Curtains close in Penola... for now

MOLLY TAYLOR

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

THIS year is one of only a handful the Penola Players have not filled the Rymill Hall with its traditional warmth and laughter through its annual theatre performances.

The entertainment group have declared it will not be celebrating its 70th anniversary milestone this year with the Penola and surrounding region due to COVID-19 restrictions.

It was declared unviable for members to take the stage and perform a remake of British comedy film Not Now, Darling.

Group secretary and playwright Annie Kilsby said she and many others were looking forward to celebrating and being involved in the significant anniversary production.

Ms Kilsby said it would have also been fitting to provide an outlet of fun to the community during the current climate.

"I think it would have been great to put something on, but due to restrictions, it has not been an option," she said.

"I think groups like this are very important. It is a morale booster and brightens things up for people.

NOT NOW, DARLING: Barry Lemmey, Johanna Berkin, Barry Mulligan, Brian Larkin, Annie Kilsby, Gwen Balnaves and Margaret Ross-Smith all perform Now Now, Darling in October 1981.

BLAST FROM THE PAST: John Adamson and Jean Ey perform while part of The Younger Set, which eventually became The Penola Players in 1950.

With Penola founded in 1850, the group morphed into what it is today after the Penola Dramatics Society was established in 1892.

In 1946, youth named the group The Younger Set and performed revues, before the official The Penola Players was established in 1950.

Ms Kilsby said she and members were flabbergasted the group had survived and reached its 70-year milestone and thanked the community for its ongoing support.

the community and believed they were something many looked forward to each year.

"I think it is just because it is different and quirky," she said.

"People these days are so used to looking at computer screens and televisions, so to get out there and see people acting out a comedy is just out of the ordinary.

"People stop me in the street and ask when the next performance is and I think they love love seeing people they know up on the stage."

Involved with the group since 1978, Ms Kilsby said this year's chosen play was significantly special for her as it was the first production she was involved with when she began her amateur acting journey.

"I have been involved with Penola Players for over 40 years, beginning when I first moved to Penola and this play (Not Now, Darling) was the first I was ever involved in. Is a bit personal for me," she said.

Not Now, Darling plans to be performed instead in 2021.

Ms Kilsby said performances had always been well-received by

CURTAINS CLOSE: The Penola Players secretary and playwright Annie Kilsby and president Marie Cheers are hoping this year's anticipated annual performance can be held next year, with the 2020 event cancelled due to Covid-19 concerns.

Exceptional numbers at Coonawarra

molly.taylor@tbwtoday.com.au

REVELLERS are flocking to the Limestone Coast region in peak holiday season numbers according to a leading Coonawarra event organiser.

Coonawarra Cabernet Celebrations kicked off at the beginning of October with over 60 unique food and wine experiences highlighting the region's best Cabernet Sauvignon.

The monthly event is considered one of South Australia's best regional wine-based festival with each week and weekend featuring consistent themes.

Coonawarra Vignerons acting executive officer and events and marketing coordinator Heidi Eldridge said this year's celebrations were so far a success with exceptional participant attendance reported by vendors.

"We have had a tremendous response from wineries and cellar doors seeing the visitation has been limited due to Covid-19," Ms Eldridge said.

"The border closures have not deterred South Australians and locals from travelling and visiting region.

"We have had a few people suggest there was some people from Queensland and New South Wales who are in the region at the moment, which is fantastic."

The festival was launched with its Coonawarra Golf Day hosted at the Penola Golf Course, involving 26 teams of winery experts, sponsors and also the general public.

REGIONAL CELEBRATIONS: Raidis Estate cellar door manager Claire Gleeson is looking forward to Coonawarra Vignerons's Regional Cabernet Decadence event hosted at the estate today, featuring 14 Coonawarra wineries in a tasting which showcased the ageing ability of the region's signature Cabernet Sauvignon variety.
Picture: MOLLY TAYLOR

Ms Eldridge said visitors had travelled from Mannum, Mount Barker and Adelaide with the intention to stay not just for the event, but for the whole weekend and explore Coonawarra and the whole Limestone Coast region.

"We are all about encouraging people to go from caves to the coast to the wineries. It is about making everything successful and it is one of the things we have focused on this year," she said.

"One winery has said it has been busier than Easter which is fantastic to hear as it is a very measurable time of year and one of the busiest.

"Another has said it has been as good as our Cellar Dwellers period, which is another time when there is more traffic coming through than the average general weekend.

"I have everything from good to exceptional in the first few weekends which is fantastic."

Recognising Penola's limited supply in accommodation, Ms Eldridge said although it was encouraged for people to stay in Coonawarra, it was just as convenient to have a day outing instead.

"It is where staying in surrounding areas and then coming across, comes into play and we hope they can explore the whole region," she said.

"The focus is to draw people from away, but that being set, there are just as many locals here too."

"If there were people in the area thinking about a wine tour or visit, it is a good time to do it because not only will there be those special tastings, they are offering pairings with cheese and wine, chocolate and wine, cabernet pies, produce platters, wine maker dinners and many optional extras."

Ms Eldridge said the biggest impact Covid-19 had on the event was the structure around hosting events and limited visitation ability due to border closures.

"A lot of the bigger events have fallen away because the restrictions in place currently," she said.

"There was great concern during July when Cellar Dwellers was held and borders were closed, acknowledging the amount of Victorian people who would usually visit.

"With the restrictions changing now, there may have been room for these events to go ahead, but instead there is emphasis on the intimacy and exclusiveness of events and acknowledging people need to book to attend anything which requires seating."

Today, Coonawarra Vignerons will host its Regional Cabernet Decadence event featuring 14 Coonawarra wineries in a tasting which showcased the ageing ability of the region's signature Cabernet Sauvignon variety at Raidis Estate.

Penley Pours with Fodder Feast will be held on 30 October involving a six course dinner paired thoughtfully with wines exclusively from Penley Estate.

On 25 October, the final festival celebration weekend is themed En Primeur (barrel to glass) with wineries offering dedicated barrel to glass tastings.

LIMESTONE COAST STUDENTS BACK TO SCHOOL FOR TERM 4

STUDENTS across the Limestone Coast returned back to school this week eager to begin Term 4.

Education sites are already in full swing with facilities coordinating a range of unique activities and interactive events for the schooling community.

Many sites introduced a no hat, no play policy this week as warmer weather and summer rays start to sweep the region.

Today, Yahl Primary School will host its celebratory Footsteps event after a week of jiving and learning new moves in conjunction with its annual Colour Run.

Reigning premiers stand tall

CENTRAL Baseball Club showed why it is the reigning Mount Gambier and District Baseball League premier, with an impressive 8-4 win over South Indians on Saturday night.

The Blue Lake Sports Park venue hosted a twilight fixture for the opening round, with the two clubs trading blows throughout the contest.

South opened the scoring in the first inning to put Centrals on notice, as Jesse Balshaw walked home from third with the bases loaded.

Centrals hit back at the top of the second as Koby Chant scored on Brad Lynagh's safe-hit and Alex Ridding crossed home as a result of an error from Lynagh's hit.

Kayll McClean added another to the tally in the fourth inning, batted in by Alex Ridding, then Jordan Aston made it home from first base off a McClean hit deep into the outfield.

By that stage the writing was on the wall but the valiant Indians fought back, with singles to Deklin Joyce, Balshaw and later Ryan Placucci.

Central finished the night with 13 safe hits, two walks, six RBIs, seven strike outs, two errors and left 10 runners on base.

South managed nine safe hits, four walks, four RBIs, nine strike outs, eight errors and left nine runners on base.

Meanwhile Millicent celebrated its return to Division 1 competition when they shut out an undermanned Federal, mercying them in the eighth inning with a 10-0 victory.

Millicent scored in all but two innings with the first run coming in the second.

Tim Niewenhuizen crossed home, after getting aboard from Craig Chittleborough's deep hit to right-field.

In the bottom of the second Jack Hateley's safe hit saw him at first and he was followed by a safety from Darcy Pink.

Hateley scored on a passed ball while Pink was batted in by Anthony Mutton.

From there the Bandits controlled the game, a Niewenhuizen lead off the fifth inning with a three bagger and scored on Anthony Mutton's safe-hit to left-field.

He subsequently touched the homeplate on Chittleborough's safety to centre-field.

Two more runs were added in the seventh and the game was completed in the eighth whe Niewenhuizen hit safely and scored hi fourth run.

In the end it was an outstanding performance from Millicent in its return to the big league.

The Bandits had 12 safe-hits, six base on ball, eight RBIs, nine strike outs, 12 left on base and made two errors.

An undermanned Federal struggled all day with just three safe-hits, three base on ball, four strike outs, left four runners on base and made two errors.

PACE: South's Dean Hamilton lets loose on the mound during round one of Division 1 baseball Saturday night.

FOUL BALL: Centrals' batter Kody Shaw sends a ball back over the fence.

Medhurst in fine form

A SUSTAINED effort over three competitions saw Max Medhurst claim the high gun award for the Mount Gambier Gun Club's monthly shoot on Sunday.

Medhurst hit the ground running in the opening event under sunny skies, with little wind to effect accuracy.

He claimed the win in the OG Roberts and Co 50-target Balltrap Championship with a score of 47/50, ahead of Peter Winser with 45/50.

Steve Chambers (46/50) claimed B Grade from Surasak Pienudonkijlert (45/50), while Bob Atkinson (41/52) edged out Garry Bowd (40/52) to win C Grade.

The Jens Town Hall Hotel 30-target Single Barrel event was keenly shot with some top scores attained.

A shoot off was required to separate the top four AA Grade shooters and Medhurst continued his solid form with the win from a score of 45/46, ahead of Greg Kessegian with 4/46.

Brian Spring (28/30) won A Grade from Garry Schmidt (28/33), Stuart Bowd (26/30) took B Grade from Scott Fleming (28/33) and Peter Klieve (28/33) claimed C Grade from Stuart Humphries (27/33).

The Creek Livestock 25-target handicap was well contested, with shooters varying from the 15-metre mark back to 25 metres for the seasoned shooters.

Another shoot off was required and this time Stuart Bowd finished on top with 32/33.

Atkinson (31/33), Bernie Peters (27/29), Stuart Humphries (25/27) and Darren Beyer (26/29) rounded out the placings.

Medhurst did enough to comfortably claim the SE Autotrade high gun honours with a total of 97/105.

The next competition will be held on November 14.

CREEK LIVESTOCK 25-TARGET HANDICAP: Sponsor Dave Fraser with Bernie Peters, Darren Beyer, Stuart Humphries, Bob Atkinson and Stuart Bowd.

TOP HONOURS: Mount Gambier Gun Club president Andrew Hoare presents Max Medhurst with his prize for the SE Autotrade high gun win at the monthly shoot on Sunday.

BLACK CROW CLUB DONORS: Gavin Height and Andrew McKinnon.

JENS TOWN HALL HOTEL 30-TARGET SINGLE BARREL: B Grade winnerer Stuart Bowd, AA Grade winner Max Medhurst and A Grade winner Brian Spring.

OG ROBERTS AND CO 50-TARGET BALLTRAP: Sponsor Bryce Roberts with AA Grade winner Max Medhurst, B Grade winner Peter Winser and C Grade winner Bob Atkinson.

No Gold Cup in December

ON THE RAILS WITH DAVID GILBERT

FRIDAY December 4 was the date allocated for the Mount Gambier Gold Cup for the 2020-21 racing season.

As most are aware, the Glenburnie course proper has been out of action since April and Mount Gambier meetings up until the end of October were transferred to other Limestone Coast tracks.

It is now expected racing will not return to Glenburnie until next autumn and the December 4 meeting has been given to the Penola club.

As for the Mount Gambier Gold Cup race itself, the Mount Gambier committee will meet in the New Year to decide if and when the race will be run prior to the end of the current season.

HALLIDAY BROADENING HER HORIZONS

RENDELISHAM raised apprentice Libby Halliday has had a new lease of life in her quest to cement her career as a jockey.

Initially Halliday was indentured to the Michael O'Leary stable but moved camp when Glenburnie trainers Bob and Kane Post took her on board a couple of months ago.

Halliday, who has always shown potential from day one, believed there were more opportunities to be gained by transferring to the Post stable.

Already it has proved fruitful with Halliday showing she is not afraid to travel long distances to accept rides.

At her first ride on the dirt surface at Port Augusta on August 30, Halliday booted home a winner at double-figure odds for trainer Darren Bonetti, then promptly made it a double in the following race with a winner for fellow Port Augusta trainer Trevor Montgomerie.

Just recently, Halliday headed to Port Lincoln and, like Port Augusta, saluted with a winner at her first ride on the track on the emergency runner Kissable Eight ($17), also for the Montgomerie stable.

In between, she gave Penola trainer Rob Lepley an overdue winner when Cosmic Charm rattled home to win at Naracoorte last month.

On Wednesday, Halliday had five rides on the seven-race card at Penola to further justify her decision to endeavour to pick up more rides.

OPTIMISM DURING HARD TIMES

IT is a well known fact harness racing in South Australia has been in decline for several years.

The classic example is the South Australian Harness Racing Club which races at Globe Derby Park, the headquarters of the sport in this state, with its ongoing financial problems of major proportions.

The number of clubs still racing on their own track in the state has been reduced to just a handful.

One club defying the odds and continuing on is Mount Gambier which has for some time survived on a shoestring budget.

Thanks to an extremely resilient, dedicated army of volunteers, Mount Gambier continues to soldier on.

There is no doubt the covid-19 pandemic is affecting the local club far worse than any other club in SA, simply because of our location next to the Victorian border.

Mount Gambier, unlike the other clubs in South Australia, relies very heavily on Victorian horses, owners and trainers to stage a full meeting.

As with other local sports, current border restrictions are not helping the Mount Gambier club's cause.

Harness racing in Victoria has not been affected to anywhere near the same degree, with full programmes thanks to a much larger pool of horses.

In comparison, there is only a small number of pacers in the Limestone Coast, hence there is no way the Mount Gambier club can currently conduct a six-race program.

For the sake of the sport and its participants, the Mount Gambier and Port Pirie clubs have opted to co-share six meetings up until the New Year.

Newly elected club president Simon Phillips is confident the Mount Gambier club can weather the storm and eventually return to staging a full program here.

"The situation is improving with the border bubble moved out to 70 kilometres last week, which will now enable Heywood and Portland stables to bring horses across and boost our numbers," Phillips stated.

FIRE STILL IN THE BELLY

MOST people at 76 years of age are retired and quite happy to put up their feet and watch life glide by.

Not so for Burrungule's Bill Drury who continues to train and drive pacers.

Drury is showing that he can still mix it with the best of them, even at city level.

Last Saturday night at Globe Derby Park, Drury was in the winner's stall after the opening race when Mighty Regal ($4.80) won a heat of the NR up to 50 pace over 1800 metres.

With Drury in the sulky, Mighty Regal did plenty of work outside of the leader and proved too good by 1.6 metres.

"He hit the front and just got rolled a fortnight ago and we expected a big showing last Saturday night," a rather chuffed Drury explained.

"Wins are few and far between for me these days and I've got to make the most of them."

Drury had every reason to be over the moon as it was over 10 years ago since his last Adelaide winner.

"Buckleup Billy won the Glencoe cup here in March 2010 and then went on to win at Globe Derby three weeks later," he said.

Drury will hope his good fortune continues tomorrow night at Globe Derby Park when Mighty Regal returns to compete in the final of the series.

Not to be outdone, his son David made sure the Drury name had a night to remember just over an hour later at the same venue when the former Kiwi pacer Plutonium made it two wins from as many Australian starts.

Plutonium justified his short $1.10 price to win the NR 51-59 pace by six metres.

THIRD TIME LUCKY FOR PENOLA

PRAISE of the highest order goes to racing officials (Thoroughbred Racing SA and especially Penola racing club committeeman Rob Lepley) who showed excellent initiative to enable the Penola Racing Club to finally get its 2020-21 season underway on Tuesday.

Due to the state of the track, Penola had its September meeting moved to Naracoorte and its meeting for last Sunday was called off following another drenching of rain last Thursday.

It could have been quite easy to abandon the meeting completely, however a perusal of the weather forecast showed no rain predicted from Saturday onwards and officials moved the seven-race card to Tuesday.

As Pat Post (spokesperson for the Bob and Kane Post stable) correctly pointed out, "trainers in the Limestone Coast cannot afford to lose any meetings whatsoever at present, especially with the border restrictions making it very difficult for us to take horses to race in Victoria."

By Tuesday, the track had gone from a Heavy 10 to a Soft 7 and riding honours for the day went to Sairyn Fawke and Justin Potter, each with a double.

The Lee Creek trained first starter Wild Willy, a stylish winner of the 1100-metre maiden, was one of the best backed runners all day ($2.60-$1.90 fav.)

The 2020 Kalangadoo Cup went to Carnak ($7.50), causing his Mingbool trainer Ricky Bruhn to comment "I cannot remember my last cup winner", but our records suggest it may have been Dol De Lago in the Penola Cup 10 years ago.

"Carnak is a horse who needs 1600 metres or further and with some give in the track which he got today," Bruhn added.

TRACK RECORD SHATTERED

HARNESS racing in Mount Gambier has usually started in November (normally after the Mount Gambier show) but differing circumstances in our current weird world saw the new season start on Tuesday night.

The Mount Gambier club was done no favours by being allocated a 9.15 pm start for the three-race program which followed on from the five races at Port Pirie.

"Every second year, we resurface the track - which we did recently - and we now have the same surface as every Victorian track," Mount Gambier Harness Racing Club secretary Maxine Milich stated.

The new look track was on fire and saw the 1780-metre track record shattered by one second by the David Drury trained and driven Jaccka Ted in the final event.

Jaccka Ted was having his first Australian run since arriving from New Zealand and got up to win in the last few strides.

The next Mount Gambier meeting on Tuesday, October 27 will start much earlier, prior to the Port Pirie meeting.

THREE PRONGED ATTACK

TODAY'S Listed $100,000 Murray Bridge gold cup will have three runners from the Limestone Coast.

The Jeff Searle (Bordertown) trained Wings Of Pastrami, winner of the 2019-20 Limestone Coast Horse of the Year award (for performances anywhere), easily looks the pick of the trio following two runs back from a spell.

Naracoorte co-trainers Sue and Jason Jaensch have two runners, Von Costa Glass and Bronski, both winners of country cups in South Australia in recent years.

CONFIDENT IN GROWTH: Newly-elected Mount Gambier harness Racing Club president Simon Phillips is confident the sport can return to staging a full program.

Anglers head out in welcome weather

JAMIE COATES
FISHING

THE weekend's weather was welcomed by anglers across the Limestone Coast and it was great to hear of so many people back out there and onto the water.

The offshore fishing over the weekend was fantastic for most and it was great to see so many boat trailers in the car park at Port MacDonnell.

Jo and Carn Taylor found some lovely bottom fish on Sunday afternoon, with some nice blue morwong and knife jaw coming aboard.

Ryan Ritchie found a nice mixed bag of bottom fish, with latchets, sea perch, flathead and a cracker knife jaw that went 53cm.

Tim Carrison, Anthony Wilkinson and Matt McIntyre fished Blackfellows Caves and ended up with a mixed bag of school sharks, sea perch and a few crayfish on the way home.

There were plenty of fishos who put in the time over the weekend to search for tuna, but I have not heard of anyone coming across any.

The surf fishos made the most of the weather on the weekend, with anglers spread out from the border down at Piccininni, through to the Coorong.

Friday night we heard of some nice fish caught up along the Coorong, with the hot spots being basically anywhere north from 10km past the Granites.

Michael Gordon and Aron Coleman found some nice gummy shark up there, but I do not think it matters too much where you fish, they are very spread out.

Grady Janeway opened his summer mullo-way account this week with a cracker at 32 pounds.

I believe the fellas also got a handful of sharks and smaller mullo-way mixed in.

Locally things were a little bit quiet but there were a few gummy sharks caught down around Piccininni and Paradise.

The weed was a bit of an issue in some spots, but hey, that's surf fishing.

There have been some nice squid caught this week down in Livingstons Bay.

The clean and clear water is what we have all been waiting for and it has really fired the squid up.

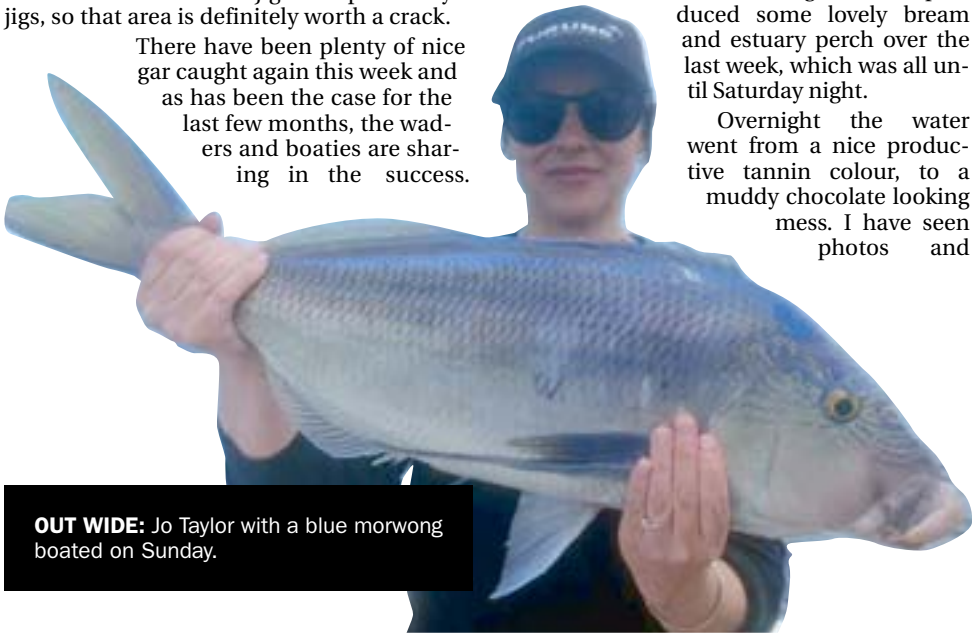

Craig (Philp) fished Sunday afternoon for a couple of hours and managed half a dozen nice squid.

He tried the new shimano clinch flash bolt squid jigs and has nothing but good reports.

After using the new one beside last year's best performer, the new shimano caught every single squid.

There has been a fair few caught over the last week or so off the Beachport jetty on a mixture of both baited jigs and prawn style jigs, so that area is definitely worth a crack.

There have been plenty of nice gar caught again this week and as has been the case for the last few months, the waders and boaties are sharing in the success.

OUT WIDE: Jo Taylor with a blue morwong boated on Sunday.

The waders have done well at Hutt Bay, Petrefied Forrest and Livingstones, while the boaties are doing well at Livingstones and Cape Douglas.

The average size has remained exceptional again and numbers are still impressive.

Port MacDonnell breakwater has produced some nice gar on and off now for the past few months, so that is another option for both types of angler.

The local jetties have fished well over the school holidays for tommy ruff and salmon trout.

I know of fish from Kingston and Cape Jaffa, though Beachport and Southend and down to Port MacDonnell.

Burley up and they will come.

You can also expect mackerel, trevally and mullet to turn up, just to name a few.

The Glenelg River has produced some lovely bream and estuary perch over the last week, which was all until Saturday night.

Overnight the water went from a nice productive tannin colour, to a muddy chocolate looking mess. I have seen photos and videos of fish not surviving the rapid change in water quality, which is never a nice thing.

Hopefully the numbers are not too out of control, though any is already too many.

The upcoming week's forecast looks a bit all over the place but if the forecasters have it right, we should be able to hit the water again by next weekend, so here's hoping.

Until next week, safe fishing.

JIGS PAY OFF: Craig Philp with one of several nice squid caught Sunday with some new Shimano jigs.

BIG BAG: Ryan Richie managed a big bag of mixed fish, with this knifejaw stretching the tape out to 53cm.

GREYHOUND RACING

AS local greyhound Squishy Pea's racing career draws to a close, Allendale East trainer David Peckham and the Nineofus Syndicate, who have won 16 races with the son of Fernando Bale x Secret Spell, will hope High Kings can fill the void.

Squishy Pea, having won 10 races on Victorian tracks, was picked up last year as a giveaway by the syndicate after previous owners Peter and Cheryl Sutcliffe looked to make room for some younger stock.

Needless to say, syndicate manager Ross Schurgott was more than interested after receiving a text out of the blue last month from Cheryl Sutcliffe informing him of another giveaway they were looking to move on.

"It turns out the dog in question was High Kings and while his recent form had not been anything special, he had won eight provincial races in Victoria including a couple at Sandown Park," Schurgott said.

Anyway, we figured we didn't have much to lose."

He is by Barcia Bale out of the Spiral Nikita bitch Fantastic Blaze who raced on only seven occasions for maiden heat and final wins over 535 metres at Richmond (NSW).

A litter brother to Fantastic Blaze is Fantastic Spinner, a winner of 24 races and $204,000 in stakemoney.

High Kings stepped out for the first time at Tara Raceway last week in the 400-metre JB Irrigation Stake, with Peckham anything but confident after saying the black and white dog had trialled "only fairly" leading up to the race.

However, for all that and despite chasing his first win in six months, High Kings was able to lead all the way from box four, holding out kennelmate Connie's Entity in the run to the line to win by three-quarters of a length in 23.82 seconds.

The win at the nice odds of $7 was the second leg of a running double for Peckham after Keen One led all the way in the 400-metre Greg Martlew Autos Open Stake - his fifth consecutive win at Tara Raceway after being interspersed with second placings at Angle Park and Murray Bridge.

Keen One's four lengths win over kennelmate Our Man Zed took his overall tally at the local track this year to 10 wins, six seconds and one third for a total of 53 points in the Mount Gambier Greyhound of the Year award.

He is now only one point behind the leader Perseverance.

Purchased as a pup by Malcolm Keenan of Tarpeena, the win was the 11th overall - all at Tara Raceway - for the black son of Dyna Villa and Precious Prize.

For Keenan and his wife Nuran, the self-confessed groupies of Keen One, it had been a case of clocking up plenty of kilometres in a bid to see him also win at either Angle Park or Murray Bridge.

So far it had not happened.

But they were back at Murray Bridge last Sunday night when he looked well placed in a grade six event over 395 metres, especially after drawing box one.

Keen One made a real mess of the start, though, Keenan probably immediately thinking of that long drive home down the never-ending highway.

However, in the end it was his class which won out with the sizeable 37-kilogram chaser finishing strongly when defeating Flying Clarice by 1¼ lengths in 22.73 seconds.

Finally, the Keenans had their away win and all of a sudden the drive home was going to be a breeze.

While last week's Klaassens Contractors Stake was only a maiden 400-metre event, the race did have special significance for Gifford Hill trainer Tony Rasmussen after Kakariki was successful.

Kakariki handled herself well in what was a rough-house affair, the white and black bitch grabbing Fiddy in the shadows of the post to bring up her first success at start number four.

Raced by the Razza Racing Syndicate, the win was a real family affair, wife Lisa breeding the Hukanui x Keely Allen litter - the first to be sired by their 2018 SA Sprint Champion.

By US sire Kelsos Fusileer out of SA bitch Daddy's Muffin, Hukanui was a terrific race dog for the Rasmussens, going around on 103 occasions for 26 wins and close to $100,000 in stakemoney.

Meanwhile, with border restrictions by and large still in place, racing continues on Thursday afternoons at the Lake Terrace East venue with canteen and bar facilities.

However, there are no TAB facilities on track.

Account holders can place bets via phone, laptop, etc. with TAB and other corporate bookmakers.

Skeer set for re-start

TREVOR JACKSON
trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

IT has been a disrupted Superbike season for Limestone Coast racer Dallas Skeer.

In his third year on the 600cc Suzuki Skeer has completed just one round in the 600cc Supersport category of the Australian Superbike (ASBK) series due to the Covid-19 pandemic closing the sport down.

The next round is set to go at Tailem Bend on 20 November, with Skeer keen to get back out on the track.

He has done little riding apart from some practise, a short stint on dirt bikes and of course the master of Mac Park here in the Limestone Coast.

His results at McNamara Park were impressive considering the lack of seat time this year.

Skeer claimed the round win for the 600cc category and finished third behind two 1000cc machines in the coveted master of Mac Park feature race.

That was achieved in wet conditions on the Sunday, which did not seem to bother the young rider.

He also broke his existing lap record for the category, with a blistering

1-minute, 10:040-second time.

Skeer hopes to squeeze more practise in, this time at Tailem Bend, ahead of the next ASBK round and in the interim has managed to keep somewhat in touch.

"We've just been mainly practising when we can at Mac Park," he said.

"We haven't done too much because there hasn't been much to practise for, but now it is starting to open back up."

The ASBK series will possibly include three more rounds, with the November date at The Bend, then back-to-back rounds at Winton Motor Raceway in Victoria pencilled in.

Much of that will depend on the coronavirus restrictions but Skeer said he would only commit to the Tailem Bend event.

"It won't be worth trying to achieve too much this year with what has gone on," he said.

"I don't even know if that (Winton) will go ahead."

"We are just playing it by ear at this stage."

Skeer has been pleased with his performance so far this season, with his fastest times on the 600 at Phillip Island in the opening round of the season, where he said he has never been comfortable.

"We had a good setup from the testing we had done," he said.

"I was able to drop a second off my lap times and was only a second behind what the leaders were doing."

Skeer then headed to Wakefield Park for testing where again he set some fast lap times before the sport was closed down.

He said there has been no point pushing too hard this year, but was pleased with his results at McNamara Park.

"It was good to go to Mac Park and break my lap record by 1.1 seconds," Skeer said.

"It was good I didn't lose anything by not racing and was able to get back on the pace."

"In qualifying on the Saturday morning I dropped a second straight away."

"I feel confident now to go to other tracks and be competitive."

Skeer said the rain at McNamara Park suited his riding style and was a good chance to practice on the 600, having never run an ASBK race in those conditions.

"I have always enjoyed the wet but haven't done much on the 600s," he said.

"My best lap was only .2 of a second behind Arthur Sissis who won."

"I have had limited time on the 600 in the wet and I am not sure what the limits are."

"But my riding style suits the wet and we have a really good wet setup so I felt confident with the bike."

For now Skeer is preparing for a tilt at a podium finish at The Bend but with border restrictions in place and interstate competitors in doubt, it is still a big unknown.

"I'm not too sure what to expect and I don't know what the competition will be like," he said.

"If the Victorians can't get across the competition might be down a bit but if can get on the podium it will be really good."

Picture perfect for disc golfers

TREVOR JACKSON
trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

DISC golf continues its rise in popularity, with the Mount Gambier club going from strength to strength.

Set in the picturesque Valley Lakes precinct, the Crater Lakes Disc Golf course has attracted a big following from the Limestone Coast community.

The next official event is the monthly league day on Sunday, with an expected field of around 40-50 players.

That is a number vice president Ryan Nicholson is pleased to see.

"The membership numbers of the mount Gambier Disc Golf Club are continually growing with every monthly meeting we have," he said.

"It is just taking off, but the sport sells itself. It is just so accessible and affordable."

Nicholson described the Valley Lakes course as world class, one of the best in the country.

That was reflected last year as the club hosted the Australian Championships, a just reward for the hard work undertaken to build the new sport in the region.

But this week the focus is on the October league day, with Limestone Coast player Hayden McPherson expected to dominate the top category.

"South Australian disc golf president Gareth Morgan has come down twice and won both events," Nicholson said.

"He is a local member as well and has got off to a hot start."

"But Hayden McPherson is one of the best local players here and has dominated since we started."

"He is very strong and the local player to beat."

McPherson currently holds the record for the short amateur course, with an official score of 11 under par for the par 61 layout.

Unofficially he has shot 15 under.

Despite those numbers, Nicholson said the club members were quickly closing the gap.

"Hayden is a very handy player," he said.

"However, the good thing is a year ago he was easily the stand-alone best player, but now we have several players who can push him and put their hand up for a win on their day."

The sport is open to all levels of competitor, with a good contingent of women and juniors also coming through the ranks.

"Kate Eldridge has been strong for the last couple of years, while Michelle Schultz and Amy Wyers are coming through," Nicholson said.

"Junior-wise we have some real solid players coming through."

"Harrison Ellis, his brother Ben, the Holman brother/sister combo of Austin and Jessica and Will Harrison are all playing well."

"These kids, some of them are quite young, but are already showing immense potential."

"I can see them pushing some of the senior players very soon."

Sunday's league day includes winners in scratch and handicap formats, all announced at the Blue Lake Golf Club later in the day.

Nicholson anyone was welcome to play, with the day to kick off at 9am, after registrations from 8.30am.

Players are to meet opposite the Valley Lakes playground.

History repeats

IT was a case of history repeating itself in the Mount Gambier Golf Club's 2020 seniors championship on Sunday, with Andrew Stark and Faye Mainwaring taking out the men's and women's titles respectively.

For the 54-year-old Stark it was the second time he had lifted the trophy after winning in 2016, co-incidentally with the exact same score of 76 off the stick.

This victory for the former club groundsman and committee member came after a battle royale, with fellow 50-59 age groupers Jeffrey Hodge, Trent Eitzen and Joe Clements also signing for 76s.

Stark's split of 38-38 was enough to claim the win on a count-back. He said he was "stoked" to prevail on a day which saw 78 players face the starter in perfect conditions.

Unfortunately for Clements it was a matter of what might have been considering he was the only member of the leading quartet to make a double bogey, the blemish coming on the relatively-easy par four 12th hole.

One shot behind the top four was defending champion Richard Gosling who fired a 77.

In the women's competition it was a case of keeping it all in the family with Mainwaring claiming the crown for the third consecutive year after her sister Helen won in 2016 and 2017.

A typically consistent round from the ladies captain - she was 14 from 14 for fairways hit - saw her post an 85 off the stick (playing off a 14 handicap) to win by a single stroke from

BACK IN THE WINNER'S CIRCLE: Andrew Stark claimed his second Mount Gambier golf Club senior's championship on the weekend at the Attamurra course.

Kerry Pedler. Heather Barry (playing off 21) shot a credible 87 to finish third, her effort resulting in a net 66 and 43 stableford points, the best of the day across all divisions.

Age group net winners: Men (50-59) Ken Whitehead 68; (60-69) Robert Martland 68; (70+) Bob Dalgarno 68.

The 82-year-old Dalgarno deserves a special mention for his 84 off the stick, with four three-putts costing him a chance of shooting less than his age.

Women: (50-69) Heather Barry 66; (70+) Anne Schrapel 67.

Chip-ins and lucky drops win day

IT was a day out Saturday for Ian Bown at the Blue Lake Golf Club as he claimed the overall honours.

Bown shot an impressive 70-7-63 on the back of chip in birdies to "missed" putts which fell in.

After opening with a bogey Bown had little idea the rest of his round would be exemplary. Turning one over the card on the front nine after his opening bogey he repeated the score on the 10th. However, from then on he needed just 29 more strokes with birdies on the 11th and 17th holes.

He did not quite have it all his own way though with a chasing pack of players in the mid 60's.

One of those hot on the heels of Bown was A Grade winner Jason McCrae (72-7-65).

McCrae opened with a birdie and a par but could not capitalise on the reachable par 5 third hole, walking off with a disappointing bogey which he repeated on the next hole. However, he righted the ship with a birdie on the sixth hole to get back even with the card on the front nine.

An impressive birdie on the 13th hole was bookended by bogeys, closing with a two-over 37.

Error free golf with birdies on the seventh and eighth holes would have had him mildly excited for the back nine but that was quickly snuffed out with three consecutive bogeys and two double bogeys which almost sunk the ship. His 76-10-66 was still good enough for second place.

Third prize went to the ever-consistent Trevor Callis with splits of 40 and 39 for a net 67, just ahead of Brett Perryman in a count-back. Perryman was a little unlucky, with no less than six birdies on the day. Four of those came on the back nine which also included a double and a triple bogey for a wild nine holes.

Finishing just one stroke away from the major prize was B Grade winner Stephen Kamphuis who would love to play the third and fourth holes again.

They were the only major blemishes on his way to a 81-17-64 round.

He was a clear winner with David Quinn a distant five strokes further back in second.

Quinn (89-20-69) also had his struggles, unable to keep too much red ink off his card but showing his ability with regulation pars and a birdie on the 17th hole.

Another count-back was needed to decide third place with a number of players finishing tied on net 70. Marty Markiewicz eventually claimed the chocolates.

Club handicapper Geoff Munt would have been happy to write out his own prize certificate after picking up the win in C Grade.

Normally a net 66 would have him vying for the outright win but Munt had to survive a count-back from Zac Walker just to claim the grade honours. Munt's four pars - for four-under over the back nine - sealed the deal.

Brian Dunn (97-29-68) took the money off his playing partners with his third place.

Good scores of 70 or better were needed in the ball rundown headed by Perryman (67), Brad Talbot, Stephen Easterbrook (68), Bruce Tichbon, Anthony Williams, Zach Westwick (69), Colin Ferguson, Jim Ferrazzola, Ben Gordon, Garry Von Duve, Scott Montgomery and James Roughana on 70.

Peter Mikelsen and Michael De-donatis picked up the Pro Shots. Brad Talbot, Matt Jennings and Dieter Rostig won their respective NTP's. Jason McCrae was rewarded for his putting prowess while Talbot (A), Gordon (B) and Brenton Speck won golf balls for the novelty events.

Slam dunk pays off big time at Blue Lake

CLEANING up in more ways than one was Tuesday's Blue Lake Golf Club stroke winner Brenton Speck who had 2000 reasons to celebrate.

Not only did he take the overall winners prize, Speck also cleaned out the hole-in-one prize of $2000 worth of merchandise from the Lakes Caddy Shack. Speck (84-21-63) had no idea what was to eventuate after a regulation 45 on the front nine, which included a couple of double bogeys.

A par the difficult par 4 13th hole would have given him some confidence and he rode his luck by slam dunking his tee shot straight into the hole 188m away.

Riding that high he then birdied the next on his way to a superb 39 and a two-stroke win. No less than four players returned 65's with Graham Burke getting the nod in the count-back.

Burke (86-21-65) can thank his birdie/par finish for his second place.

All round nice guy Brad Talbot finally realised how much fun golf can be by taking third place with his 71-6-65 round. He will be slightly disappointed his round of one-over the card was only good enough for third.

Brendan Lunnay (99-25-65) and Milton Bignell (87-22-65) were the others to finish on the same score.

The latter two had to settle for a ball prize along with Colin Stratford, Trevor Gartside and Ryan Williams who all finished on 67.

Impressive scores

NEW Mount Gambier golf Club member Mitchell Broome raised a few eyebrows in Saturday's stableford competition.

Despite a host of impressive scores, the 23-year-old - playing in just his second competition at the club after moving back from Warrnambool two months ago because of covid-19 - led the way with 45 points.

Playing off a 35 handicap, Broome had 21 points on the front nine, helped by a four-point par on the fifth hole and added 24 more on the back nine after a five-point birdie on the par-three 10th and four-point pars on the 14th and 15th. However, he needed every one of those points on the back nine with his 45 points edging out a rejuvenated Digger Richardson on a count-back.

Richardson has been in a purple patch of form, only three missed putts from inside a metre costing him what would have been an impressive third Saturday win in the past six weeks. After his handicap blew out from single figures to 21, the former panelbeater's decision to give one of his drivers to A-grader Jeffrey Hodge in exchange for the payment of a couple of lessons with club pro John Martin paid immediate dividends.

Martin spotted Richardson was 're-gripping' the club at the top of his backswing and the rest as they say is history.

Those two 45-point scores were among seven of 40 or better on the day, with Gianni Giurastante claiming B Grade honours with 42 points on a count-back from Kent Comley.

Evergreen Rob McIntyre posted 41 to take out the A Grade division from Craig Foster on 40, while Broome's 45 - which saw his handicap appropriately slashed to 27 - took out C Grade from Richardson.

The honour for the best score of the week went to Todd Lewis who returned a staggering 47 points in Thursday's stableford competition to win by eight from Bryce Whicker.

Universal rules

IN the 17th century Isaac Newton concluded objects fall because they are pulled by Earth's gravity.

Albert Einstein's interpretation was these objects do not fall.

According to Einstein, these objects and Earth just freely move in a curved spacetime and this curvature is induced by mass and energy of these objects.

Keith Ransom has his own theory.

A golf buggy left unattended on the 13th hole will roll past the 12th, past the 11th right down to the 17th where inertia will give out and it will come to rest on the 17th.

Luckily a golfing buddy gave him a tow back up the hill.

Scare on the roadside hole

THE women's stroke event became a two-horse race at the Blue Lake Golf Club on Saturday with Di Perryman and Lyn Annand battling it out to the finish.

Perryman (88-21-67) had a scare on the roadside 13th hole that almost cost her dearly with a triple bogey but she rebounded well with pars on the 15th and 18th to close out the win.

Annand (104-36-68) found trouble early in her front nine but came home well for a closing 49 to almost catch Perryman.

Lee-Anne Medhurst (101-27-74) and Annette Ford (96-22-74) tied for third with the former having a better net back nine to take the prize.

Jo Ashby won the Long Drive competition while Perryman added to her prizes with a win in the least putts category.

Challenge for rookie coach

Win-less Saints look to Thomson to turn fortunes around

TREVOR JACKSON

trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

THERE are exciting times ahead for former East Gambier player Luke Thomson after he inked a deal as A Grade coach with the Nangwarry Football Club.

The embattled Saints will look to Thomson to help turn their on-field fortunes around after a long 82-game win-less streak in the Mid South Eastern Football League.

Thomson comes from many seasons of senior football with East, along with several coaching gigs at junior level.

The new appointment came sooner than he expected but is one he is excited to take on.

"It is a good opportunity," Thomson told The Border Watch.

"I always wanted to coach but didn't expect it to happen so soon.

"I obviously jumped at the chance when I could."

Thomson said the appointment came after the club looked to fill the senior role and his name popped up.

"They were looking to recruit players and needed a coach as well," he said.

"My name was thrown in there - I have chatted to them in previous years - we had a meeting and went from there."

Thomson said he was confident he was ready to take on the senior role, with experience gained through his junior coaching, along with help along the way from the likes of current East Gambier coach Matt Willson.

"I have played senior footy for a long time and worked pretty close with Willow (Matt Willson)," he said.

"You can learn a lot of blokes like that and it sets you up pretty well.

"I put my hand up to do the coaching at East and did it basically by myself for three years, with a bit of help."

With such a long losing streak to unravel, it would be a daunting task for any coach to take on.

While Thomson said he was nervous, excited and everything in between, he feels he is ready for the challenge, with a couple of simple plans to improve the Saints' fortunes.

"A club like Nangwarry means you will have to develop your players, which you do in every club anyway," he said.

"I am hoping we will have a reasonable mix of young and old but it is all about that development.

"Not having won a game for 82 games, I don't want to get caught up in just getting good football players if they are not good people.

"Obviously first things first is to get that win on the board but it is all about improvement.

"I believe if you are winning the contested footy and putting the pressure on for four quarters the scoreboard will take care of itself.

"Every team is beatable so the aim is to push teams for four quarters and you never know what will happen.

"A lot of people will look at the wins and losses but to me it is all about setting the standard in pre-season and just rolling through from there."

Thomson played his early football at the now-defunct Tarpeena, just a few kilometres down the road from Nangwarry, before moving to the Bulldogs in the Western Border league.

He said after such a long time in a six-team competition, the variety of the MSEFL was appealing.

"I was fortunate to play Under 18s for East against the Victorian teams," he said.

"The last few years I have been stuck playing the same five teams, so I think Mid South East footy will be good to play against a different team every week.

"You don't get too comfortable playing against the same teams all the time."

Jake McKeon will also make the trek out to Nangwarry with Thomson, but the rookie coach was reluctant to share too much information at this early stage.

However, he said he expected to kick pre-season training off early next month to ensure players are ready to hit the ground running in 2021 after a season off due to the covid-19 pandemic.

UP FOR THE CHALLENGE: Luke Thomson has parted ways with the East Gambier Football Club to chase his coaching aspirations at Nangwarry in the Mid South Eastern Football League for the 2021 season.

Millicent set for tilt at 2021 season

TREVOR JACKSON

trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

FOOTBALL may be done and dusted for season 2020, but there has been plenty of movement off the field in the Western Border Football League.

Millicent is one such club, with the recent announcement coach Clint Gallio will be on board for the next two years.

The club also announced the signing of Gene Robinson for season 2021, with the small forward sure to be a real asset to the Saints' chances to rebound after a disastrous 2019.

In 2018 Millicent claimed the premier-ship flag for the first time in 34 years, but after losing much of the group, finished bottom the following season without tasting victory.

Of course 2020 was called off due to the covid-19 pandemic, but according to Gallio that was itself a blessing in disguise for the Saints.

It provided extra time for his injured knee to mend and strengthen, while also allowing other players - who would have been doubtful starters - the time to mend.

Gallio said he was excited to be back for another two years, along with the inclusion of Robinson.

"I have a bit of a plan and we will see where that takes us," he said.

BUILDING UP: Millicent A Grade football coach Clint Gallio and new signing Gene Robinson will look to help the Saints back to winning form in the 2021 Western Border Football League.

"We have Gene on board and I think everyone was looking forward to him playing this year, which didn't eventuate.

"He went down and had a kick with Broughton Mundoorra where he played last year and they ended up winning the flag again - they went back-to-back.

"He is just one of those blokes who loves a kick, loves playing footy."

While Robinson has only signed for one season at this stage, Gallio said he was keen to play with the dynamic forward, who had displayed a real talent in front of the big sticks.

"He has kicked a lot of goals," Gallio said.

"He is only 27 and has kicked 800 or 900 goals.

"He has kicked 100s before in the KNT so I am really looking forward to him playing."

Apart from the obvious advantage of scoring, Gallio said Robinson brought a wealth of experience which would help on the training track.

"He has played some SANFL footy, is good around the guys, good at training, has a good work ethic and really wants to improve every time," Gallio said.

"He is the type of bloke who will be real handy for us (on the ground) and to hopefully help me out to mentor some juniors."

The 2019 season was certainly cruel to the Saints but with 12 players gone from the previous year's premiership side Gallio said any team would struggle to compete.

He said considering the circumstances 2019 coach Lyndon Smith kept the players positive.

After no games in 2020 it was now time to work on the upcoming season and strive to again return to the winner's list.

"We are working through our list and have maintained most of it," Gallio said.

"Everyone is keen to get back into some training and I think the general feel around the club is quite upbeat."

Training is set to kick off in November, with a push up at Christmas, before a return in January.

Archers not sidelined by pandemic

THE Blue Lake Archers continue to progress in the post-covid shutdown sporting world, with the flexibility of the club's indoor venue a great asset in the volatile spring weather.

Several Sunday outdoor events were changed to indoor events due to the inclement weather, which worked well over the long weekend when two visiting archers from Adelaide joined in the activities.

STRAIGHT SHOOTER: Kallen Clare competed in the Archery Australia national Back to Archery tournament event on Sunday, his score was a personal best included his first ever all-gold end which he achieved at 40 metres.

The club also hosted a state indoor championship in late August which resulted in several medals to the local archers.

An initiative of Archery Australia has been to organise a national Back to Archery tournament run by individual clubs and the results pooled using the online Archers Diary. The tournament has been embraced by the BLA, with the format the best two scores from six events run on nominated dates from September to December.

Uniquely the format allows both off-the-bow and handicap results to be awarded, a first for a national event.

The event is split into divisions for age, gender and bow type.

On Sunday the club ran its second event aligned to the BTA tournament.

New members have risen rapidly with their skill and achievement levels and the three members of the Clare family regularly produce personal bests, all-gold ends and handicap score wins.

The latest easing of cross border communities has allowed Len Bayley to return to compete in his first round since March.

Recent club results

- Australian 25 metre indoor Round 1 (handicap scored): Kallen Clare 306 (off the bow 239); Ben Kilsby 301 (298); Clayton Clare 300 (282); Paul Freeman. 297 (283); Jake Clare 289 (260).
- Australian 25 metre indoor Round 2 (handicap scored): Kallen Clare 307 (242 PB); Ben Kilsby 300 (282 =PB); Ben Kilsby 299 (296); Jake Clare 290 (261 PB); Paul Freeman 287 (273).
- National Back to Archery Tournament, week two (off the bow scores, handicap score in brackets).
- WA 60/900: Open Male Compound - Ben Kilsby 864 (890); Master male compound - Paul Freeman 811 (903); Veteran Male compound - Graham Lock 827 (895), Ian Harris 714 (806); Veteran + male compound - Len Bayley 689 (875).
- Short Canberra: Intermediate male compound - Kallen Clare 770 PB (no hcp).

Homecoming success

TREVOR JACKSON

trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

IT is a long way from the North American mountains of Whistler to the Crater Lakes of Mount Gambier but for world downhill mountain bike rider Connor Fearon it was home for a recent weekend.

The Adelaide-born rider has tasted plenty of success over the last decade across the globe and was in the Limestone Coast for the annual Inside Line downhill race at Mount Gambier.

He dominated the weekend in the elite men's category, easily claiming the victory.

However, there was more to the weekend than just success.

Fearon attended with partner Shelly Flood, also a well-known rider and the pair were impressed with the Valley Lakes course.

Fearon chose not to compete on the world circuit in Europe this year due to the Covid-19 pandemic, with travel restrictions and health concerns his top priorities.

However, he said it did provide the chance to race back home in Australia and enjoy his time while the world struggled with the coronavirus.

Fearon raced in Mount Gambier at the Bluff well over a decade ago, but had never experienced the Valley Lakes course, which he said was impressive.

"Shane and Justin (DeJong) do a really good job of getting the track up and running here," he said.

"In Adelaide we get a lot of funding for tracks, but a lot of it is still done by volunteers.

"Without the volunteers we would have a lot less tracks to ride."

Fearon said it was important to have councils on board to help create such venues, rather than "put up the red tape".

"These days councils seem to work with the riders to make places that are fun and safe," he said.

"For the youth getting into the sport it is so good having places like this, especially in Mount Gambier - it is right in the middle of town.

"To have it so accessible where the kids don't need their parents to drive them half an hour out of town to somewhere is great."

Fearon described the Valley Lakes course as the best on the South Australian calendar, steeper and just as technical as any in Adelaide.

Compared to his overseas ventures he said the main difference was the length.

"Overseas they have bigger hills so the tracks are generally a lot longer," Fearon said.

"At home you will get a minute, a minute and a half that is pretty steep, but overseas it can be up to five or six minutes of the same technicality.

"We do have the same technicality but the tracks just aren't as long because the terrain doesn't lend itself to it."

Fearon rides full time for the Kona factory team, while Flood simply enjoys the challenge in her time off.

A nurse by trade, Flood enjoys the sport. She hails from Bendigo but moved to Adelaide for university, where she met Fearon.

She has also travelled overseas to compete but is also in awe at what is offered here in the Blue Lake city.

"I have never been to Mount Gambier and I am pumped because it is a really cool place," Flood said.

"I couldn't believe how many tracks there are in this little area."

The pair often cross paths as they chase their dreams of riding on the world stage, with one racing in Europe while the other may be in Canada.

Fearon joked it was the perfect relationship, with no excuse needed to go for a ride.

He said his best effort so far was runner-up in a world downhill event by just .04 of a second.

Flood said she has podiumed several times but has also suffered various injuries along the way, including a broken jaw, back and many others.

In fact, a dislocated elbow thwarted her efforts at Mount Gambier.

Despite those setbacks she said she simply loves the sport and has no plans to slow down.

For Fearon to be riding for a factory team as a full-time job is a dream come true and he plans to enjoy every minute of the ride.

"I do the best when I am having fun," he said.

"That is obviously the best case, because you don't think about it as a job."

"If I worked nine to five I would be doing this on a weekend anyway."

"To be my job it is just a dream come true."

International's stellar year

TREVOR JACKSON

trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

INTERNATIONAL Soccer Club is again the toast of the town after a hard-fought 2-0 A Grade premiership victory over Central on Sunday.

The Webb Street home of Apollo Soccer Club was a hive of activity for the Steeline Limestone Coast Football Association grand final games.

It was a four-peat for the blue and black after a dominant unbeaten season.

But Inter did not have it all its own way, with the Lions pushing hard throughout the contest.

The nil-all half-time score suggested a tight competition, but eventually Inter broke away with two second-half goals to Matthew and Sam Bueti to claim the honours.

Nick Morony was named best on ground after a disciplined effort in the midfield.

A clearly excited and emotional head coach Tony D'Agostino was full of praise for his players, along with the effort of Central which pushed his side to the final whistle.

"Centrals were a good team," he said.

"We had to re-evaluate at half time what we were doing and how to break it down.

"I thought they held their own in the first half."

Central had many opportunities to score in the opening half, with several attacking runs but the Inter defence held strong.

D'Agostino said it was testament to the desire of his side to continue its success.

"I thought our defence played really well," he said.

"It didn't look like it was going to concede but they put pressure on us and it is at times like that you do concede.

"Half time came and we re-evaluated and had to push forward.

"They were giving us some free players out wide and we had to use them to take advantage."

While Inter did control more of the early minutes in the second half, it was not until the first goal where they began to take advantage in a pressure-packed half of football.

"We had talked about how important the first goal would be," D'Agostino said.

"We thought if we got the first goal we weren't going to be beaten.

"We haven't conceded many goals this year so we thought if we could get the first one we could get another and the game would be over.

COMBATANTS: International's Tyler Michielan and Central's Lewis March go head-to-head during the Limestone Coast Football Association A Grade grand final on Sunday.

TIGHT TUSSLE: International's Matthew Bueti and Central's Brayden Coppick contest a ball during the Limestone Coast Football Association A Grade grand final on Sunday.

INSPIRED: International Soccer Club head coach Tony D'Agostino shares his emotion with the team after an inspired victory in the Limestone Coast Football Association grand final on Sunday.

"If we conceded the first one it was going to be a battle because Centrals have a good defence.

"I was over the moon when we got it in."

Sam Bueti scored the first goal and from there the pressure began to build.

Central was down a player after a red card and when the second goal arrived the Lions were clearly rattled, as the intensity rose and tempers frayed.

"They were down a player and were still putting pressure on us," D'Agostino said.

"We were in front so we didn't have to do too much different.

"We didn't have to push any players forward so I said to the boys to just stick to the plan, let them come at us.

"We just had to bide our time."

D'Agostino praised the work of his players and the discipline showed under pressure from what he described as a good team.

"To win against Centrals, we had to play a bit harder, push a bit harder and sacrifice," he said.

"It was about doing all those little things where you have to sacrifice a run when you are buggered, you have to push hard to get it, the little one-percenters we talk about.

"I can't say enough about how well these guys play, how much of a unit they are."

D'Agostino said he was blessed with his playing group, which included leaders such as Matt Bueti, Ricky McRobert, Same Bueti, Nick Morony and Brayden May, along with a host of youngsters coming through the ranks.

As for Morony's best-on-ground effort, he said it was well deserved.

"He would say there were probably two or three other players because that is the type of players we have," D'Agostino said.

"They always look at other players but honestly he played a really crucial role for us.

"He was our holding mid fielder.

"I asked him to not let anything through to our backline then create if he could.

"He did what we asked.

"I thought Austin Rossi did a good job, a 17-year-old who played all year in our A Grade, cramping up at the end after playing a good half a game in the Under 17s.

"The kid has a good future.

"But there were so many good players - I just want to thank them all."

International has achieved plenty of success in the competition, with a six-peat, a five-peat and now four in a row.

D'Agostino said this latest achievement was special because of the different group of players.

"When you start you never think about doing four or three," he said.

"You think about winning a premiership, then the second one comes and you think that's not bad, we have the back-to-back, let's push for three.

"It builds momentum and gives you an incentive to keep pushing.

"These boys won't stop - they will try for five."

It may have been the final taste of success for D'Agostino, who has stated he will now retire from coaching duties.

Borderline back in action

TREVOR JACKSON

trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Borderline Speedway is ready to roar into action this season, despite the cancellation of the World Series Sprintcars and the border restrictions in place due to the Covid-19 pandemic.

A South Australian-based season will highlight the clay oval, at least until the coronavirus pandemic allows for interstate travel.

Borderline Speedway president Cary Jennings said the club is confident it can stage an entertaining season, with plenty of support from the racing fraternity in the state.

"We had an AGM in August and the club didn't know which way it was going to go with speedway this season," he said.

"In September a couple of club members went up to Murray Bridge to talk to 13 competitor groups and the other four tracks in South Australia.

"The consensus was we wanted to get speedway up and running in South Australia in some form, so it has been very positive."

Jennings said a special general meeting last week was well supported by competitors, officials, volunteers and interested members, which saw a vote to go forward with a season.

Jennings said the season would be affected by the Covid-19 factor but the club will simply reassess the situation as the climate changes.

"We don't know what kind of spectators we will find and we need spectators to make it work so we can survive, keep the property up and running and try to be number one again in Australia as a competitor based group," he said.

"I believe we can have around 1000 spectators now but by 28 November we might be able to have more."

Opening night will see five different classes on show, which includes sprint cars, wingless sprints, formula 500s, street stocks and late model sedans.

Jennings said at this stage speedway racing looked positive in the state, with some early meetings scheduled showing good entries.

"There are 20-plus sprintcar entries for opening night at Murray Bridge tomorrow," he said.

"They have a similar number going to Whyalla at the end of the month to compete in a re-run of the state title for 360 sprint cars.

BACK IN ACTION: The Borderline Speedway has its 2020-21 season pencilled in, with sprintcars to headline the opening night. Picture: STEVE RICE

"They have 410s the same night with a few Northern Territory cars coming down.

"At Murray Bridge they also have in excess of 20 wingless sprints and 25 street stocks so it is all positive."

At this Borderline Speedway has six meetings pencilled in for the season, which includes the usual Easter Sprintcar Trail and the time-honoured Kings Challenge.

Those events will be reassessed as they draw closer, with the Easter meeting currently not to include Victorian tracks.

"If the borders open we will get some cars from Victoria," Jennings said.

"At the moment Mount Gambier and Murray Bridge will probably have a mini speedweek.

"We have a couple of state titles in March and April for other classes and the last meeting is scheduled for April 17 after Easter.

"We might even have a late show in May, weather permitting.

"The Victorian sprintcar group would like to do that if it gets up and running."

Jennings said the overriding factor was the desire of the members to simply go racing.

"Our local competitors in all the classes were represented at the special meeting last week," he said.

"They just want to go racing, make something happen and support the club whatever we put on."

Club prepares for coastal action

THE excitement is building at the Port MacDonnell Sailing Club as season 2020/21 fast approaches.

The club rooms have been a hive of activity, with members preparing for the season and leading up to opening day on October 31 there will be no shortage of action at the Sea Parade venue on Saturday's as the momentum builds.

Those interested in the sport are encouraged to head along and can learn how to rig a boat, be crew members or simply go to the club to take in the atmosphere.

Competitions are held on a weekly basis weather dependant, with a variety of boats competing, from single catamarans to larger trailer yachts, run on line honours and handicap.

Apart from the regular racing the club is also involved with other feature events, including the Port Mac/Rivoli Bay Challenge, the Guichan Bay challenge up at Robe, the Discovery Bay Coastal Classic, along with social outings and the Easter Coorong cruise.

Championships are held throughout the season for 25-foot and Austral yachts.

The season will wind up with the annual club dinner in May.

COASTAL CRUISING: The Port MacDonnell Sailing Club is gearing up for the 2020-21 season, set to kick off on 31 October.

Countbacks and red wine at Beachport

A BIG field of 63 SE Veteran golfers competed at Beachport for their most recent round, with Robe's Rob "Maxie" Cece claiming the Division 1 honours.

Cece finished with a credible 41 points to beat Millicent's Terry Chant and Kingston's Brian Prosser, each with 36.

Rob Harkness also carded 36 but missed out on a placing.

Division 2 went to Beachport's Chris Carr - who had spent the previous day practising on course - with a solid 38, from captain Derek Bowering who skewed the count-back on 35 from his Millicent mate Trevor Hutchesson.

The Ross Orchard Trophy went to Jim Hyland again and Pat Seneca.

The story of the day came from Attamurra's Rob Sims who had 10 points on the front, a red wine at lunch and then shot 22 points on the back.

He showed off by driving the green on the 17th but narrowly missed out in Division 2.

He compensated by winning a bottle of wine in the raffle to finish with a good day out, while Peter Bateman won the Scotch.

The next round ur next game is at Penola on October 24, followed by Attamurra on 9 November.

FOR the 15th time the Legend of the Lakes hill climb will light up the Valley Lakes at the end of this month.

What has become a must-do event on the Australian hill climb calendar has been somewhat thwarted in 2020 due to the coronavirus pandemic, but it has not stopped the South Eastern Automobile Club forging ahead.

While border restrictions have depleted the usual field, the event - to run from Friday October 30 to Sunday November 1 - is just 10 short of a full field for Saturday and Sunday, while Friday's group is bigger than ever.

For committee members Kevin Raedel and Peter Lock it is all coming together after plenty of hard work by the club.

While Victorian competitors will probably not be able to compete, there are still 10 on the list should the Covid-19 situation change in the short term, to add to the 130 South Australians keen to take on the iconic volcanic course.

New names have appeared on the list from around Adelaide, with Dan Day back from the state's capital to chase his fifth straight title to equal the current record of consecutive victories set by Mount Gambier's Peter Gazzard.

While Raedel said the time line is tight and it has been "a lot of hard work", Lock said the vast majority of regular competitors were keen to race.

"A lot of people have said 'why didn't you just call it like most people did', but the whole thing was founded on a fair bit of hard work," he said.

"It is popular and every competitor who has been here wanted it to go again.

"Some of the comments we got on Facebook like 'do it and we'll pay double the entry' showed there was a lot of interest out there because there is not much else happening."

The whole weekend will take on a different approach, with free entry for spectators in limited numbers only at the top of the course.

However, a live stream is set to take the race to the masses on either Facebook or through a dedicated website.

As for the competition itself, it will be hard to go past Day again this year.

READY TO RUN: South Eastern Automobile Club members Peter Lock and Kevin Raedel have been hard at work preparing the Valley Lakes course for the annual Legend of the Lakes hill climb at the end of the month.

He has become the unofficial King of the Mountain, although is still three wins behind Gazzard's total victories.

Day's biggest recent competitor Kevin Mackrell is likely to sit by and watch, unable to cross the border to compete.

Recent times suggest the course record will be hard to beat, but slight changes to the alignment of the track and the inclusion of a further 265 metres of armco fence towards the bottom through the esses may make a slight difference.

Raedel said even a 10th of a second could be the difference between a record or just another fast run.

"The changes to track with the new armco fencing will make a huge difference for us - it will save us a lot of time setting up," he said.

"It will also protect the trees, the edge of the road and be good for the whole venue.

"It follows the line nicely now instead of us having to make our own so it might be worth a tenth up the hill."

With times so low, close to six seconds off the original course record, Raedel said it would be nice to see the current record matched this year, if not broken.

But he accepted it would be a big call.

While it may seem a Day victory is a foregone conclusion, there will be no shortage of competition from he likes of Simon Fiel in a fast Subaru and local favourite Damian Brand in his older and very reliable Subaru WRX.

Kier Wilson will tackle the course in a Lamborghini, while several new cars, including Nissan Skylines, Mitsubishi Evos and Subarus are all in the mix.

Street Stock speedway sedans will provide some demonstration runs on Sunday between shootout runs to add to the entertainment.

With the usual class competition as hot as ever all is set for an exciting weekend of racing.

Enjoyment returns to McCorquindale Park

TENNIS is set to kick off in Penola on Friday 16 October, with a new social competition to start at McCorquindale Park.

The competition will run each Friday through the Penola Tennis Group with the focus purely on social play.

Organiser Sam Davidson said the idea of the night came after tennis in the township had dwindled, with the Penola association now defunct, but plenty of interest in the sport.

"The Penola Tennis Group has been around for a while but we revamped it a little bit two seasons ago when the official Penola association folded," he said.

"There was no actual formal competition in place so we decided we would like to trial a social tennis night.

"We are just trying to get players back who would have played competition or anyone else who wants to try the sport."

A Wednesday night competition currently exists, but Davidson said this would be a different format and with the amount of interest shown through the community hoped it would be a success.

"We are pretty confident we will get enough people there to get the night going and get a good start to the competition," he said.

"It is all up in the air but from the feedback, people are keen.

"The key message behind it all is strictly social - there is no commitment, just come out and have some fun."

A doubles format will be on offer, with players to register at the start of the night.

Random pairs will be generated by the organisers, with two games to be played.

Davidson said they would cater for singles matches if some players were left without a doubles partner.

He said without a formal competition in Penola, players missed the sport and hoped this could bring them back together.

"This is just a way to get people back out there," he said.

"We are not looking to start up a formal competition - just keep it social at this stage.

"If we need to tweak it over the next few weeks we can."

With eight courts at McCorquindale Park there is a scope to have around 32 players involved.

Davidson said the group would be pleased if that was the case but just hoped it would be embraced by the community.

Players need to register at 5pm, with play expected to finish around 7pm.

PROGRESS: Mount Gambier and District Cricket Association president George Kidman is pleased with the progress of the turf wickets in the Limestone Coast, including the famed Frew Park.

IT will be full steam ahead for the Mount Gambier and District Cricket Association in the 2020-21 season, with George Kidman back at the helm as president.

A later-than-normal start is a by-product of the covid-19 pandemic but all is set to kick off on 7 November.

According to Kidman there will be little effect on the outcome of the season, with enough time to complete a full season.

"The Hoggies Wines Barber Shield remains the status quo with the six teams, which is fantastic," he said.

"But I think cricket is mirroring regional golf in participation rates.

"It looks like we will have a 15pc increase in that senior male space, so hopefully we have a couple of extra teams in the B and C grades."

Kidman said much of the increase came from people who simply wanted something to do after such a long time out of sport due to the coronavirus.

Big news from the association is a new female competition has been formed for Open age women, with more details to come.

The regular Under 16 competition has been changed to an Under 17 format, with the hope to keep more juniors in the game before having to advance to the senior ranks.

"Every sport is losing players in that age group, so we made a change there to see what happens," Kidman said.

Overall Kidman said the changes would be a positive for the sport in the region, considering the usual difficulty to prepare the turf wickets early enough for the A Grade start.

"With good rain through spring it is often hard to get those wickets up to where we need them," he said.

"The reports from Mount Gambier are very good - Penola is always slightly behind because it is on a football ground but it will be fine.

"There will be some representative junior stuff and some Over 60s cricket played on turf before the November start date, so we are confident they will be ready."

Time will be made up through the season, with games now scheduled on the Adelaide Test weekend, which was previously a bye.

Considering the possible coronavirus restrictions on crowds Kidman said that was the best move.

The season will finish a week later, but again Kidman said it would not be a problem.

"We were fairly early finishing last season," he said.

"We were one of the only associations that actually finished their season."

The changes came about due to the unknown regarding the pandemic with winter sports dates, which saw some cooperation for the good of sport.

"There was definitely an olive branch put out by Mount Gambier cricket to Mid South East and Western Border (football leagues) in particular," Kidman said.

"While the winter sports were really unable to commit to what they wanted to do, we were able to say to footy and soccer and hockey to have October and we would get going in November.

"They fumbled around for so long with the football but then it was inspiring to see what they finally did.

"It was a fantastic effort in the end for the Limestone Coast Super League to get up and running."

The opening round on November 7 will see the reigning champion North Gambier face East Gambier in a grand final rematch at Scott Park, West Gambier will host South Gambier at Malseed Park and Mil Lel will travel to Penola to take on the hosts at McCorquindale Park.

MOLLY TAYLOR

A FORMER West Gambier Football Club player who relocated to the Northern Territory for a kick is feeling the bite of his new job and lifestyle.

Over a month ago Jackson Lock spontaneously moved to Darwin to temporarily play division one football for Banks Bulldogs Football Club.

Stepping out of his comfort zone, Lock also decided to take on a new challenge and successfully secured a thrilling labouring position at a crocodile farm.

Lock said he initially wanted to visit Darwin for a week's holiday, but when the Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara Football League was cancelled, where he planned to play for Border Districts, he decided to explore further options.

"I was still keen on having a kick so I contacted one of my friends from Katherine to see whether she knew any clubs nearby which were interested in offering me a game," he said. "In two days time, I had three clubs call me which was overwhelming.

"I had a think about it and in a week the club had a job organised and asked whether I could get up here as soon as I can."

With a range of other jobs offered, Lock said his short-term career choice kept him on his toes, with one minor accident having the potential to be fatal.

"They asked whether I was interested in working at the crocodile farm which was a bit of a shock," Lock said. "I went and had a look at the farm and started the next day. It has been a bit of an eye-opener."

Lock said safety came first during all hours of the day, as crocodiles were dangerous and could easily kill a human.

"You have to watch yourself a bit because you are in open water majority of the time and are handling live animals," Lock said.

"It was pretty daunting during the first couple of shifts, but now that I am a bit used to it, it does not faze me.

"I have had a few close calls ... You do not realise how fast you can run when you have a crocodile chasing after you at full speed."

Planning on staying for around six months and the whole season, Lock said he thought the experience would be beneficial for his independence and development.

"All I want footy wise is to just play and understand other football clubs and the culture involved," he said. "I think the decision was mainly for independence and to see myself grow as a person."

Having confidence in his new team, Lock said he hoped to win a few games while playing for a new team and make some long-lasting friends. "If I do like Darwin, I will probably stay for the dry season just to see the bit better weather and the outskirts a bit more."

Securing stellar wins so far, Lock said he was "still seeing stars", breaking his hand during the first game and losing consciousness in the second.

Banks Bulldogs Football Club Division 1 team won the 2018/2019 Northern Territory Football League season.

The club's president is former Mount Gambier player Will Johnson and North Adelaide stalwart Cohen Thiele is the coach.
