DEBATE on Millicent's rare shop trading hour regime dominated Wednesday's sitting of Parliament, with Treasurer Rob Lucas dismissing claims one of the town's supermarkets will close if deregulation is permitted in large stores.

Earlier this week, Mr Lucas announced a plan to introduce a Bill to enable South Australian electors to cast their vote on extending shop trading hours across the state in a historic referendum to be held on the same day as the 2022 state election.

AN EXPANSION of the state's commercial kangaroo harvest zone to include the Lower South East has done little to mitigate animal collisions, with data revealing the number of insurance claims involving kangaroos has remained unchanged.

Figures sourced from RAA Insurance show the number of claims stemming from animal accidents - a significant majority of which are kangaroos - in the Wattle Range Council has effectively remained the same for the last three years.

A department spokesperson said almost all of the 1300 Western Grey Kangaroos earmarked for harvest were reached.

The population estimate of Eastern Grey Kangaroos in the Lower South East region has dropped from 61,826 in 2020 to 34,883 in 2021.

State's regions shape play

CHARLOTTE VARCOE

charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

A PERFORMANCE piece moulded by the people and places of regional South Australia will hit the Sir Robert Helpmann Theatre stage on Tuesday.

Award-winning South Australian playwright Emily Steel will bring regional voices to the forefront in Euphoria - a rich and heart-warming tale with a focus on the good and bad days of mental health.

Ms Steel travelled throughout regional South Australia during the writing process with Country Arts SA's arts and health creative producer to understand the state's regional communities.

They also spent time working alongside mental health units and met with clinical staff and clientele to speak about the joys and challenges of country life.

Performer Ashton Malcolm said the audience could expect a good laugh from the performance despite the heavy emphasis on mental health.

"I like to say that people can expect to laugh because they often think it is a very heavy performance but Ms Steel is very clever and funny and I do think people can have a good time with their friends and see a bit of their lives on stage, or even people in their community in the characters on stage," Ms Malcolm said.

"The play does go into some sad places but it does so in a way that is caring and honest and quite often in a way that we are going there with the audience."

The performer said being in the show was a joy with many involved in the process growing up regionally.

"This play is an actor's dream as it is just me

Euphoria - a play written based on people and places across regional South Australia - will be performed at Sir Robert Helpmann Theatre on Tuesday.

Picture: CHRIS HERZFELD/CAMLIGHT PRODUCTIONS and James Smith, who is one of my favourite actors, so I am thrilled to be alongside him on stage," she said.

"It is a real workout for us because we play so many different characters and there are times where we do need to have a quick character swap but the play also goes from funny to emotional places, which is a challenge for actors to perform."

Following the cancellation of the performance's planned debut in 2020, Ms Malcolm said it was fantastic to be back onstage in front of a live audience.

"Getting to be in a room with real people once again is fantastic because we were not able to do that last year," she said.

"We are all very excited to come to Mount Gambier and share the show with as many people as possible."

Ms Steel said it was an honour to create a script close to regional South Australia.

"It was a privilege to meet so many people in so many communities, and to hear about their experiences," Ms Steel said.

"Euphoria is fictional, but I hope that, thanks to all those who helped with the research, its characters and their stories will feel real."

Euphoria will be performed at Sir Robert Helpmann Theatre on Tuesday at 1pm and 7pm.

Region's first COVID community clinic open

THE region's first community COVID-19 clinic for eligible people under 50 years will open on Monday, May 17 in Mount Gambier.

The clinic will be located in Shop 50 at Mount Gambier Central shopping centre at 21 Helen Street and provide the Pfizer vaccine to people under 50 in Phases 1a and 1b of the program.

Frontline health workers, quarantine and border workers, adults with an underlying medical condition or significant disability, critical and high risk workers, household contact of quarantine and border workers and healthcare workers who are currently employed are eligible to receive the vaccine.

Bookings are essential and can be made online at covid-vaccine.healthdirect.gov.au/ eligibility or over the phone on 1800 253 787.

Health Minister Steven Wade said the opening of the Mount Gambier clinic will further increase the State Government's capacity to reach more people across the region.

"While the majority of South Australians will receive their vaccination through their GP, the establishment of clinics across the state is playing an important role in ensuring more people have access to the vaccine when their turn comes," he said.

"The vaccination program is our doorway out of this pandemic and we encourage all South Australians to roll up their sleeve when it's their turn to get vaccinated."

Meanwhile, the Australian Government will increase the number of AstraZeneca doses being provided to participating general practices as of next week.

GPs which have been receiving 50 doses per week will now receive 150 weekly doses and clinics receiving 100 doses will increase to 200 doses.

QR code crackdown

SOUTH Australia Police has launched a targeted operation to reduce public complacency around COVID-29 QR code use.

Plain clothed police officers will be on patrol across the state as part of Operation Trace, ensuring people are checking in and providing their contact details when they enter a business or attend a public activity.

South Australian Police Commissioner Grant Stevens said police had taken an educational approach to QR codes, however, they expect the community would now be well versed on their check-in requirements.

Comm Stevens said authorities had observed a level of complacency regarding COVID-19 check-ins.

"You may not know whether our officers are observing you walk into a business and so I would encourage each and every member of the public to do the right thing and check in where you are required to," he said.

"We have been tolerant but people need to start using the system if we are to continue seeing an increase in public activities across the state."

If a person in South Australia tests positive to COVID-19, authorities will use the COVID Safe Check-In to identify and contact others who visited the same place at the same time and may have been exposed to the virus.

The information is only used for official contact tracing purposes in reducing the spread of COVID-19.

There are up to one million QR code check-ins daily across the state with more than 59,800 businesses registered with the system.

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

TREASURER Rob Lucas has reignited debate over the state's "archaic, confusing and shambolic" shop trading laws which restrict two of Millicent's supermarkets from opening on Sundays and public holidays.

Despite the Millicent community voting twice to retain the town's rare regulated shopping regime and the defeat of retail reforms in parliament in 2018, the State Government has announced plans for a statewide referendum on trading hour deregulation.

Millicent is the only regional town in South Australia where supermarkets larger than 400 square metres - Woolworths and Foster's Foodland - are unable to open on Sundays and public holidays.

The two stores are required to close at 6pm on most weekdays and 5pm on Saturdays with just one supermarket - Millicent IGA - able to trade without restrictions.

Speaking to The Border Watch, Mr Lucas said the State Government did not support the retention of the current legislation as it facilitated a "completely haphazard implementation of shop trading hours across the board".

"Every year, I get a request from the Millicent Business Community Association to allow Millicent to have extended trading hours for Easter Saturday and the Geltwood Festival because the laws that everyone said they voted for don't allow it," he said.

"It seems to be a crazy way of running South Australia that the Treasurer, who is in Adelaide, has to issue a gazette to allow two shops in Millicent to trade on Easter Saturday and festival day.

"The shops should be in a position where if they want to trade on festival day or on Easter Saturday they can trade and if they don't want to trade, they don't have to."

Mr Lucas stressed any deregulation of shop trading hours would not force Millicent retailers to open, but would instead provide consumers with more choice and shop owners with more flexibility.

"Our proposal is not to allow exemptions for one little area here and one little area there, but have a broad set of rules and the big test will be whether people will want to shop or not," he said.

STATUS QUO CALL: Millicent IGA manager Sukhchain Dhaliwal has warned allowing the town's three supermarkets to trade on a Sunday will result in job losses at the George Street supermarket.

"If people don't want to shop at Foster's, they will go somewhere else.

"If Foster's don't want to trade, they don't have to - they might make a commercial judgement and that is a call for the business, but we are giving them the choice."

The government's referendum bill was introduced into the Upper House on Thursday, but is unlikely to pass the Legislative Council with Labor indicating the party will not support the proposal.

The Greens, SA-Best and Advance SA parliamentarian John Darley - who voted with Labor to kill off the government's proposed reforms in 2018 - have also flagged they will block the proposed referendum.

But the government's immutable stance on deregulation has sparked anger among the town's independent supermarket workers, with Millicent IGA manager Sukhchain Dhaliwal saying changes to the status quo would "kill us".

Mr Dhaliwal said a majority of the George Street retailers profits stemmed from its extended trading, estimating the store was three times busier on a Sunday than any other day.

"A major part of our sales are on Sundays because on the other weekdays the other supermarkets are open and obviously they have a bigger store, they have more choices and people do a major part of their shopping there," he said.

"We normally have about 10 people working on a Sunday, but if the other supermarkets are allowed to start operating on the same days, we would only have four people working.

Foster's Foodland manager Dave Foster - who is vehemently to any changes to Millicent's shop trading hour regime - said he was unsurprised by the government's renewed push to deregulate the state.

"I am not surprised at all because the Liberals haven't listened to Millicent from the start, they have just completely ignored us," he said.

"Deregulation will have a huge impact on the town, because three supermarkets in a town this big is not sustainable.

"We will spread out staff out over the seven days and our wage bill might be slightly higher on a Sunday until one of the supermarkets closes, which is inevitable."

Long-time deregulation proponent Woolworths welcomed the government's proposal, with a spokesperson saying "the referendum will allow all those views to be heard and give South Australian voters the final say."

Labor parliamentarian Clare Scriven said the opposition remained opposed to total deregulation and could not see any way it would support the referendum.

"Total deregulation is designed to help Coles and Woolies increase their dominance over local retailers like Foodland and IGA and will hurt locally-owned small business," she said.

"Millicent has expressed its opposition to shopping hours being totally deregulated because local people know it would force the closure of one of Millicent's small supermarkets.

"A statewide referendum would see the views of locals swamped by those of the capital city."

Member for MacKillop Nick McBride said the State Government was aware of his long-standing views on retaining the status quo, which he said was based on supporting retailers and the community who have been against deregulation.

However, he said he fully supported the need for deregulated shopping hours in South Australia.

"I will watch with interest to see the progress of a referendum," he said.

Geared for COVID recovery: Barker budget impact

DESPITE a lack of big ticket items for the lower portion of the Barker electorate in the 2021 Budget, the Federal Government says increases in funding streams will place the regions at the centre of Australia's economic recovery following the COVID-19 induced recession.

Key initiatives include an additional $1b for the Local Roads and Community Infrastructure Program, which provides council with money to construct community amenity projects such as local roads, bike paths and community halls.

The Building Better Regions Fund will receive a $250m boost for a six round and the Stronger Communities Programme - which provides grants of $2500 to $20,000 direct to community organisations, will receive an additional $22.7m.

The Federal Government will also continue funding the South Australian Supplementary Road program, providing a further $40m over two years to facilitate strategic road maintenance projects and improved safety outcomes.

A further $1.5b has been earmarked to extend the Boosting Apprenticeships Commencement wage subsidy, delivering 170,000 new apprenticeships and trainees supported by a 50pc wage subsidy.

The Budget provides an additional tax cut to more than 10 million low and middle income earners, including around 66,000 people in Barker.

Low and middle income earners earning between $48,000 - $90,000 will benefit by up to $1,080 for individuals or $2,160 for couples.

"This is more money to spend in local businesses, giving them the confidence to take on an extra worker, offer an extra shift, or buy a new piece of equipment," Member for Barker Tony Pasin said.

"We are also continuing to incentivise business to invest, creating more economic activity and jobs."

Trade talks

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

DEBATE on Millicent's rare shop trading hour regime dominated Wednesday's sitting of Parliament, with Treasurer Rob Lucas dismissing claims one of the town's supermarkets will close if deregulation is enacted in South Australia.

Earlier this week, Mr Lucas announced a plan to introduce a Bill to enable South Australian electors to cast their vote on extending shop trading hours across the state in a historic referendum to be held on the same day as the 2022 state election.

Ms Scriven told parliament Millicent had already conducted a referendum of its own, with the Australian Electoral Commission conducting a poll of the town's 5000 residents which found nearly 80pc were in favour of regulated shopping hours in the town.

But Mr Lucas said the current "dog's breakfast" laws had resulted in "extraordinary circumstances", including one Millicent retailer reorganising its shop front to enable the store could continue trading on Sunday despite its size.

"One of the local retailers, because they were found they were trading unlawfully above the 400m² magic limit, moved the fridges and freezers in from the wall so they could reduce the area of the shop to under 400m²," he said.

"[In Millicent], a retailer had to move their cupboards or their fridges in from the extremities of the shop floor, squeeze all their customers up into narrower aisles because the shop trading hour laws say if you are under 400m² you can trade when ever you want but if you are 401m² you aren't allowed to trade.

"Every year they seek special dispensation from me and they say 'please Minister, will you allow me to trade on these particular days when the current laws don't allow us to trade.

"We have to provide special dispensation, we turn a blind eye to people moving fridges and freezers in from the walls to get under the 400m² and it makes no sense to anyone other than the shoppies union and the people they control like the Labor Party."

Mr Lucas acknowledged the widely-held concern that one of the town's three supermarkets will close if Woolworths and Foster's Foodland were permitted to trade around the clock.

"I respect their views, I love the people of Millicent dearly, I just happen to respectfully disagree with them on this issue," he said. "If they are a good retailer connected to their community and if they are provide a niche service to their market, they will always thrive. I don't subscribe to the view... that the mere change of shop trading laws will drive independent businesses across South Australia out of business."

New Beachport space

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

A PLAN to revitalise the heart of Beachport and create a new community space and carpark on Railway Terrace has been backed by residents.

Wattle Range Council recently unveiled a concept design of the Beachport Anchorage which aims to transform council-owned land into a bustling town square that can be used for events and increases car parking in the area.

Developed by council staff, the design is based on community requests and principles including green open space and an all-weather shelter for community use, good design for carparking, safe pedestrian access and ensuring access for adjoining businesses.

A total of 39 responses were received over the four-week consultation period, with council staff noting the majority of responses were positive and thought the concept met the design principles "very well".

A staff report said while most comments regarding the carpark were positive, some conflicting feedback was raised regarding access for businesses around the carpark.

"One noted that the design "maintains access for all businesses"; however, one business owner believes that the design does not have sufficient access for trucks," the report said.

BEACHPORT ANCHORAGE: Wattle Range Council will move ahead with its Beachport main street redevelopment plan after a positive public consultation period.

"This business owner suggested that an additional access point be created to allow for circular flow of traffic in the parking lot."

Wattle Range Council will incorporate feedback and ideas from the consultation into the final design phase, which is anticipated to be finished next financial year.

Council will apply for grant funding to start construction on the project, which has been estimated to cost between $250,000 and $300,000.

CONCEPT SUPPORTED: A plan to upgrade Beachport's Railway Terrace has received strong community support.

Playgrounds on the move

A PUBLIC playground closed due to safety concerns will be replaced in Mount Gambier's south-east this month.

The Wirrina Park playground was closed in late October last year after an inspection identified the structural integrity of the equipment was compromised due to corrosion.

The replacement pre-fabricated equipment has been delayed due to COVID-19 but Mount Gambier City Council plans to have it installed at the reserve, which is flanked by Swallow Drive, by the end of May.

Council has also relocated playground equipment formerly installed at Olympic Park to Quarry Reserve in Conroe Heights.

It follows the removal of the climbing structure and swing set at the reserve, which was donated to the Rotary Club of Mount Gambier Lakes and will be sent to Ryder Cheshire's Klibur Domin medical facility in Timor-Leste.

They're moving for a cause

CHARLOTTE VARCOE

charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

THE Valley Lakes precinct was a hive of activity early Sunday as many gathered to participate in the annual Women in Super Mother's Day Classic breast cancer fundraiser.

The early risers walked, jogged or ran either 2km, 4km, 6km or 8km courses with staggered starts to further assist with COVID-19 restrictions.

It comes alongside the thousands across the nation who came together over 75 different locations to participate in the fundraising event.

Despite a smaller turnout compared to previous years, Mount Gambier Mother's Day Classic committee members were grateful the event was able to be held.

Event coordinator Chris O'Callaghan said the day was a positive experience for volunteers and participants.

"Everyone who participated said they enjoyed their walk and many did three or four laps with a few runners in the mix as well," Mr O'Callaghan said.

"We were a little disappointed in lower numbers but considering the cancellations last year, we were just happy to be able to hold the event and it was successful for what it was."

MOVING FOR A CAUSE: Nikki and Phil Ackland with Megan Medhurst were among the volunteers for the 2021 Mount Gambier Mother's Day Classic.

Hoping to build up the event once again for next year, Mr O'Callaghan said it was difficult to work around COVID-19 restrictions but lower numbers eased the strain on volunteers throughout the day.

"People were fantastic with the restrictions, they all understood and did what they needed to do," he said.

"They were great with the QR code signs, social distancing and sanitising upon entry."

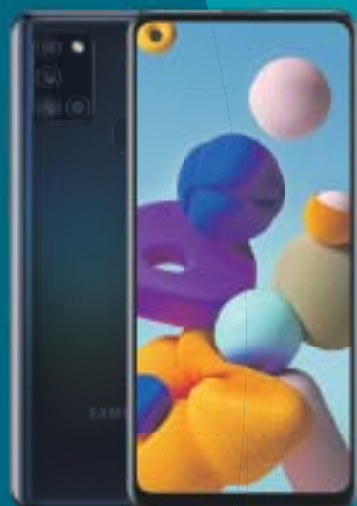

Mr O'Callaghan said the committee would now work towards next year's event where it hopes to entice more people into registering for the day.

"It will be great to get back up to the hundreds as we have done in previous years but anything we can do is great because at the end of the day the event is about raising awareness and funds for breast cancer," he said.

"We are hoping for continued community support for the event and thank all those who did attend, volunteer and the businesses who also donated."

No 'roo crash change

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

AN EXPANSION of the state's commercial kangaroo harvest zone to include the Lower South East has done little to mitigate animal collisions, with data revealing the number of insurance claims involving kangaroos has remained unchanged.

Figures sourced from RAA Insurance show the number of claims stemming from animal accidents - a significant majority of which are kangaroos - in the Wattle Range Council has effectively remained the same for the last three years.

Last month's collision data show nine claimed accidents occurred in Wattle Range Council - the highest rate of incidences in the month of April since 2017.

Wattle Range elected member and Glencoe resident Dale Price is among hundreds of motorists who traverse among the regions' kangaroo hot spots and believes the true crash data is significantly higher.

"I have real concerns for motorists who have to drive along our roads as I believe the number of kangaroos has significantly increased," he said.

"If I drive on Kangaroo Flat or Mile Hill Road at night, I drive at 60kph because of the sheer numbers of kangaroos.

"In my opinion, the official number of incidents on record would be well below the real number of collisions.

"The extremely reflective and poorly positioned signs on Kangaroo Flat and Mile Hill Roads also impede vision when drivers are looking out for roos."

?According to RAA data, 57 claims were made in 2018, 59 in 2019 and 57 in 2020 in the Wattle Range area.

Last year, 48 claims were made for accidents that occurred in the Grant District Council area, compared to 82 in 2019 and 47 in 2018.

But accidents have been steadily on the rise in recent years, with just 39 collisions in Wattle Range in 2017 and 32 for the same period across Grant District Council.

Mr Price acknowledged the management of kangaroo species through harvesting, but said stronger action needed to be taken to ensure the safety of drivers.

"I believe there should be a cull in the South East, licensed shooters can do the job," he said.

"In roadside areas of high risk, forest growers should also be required to mow verges so kangaroos are not inclined to congregate and feed on the grass."

As of January 1 last year, the Environment Department permitted the native animals to be commercially harvested for the first time in 2020, with the full 7400 quota harvested for Eastern Grey Kangaroos.

A department spokesperson said almost all of the 1300 Western Grey Kangaroo target was accounted for.

Changes in the population estimate of Eastern Grey Kangaroos in the Lower South East region from 61,826 in 2020 to 34,883 in 2021 has facilitated a quota of 5200 for this year.

A slight increase in the estimated number of Western Grey Kangaroos has resulted in a quota of 1300 for the species this year.

"Kangaroo populations may fluctuate between years based on a number of environmental factors, such as rainfall," the spokesperson said.

"Population estimates in the Upper and Lower South East harvest sub-regions were slightly lower during the 2020 surveys than 2019 surveys, partly due to a change in survey design to capture a larger proportion of the Lower South East during 2020.

"Due to the high harvest rate in the South East, both sub-regions will be surveyed again this year to monitor the kangaroo population."

While discussion continues to centre around culling, harvest programs and driving under the speed limits to help bolster road safety, a new approach to managing road crossing incidents is being piloted in Queensland.

Sunshine Coast Council is currently trialling a virtual fence that alerts kangaroos to oncoming cars or motorbikes before crossing and correspondingly, motorists and cyclists are warned to slow down.

The network of stand-alone acoustic posts which when activated by vehicle headlights, triggers lights and sound devices fitted on to the posts which aim to warn fauna.

Sunshine Coast Council natural areas conservation officer Tyson de Kauwe said more than 180 posts had been installed across more than 5km of high-conflict road and to date, implementing the project has cost approximately $40,000.

"Council has partnered with wildlife rehabilitation and research groups to identify priority areas for the technology and intends to continue installing the technology in the highest priority areas," he said.

"The monitoring of all sites is still in progress and will be reviewed later this year."

Wattle Range Council chief executive Ben Gower said the scheme was worth considering and could be implemented on council-owned roads.

"If it is affordable and the evidence suggests it works, we might be able to put five or so on Mount Burr Road and see if the community notices a difference in the number of kangaroos," he said.

"Given the length of our road network, I am not surprised we have a high claim rate, but we also have a lot of forestry where the kangaroos feed on the side of the road.

"I think these virtual highways are definitely worth a look, as long as the kangaroos don't get used to the flash."

RAA Insurance Claims manager Hayley Cain urged drivers to be cautious on the road, remain alert and should safely reduce their speed where possible to avoid a collision with an animal.

Ms Cain advised motorists to avoid driving at dusk and dawn if possible in rural areas where animals are more active.

"While colliding with an animal is a regrettable and unnerving experience, we advise motorists not to brake heavily or swerve as this could result in a more serious crash," she said.

"Also the financial cost of colliding with an animal could range from a few thousand dollars to the car being a write-off, depending on the animal and the speed involved."

No adverse outcomes

THE state's health authority says it is not aware of any adverse clinical outcomes at the Mount Gambier Hospital after a computer glitch added digits to medication dosages across the state.

Last week, staff at metropolitan hospitals received a memo warning to be on "high alert" for high dosage numbers, with SA Health chief executive Chris McGowan telling ABC Radio the software had been duplicating the last digit of medication doses.

"If you were to have 70 milligrams, you would be prescribed 177 milligrams," he said.

In a statement, SA Health said the root cause of the failure of the Sunrise electronic medical record system, which is in place at the Mount Gambier Hospital, had yet to be determined.

SA Health said an interim solution has been in place since 2.30am on May 7 and all hospitals on the Sunrise system were using that solution.

"As soon as we became aware of the intermittent issue, all sites using the Sunrise system were notified and implemented risk mitigation strategies or business continuity plans," a SA Health spokesperson said.

"Additional prescription reviews by medical officers, nursing, midwifery and pharmacists are in place while we investigate the root cause of the intermittent issue.

"As well as this, an additional alert has been added to the medication ordering screen."

Tourism focus for city

MOUNT Gambier businesses will be given insight into how South Australia's peak tourism body supports the region at next week's Mount Gambier Chamber of Commerce Mix and Mingle event.

Tourism Industry Council South Australia partnerships coordinator Jessica Harris will speak at the May 20 event at The Mount Gambier Hotel.

It comes as the chamber recently welcomed The Apple Farm proprietor Kelsie Prowse to its board to support the chamber and the returning Tourism Mount Gambier sub-committee.

Chamber president Hayley Neumann said after a long and hard recovery for some business, the return of the tourism sub-committee would combine expertise, skills and experience.

"This is also acknowledgment of the essential role that tourism plays, intertwining with our entire economy rather than a stand-alone sector," Ms Neumann said.

Ms Prowse said she was eager to work with the chamber to help support, grow and advocate for all businesses in the city and wider region, including the tourism and hospitality sector.

"Operating a business throughout the pandemic means I know how tough it has been and I am excited about the upcoming initiatives to support this sector," she said.

The Mix and Mingle event will be held Thursday at The Mount Gambier Hotel from 5.30pm.

Tickets are $15 with free entry for chamber members.

Home detention

A MOUNT Gambier woman will serve a home detention sentence after splitting the lip of her neighbour and hitting another over the head with a glass.

Elfreeda Samantha Van Horen, 24, pleaded guilty in the Adelaide District Court for a charge of assault causing harm and aggravated assault.

In the morning of New Year's Day, Van Horen's neighbour called the police after hearing a female screaming and yelling before realising the disturbance was coming from the defendants house.

The neighbour approached Van Horen's in the front window of the house, with the defendant starting yelling abuse at the woman.

The court heard Van Horen asked the woman if she wanted to fight, to which the neighbour attempted to assure the defendant she was only trying to help.

Judge Ian Press said Van Horen grabbed the back of the woman's head and pulled her to the ground by her hair, ripping a clump of hair in the process.

While the victim fell, Van Horen started to punch the woman with one punches splitting her lip.

The victim's husband heard her screams and ran to help and after a scuffle, Van Horen picked up a glass and hit the man over the head.

Judge Press said the woman required four internal stitches for her split lip, while her husband suffered a lump and bruising to the back of his head as a result.

When interviewed by police, Van Horen admitted she pulled the victim's hair and punched her twice, but did not remember assaulting her husband.

Van Horen told police she was drunk and angry, and when intoxicated she was unable to control herself.

In sentencing, Judge Press outlined the defendants life circumstances, including the death of her foster mother, her use of alcohol to cope with grief and witnessing the murder of her uncle by Van Horen's ex-partner in Coober Pedy.

"Not only have you had to deal with the trauma and grief of this incident, you have also had to deal with the police investigation and court proceedings for that matter," Judge Press said.

Judge Press said Van Horen had made efforts not to return to violent behaviour, saying her use of alcohol was an "aberration and it was that lack of judgement that single occasion which then led to your aggressive and violent behaviour."

Van Horen was sentenced to 11 months jail, which was discounted to seven months and 22 days because of her early guilty plea. Judge Press ordered the defendant to serve the term on home detention.

Naracoorte repeat offender jailed

A NARACOORTE woman has been jailed for at least 14 months for offending while on bail for trafficking offending and in breach of parole for an earlier trafficking sentence.

Jessica Anne Alyce Bates, appeared in the Adelaide District Court for after breaching a suspended sentence relating to methamphetamine trafficking. Judge Joanne Tracey told the court the offences had been committed prior to Bates entering the good behaviour bond in April 2020.

At the time, Bates was also under community corrections supervision for a number of breaches of bail agreements, drug possession and drug trafficking committed in August 2014.

The court heard on January 31, 2020, Bates was stopped by police while driving and was found to be in possession of methamphetamine and a homemade taser.

Judge Tracey said on February 25, 2020 Bates was travelling from Adelaide to Naracoorte when she was pulled over by police who found an ice pipe and drugs.

Following her arrest on August 7, 2020, Bates failed to report to correction interviews in October and November, prompting Judge Tracey to say the defendant "clearly failed to avail yourself of the opportunity for rehabilitation".

"While there was at least superficial compliance with reporting for a period of time, it would seem that unfortunately I can have no confidence in your ability to sustain meaningful compliance with supervision," Judge Tracey said.

"It is most unfortunate both for you and the community that there has been no progress, but there is nothing before me that can give me confidence that you would comply into the future."

Bates was sentenced for two years with a 14 month non-parole period.

IN BRIEF

LIMESTONE Coast Police are investigating recent thefts of recyclable semi-precious and scrap metal from Bordertown and Keith.

Scrap metal was stolen from Bordertown rubbish dump sometime between April 24 and 28.

Police believe the theft is likely linked to another crime at Keith between April 27 and May 8 where eight 20-metre lengths of copper cabling were taken from a locked storage container.

According to police, the theft of copper, aluminium and brass is a widespread problem for public utilities and services, private companies, the building industry and scrap metal businesses.

The theft of scrap metal can also pose a danger to thieves as well as cause significant property damage.

Police urge the public to be vigilant and report any suspicious behaviour on the police assistance line on 131 444 immediately.

Anyone with information about scrap metal theft can report it anonymously to police via Crime Stoppers on 1800 333 000 or online at www.crimestopperssa.com.au.

Meanwhile, a Mount Gambier man lost his licence and had his vehicle impounded after being caught drink driving last Saturday night.

The 57-year-old man was pulled over at a driver testing station on Jubilee Highway West and recorded a blood alcohol reading of 0.154, more than three times the legal limit.

He was reported for drink driving and issued with a 12-month instant loss of licence.

His vehicle was impounded for 28 days and he will be summonsed to appear in court at a later date.

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

raquel.mustillo@tbwtoday.com.au

FORMER Catholic nun Jane Qualmann will lead an unlikely group of pro-voluntary assisted dying allies including a Christian minister, a Labor, Liberal and crossbench MP at a candlelight vigil next week.

Following the passage of the voluntary assisted dying bill in the state's Upper House, Ms Qualmann has organised a Candles for Compassion event to remember those who have suffered at their end of life and demonstrate support for voluntary euthanasia.

Labor heavyweight and former Mount Gambier resident Kyam Maher, who successfully introduced the bill to the Legislative Council, will stand alongside independent MP Troy Bell and Liberal Member for MacKillop Nick McBride at the May 21 event.

Ms Qualmann - who is in the final stages of neurogenetic bowel syndrome - has also secured Christians Supporting Choice for Voluntary Assisted Dying Reverend Michael Dowling and peak advocacy groups Voluntary Assisted Dying SA and A Peaceful End for the Mount Gambier event. She said she was buoyed by the groundswell of support for voluntary assisted dying in the region, including from those who identify as Christians.

"All of the feedback I have had is really, really positive and there are a lot of people from all kinds of backgrounds who want this bill to be passed," Ms Qualmann said.

"Mount Gambier is a very conservative and religious place and there are plenty of Catholics, Lutherans, Anglicans and others out there who support giving people the choice to choose their own ending.

"We are very lucky to have Reverend Michael Dowling, who is a Uniting Church minister, come down as part of Christians Supporting Choice for Voluntary Assisted Dying.

"Michael Dowling is going to show people who may feel they can't have a voice because of their religion that they do have a voice and they are not alone."

After more than six hours of debate, Mr Maher's voluntary assisted dying bill, which would allow people who are suffering from an incurable and terminal illness, disease or condition to access the scheme under strict guidelines, passed the state's Legislative Council.

Despite Premier Steven Marshall indicating the historic bill would be debated in the House of Assembly as soon as possible, the proposed legislation was not listed on this week's notice paper. Debate on the bill is likely to start on May 25.

Ms Qualmann acknowledged the controversial nature of the bill and the support of Mr Maher and Limestone Coast lower house MPs - who have both indicated they will vote in favour of voluntary assisted dying.

"The vigil is a good chance to show the region has thrown our support behind Troy Bell and Nick McBride who have both said they are willing to take our voice to parliament," she said.

"It is a controversial bill, but they are going to stand in solidarity with anyone who has witnessed a horrific death of a loved one or people who are terminally ill and want the right to choose.

"The world is changing and with that, our politics and laws have to change with it too.

"From an ex-nun's perspective, the church also needs to start being progressive and move with the times, because there is no love and compassion in watching someone die in agony."

The event will start at 5pm at the Sir Robert Helpmann Theatre verandah, Mount Gambier.

Individuals are encouraged to wear the colour red to demonstrate support for change in South Australia.

READERS HAVE THEIR SAY

I AM a registered nurse and I have been working as such for almost 40 years.

I am also a practicing Christian and I am certain God would not want anyone to die in agony like our politicians want us to do.

I too have always been a staunch believer of Voluntary Assisted Dying.

If only we could all die in our sleep. They are the lucky ones. I have seen people with lung diseases drowning in their own secretions. These patients can suffer for days or even weeks gasping for air.

There is only so much a nurse can do to alleviate them of their pain and suffering and if the patient does not have family they are left to suffer and die alone due to the nurses' heavy work load.

It is only when the politicians have a personal experience of seeing a loved one slowly dying of a cruel and painful disease do they realise how barbaric the dying process can be.

The only alternative we have in South Australia is to do what Rhys Habermann did, which was to take his own life.

He was only a teenager who had battled terminal bone cancer for 18 months in excruciating pain.

For Rhys, palliative care was unbearable and so he had no other choice than to take his own life so as to protect his parents from being prosecuted. Every human being should be allowed to have a choice as Jane Qualmann stated in her article.

We can only imagine the fear and dread Jane must be experiencing having a terminal illness and the suffering she is going to have to endure unless the Bill for Voluntary Assisted Dying becomes lawful in South Australia as it is in Victoria, Tasmania and Western Australia.

Every human being has the right to choose and the right to die with dignity. Amen.

MICHELLE CARLSON, KALANGADOO

I WAS disturbed to see the word "compassion" being used by supporters of the Voluntary Assisted Dying Bill 2020 outside Parliament House during the week, suggesting that those who oppose euthanasia are not compassionate.

The word "compassion" literally means 'to suffer alongside'.

It is the pledge to genuinely invest yourself in people who are suffering; to offer the best assistance you can to relieve their physical and emotional suffering and to help them maintain hope and self-esteem.

Genuine compassion impels us to do all that we can to eliminate suffering, but never eliminate the sufferer.

Genuine compassion leads us to sharing another's pain, however, it does not kill the person whose suffering we cannot bear.

Genuine compassion is expressed in palliative care which recognises the unique needs of a person who has a terminal condition.

It seeks to improve quality of life for patients, their families and carers by providing care that addresses physical, emotional, social, cultural and spiritual needs.

The aim is to help the person live as well as possible; not to die as soon as possible.

I personally find it bizarre that with the huge emphasis on COVID-19 protocols and procedures being implemented by our civil authorities to preserve human life, that the same civil authorities through abortion and euthanasia are seeking to create and enshrine laws, protocols and procedures to destroy human life.

Our local MPs have a duty to weigh the long term social and institutional ramifications of this law and I strongly urge them to vote against this Bill.

EDITOR'S COMMENT

THEY are humble, hardworking and rarely seek the limelight, and while a national week of celebration goes some way to highlighting the importance of volunteers, their value is truly immeasurable.

From service clubs to sporting clubs, health facilities to schools, volunteers are the lifeblood of our communities.

Each contribution, now matter how grand or seemingly insignificant, amount to millions of hours and many more millions of dollars saved across the Limestone Coast annually.

National Volunteer Week is a time to thanks those who seek no thanks but only serve to better their communities.

While acknowledging this service is worthwhile, now is as poignant a time as ever for Limestone Coast residents to consider where and how they can volunteer.

A common thread among many volunteer organisations is ageing membership or dwindling numbers.

After significant impacts caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, many volunteer-based clubs face an uphill battle to regain momentum and maintain membership.

If these clubs and roles continue to fall away, it would leave a noticeable hole in our community fabric and leave more charitable work to be done by fewer hands.

Volunteerism does not have to be an arduous or time-consuming task and it is quite likely many of you already fulfil some role in a volunteer capacity.

For those interested in or searching to serve, the time is now to give back to your community and help build on the legacy of selfless service instilled in past generations.

Action for homeless

OVER the last few weeks I've begun to notice that more and more people have started raising their voices about the continuing crisis which is homelessness in our region.

A recent article compiled online highlighted emergency accommodation providers having to turn people away due to an upturn in tourists to the South East booking a place to stay.

While this is a positive, it's also a double-edged sword to which I pointed out in my previous editorial a few months back.

Our region alone isn't the only location in Australia combating a rising homelessness crisis with New South Wales and Queensland suffering, however, a newly formed charity organization called Beddown has been doing excellent work in both states through utilizing undercover carparks that are vacant at night time as pop up shelters for those needing a place to sleep.

They also work in conjunction with other charity organizations to provide those less fortunate with showers/laundry facilities and other necessities including food, health and wellbeing support

With there being so many empty buildings in the South East, including the former Bunnings site on Princess Highway in Mount Gambier, I strongly believe if the support is there could be utilized as emergency accommodation or even over-night pop up shelters for those sleeping rough, thus mitigating the number of homeless in our area very slightly whilst also opening the doors to even more possibilities to tackle the crisis too.

Another solution recently adopted by Byron Bay council in New South Wales is utilizing unused/defunct railway corridors and other parcels of land to build tiny homes on.

The number of homeless people in that council area is 200 with that council declaring a housing crisis.

If this kind of initiative/concept were to be adopted/accepted by the councils in this region it would in turn prevent our homeless numbers from reaching 200 or even higher, plus these tiny homes could also be placed under a rent to town model allowing for people to cumulate their own wealth/assets while getting back on their feet.

Pandemic disrupts buying routines

now here's a thought

OF COURSE there were going to be some outcomes of the COVID pandemic which weren't going to be at front of mind when it hit.

I do recall a shortage of vegetable seedlings and seeds when the first lockdown hit.

While the intent behind that may have been positive, I know from decades of gardening experience that there is a tad more to growing a successful vegetable garden than sticking a few seedlings in the back yard and then disappearing inside to check your social media.

Over a third of Australians have gained weight in the past year.

There has been more snacking through the day and an increase in ordering takeaway foods.

No doubt food and alcohol companies capitalised on the pandemic.

People in lockdown are vulnerable.

They can easily fall into habits of comfort eating and drinking and companies know that.

I have been amused by how many vouchers Uber Eats has sent me unsolicited, even one for Mother's Day.

How incredibly thoughtful of them.

I'm just not sure how such a voucher is going to work for me even if I did want to use it.

People spending their days in their homes suddenly noticed how tired their sofa was or how lumpy their mattress had become.

Given that they wouldn't be going to Bali any time soon, it seemed fair enough to spend money on home comforts.

This was all to the extraordinary benefit of the largest homewares chain of stores across the country who still pocketed JobKeeper as well as increased sales and profits.

Apparently, the number of high end car sales has also risen markedly.

This has had a flow on effect of increasing the price of used vehicles; the vehicles that are bought by people who don't have enough money for a Porsche.

Community stands united

charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

VICTIMS of domestic and family violence were remembered last week during the annual candlelight vigil held at Mount Gambier's Cave Gardens precinct.

Around 70 community members held candles in memoriam of people killed in domestic and family violence incidents, including 11 Australian women who have lost their lives to these crimes in 2021 alone.

Domestic violence survivor and writer Glyn Scott spoke at the event, highlighting the importance of community intervention before attendees placed their lit candles to create the outline of the number 11.

Confronting the challenges of being a domestic violence victim, Ms Scott now campaigns tirelessly to bring an end to the issue, hoping to make a significant difference in the lives of victims.

Founder of the Love, Hope and Gratitude Foundation, Ms Scott spoke on her experience and highlighted ways community members were able to support victims.

"For me it is about the passion to see that other women and children do not suffer," Ms Scott said.

"It is a very sad situation to know how many women are dying and how many children are in domestic violent situations each year.

"It is not only the women but the children that we have to be mindful of and it just cannot go on."

Ms Scott said the national issue was a community matter which "must be confronted together".

"We need to do more than what we are doing to stop this from happening and education is one thing but people need to be on the lookout all the time, to look and listen to what is going on around us because there are many signs that people are suffering," she said.

"I encourage everyone that if you see someone who has their shoulders slumped, go up and ask if they are okay because that is what we need to get the conversation started because so many women who are suffering from domestic violence are doing it alone."

Speaking on the event, Limestone Coast Family Violence Action Group member Peter Zeitz said it heartening to see such community support.

"To acknowledge the seriousness of family and domestic violence within the regional and on a national level is critical," Mr Zeitz said.

"It was pleasing to see the response of the community and to acknowledge those who have passed away due to the matter."

Mr Zeitz said hosting the event was important for the region as the Limestone Coast was not immune from family violence.

"It is good to create that awareness for those who need that support and also for people to stand up in the community and speak against it," he said.

"Everyone has a role to play in addressing domestic violence and those who might be impacted.

"Generally most people go to the police if they need protection but sometimes they don't feel safe to go there so there are a number of other resources available."

Pioneer tales

PENOLA'S rich history will be at the community's fingertips tomorrow as the town's National Trust branch hosts the annual Tombstones and Tales cemetery walkthrough.

Featuring stories of up to 10 historical pioneers of the district, attendees will have access to hours of researched information about where the pioneers came from and how they lived.

National Trust of South Australia Penola branch member and event organiser Christine Dohnt said the event featured important information for the town and would greatly attribute to the rich knowledge of the community.

"We will be talking about the Penola pioneers and their lives in Penola and will begin with where they originated from, their lives and why they were here, including how they died," Ms Dohnt said. "It is important because it gives those who are interested a bit more information about our pioneers and how they lived, where they worked and their family life."

Ms Dohnt said the pioneers would be spoken about in great detail over the two-hour event.

"We are hoping attendees will be interested in the lives of these important historical figures and learn about their time and life in Penola, the hardships they endured and their attributions," she said.

"There have been a lot of research which has gone into this event and we do hope it will be a good day and it seems to get bigger each and every year."

The guided tour will take place tomorrow between 2pm and 4pm with a $5 entry fee. It is limited to 30 people.

Women's legacy lives

charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

THE legacy of women who shaped the Penola district will be continued through the Penola Women's Project, which has been given a new home in Penola Coonawarra Visitor Information Centre's history room.

The ongoing project celebrates women from Penola and Coonawarra through a series of subject-focused portrait photos and lifestyle shots, accompanied by a brief written insight into their impact on the community.

Inspired by a similar project in a small Victorian town which was televised in 2017, Penola's Terra Rossa Country Women's Association (CWA) group banded together to capture the history of the region's women through a project of their own.

CWA member Anne Johnson said it was a critical project for future generations given history focused predominately on the contribution of men.

"We decided to start our own project because a lot of the voices of history are about men in the community and we really wanted to start celebrating some of the women," Ms Johnson said.

"In the first year that we had the exhibition we decided to do the theme They Came for Love and we had Christy Radford take some amazing portrait photos and lifestyle shots for us."

Ms Johnson said the project was initially a temporary exhibition at Parker Coonawarra Estate over a few weeks to coincide with the annual Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival.

However following its first year, staff at the estate enjoyed the exhibition enough to keep it on display year-round.

"Each year we now just turn it over to the next theme and instead of collecting dust, the photos and works are all on display now in the town's history room," Ms Johnson said.

"There are some amazing stories that have come out of the project over the years, especially about those who have, just by unusual circumstances, found their partner and ended up here in Penola.

"It just shows how there are so many opportunities for more doors to open and that the women are the fabric of our community and they really have incredible stories, lives and there are a lot of women in the city who do not realise the effort and support those in the country provide for others."

The avid member said it was a critical project which not only celebrated women individually but also celebrated the community and support that women give and receive.

THEY CAME FOR WORK: Penola local Kate Spencer is one of many featured in the They Came for Work installment at the Penola History Room at the Penola Coonawarra Visitor Information Centre

Among the women featured at the history room is Amanda Flint, who said it was an honour to be a part of the project, adding it was wonderful the stories were able to live on through the permanent display.

"When I was first approached I was a little scared because I was still new to the community and was finding my way but when the women at the CWA explained what I had brought to the community, I decided it was good to showcase that I did bring dancing to the community for little kids," Ms Flint said.

"It was good to see that I was making my way in the community because when you move for love you come on your own and without that family support so making those connections are really fantastic."

Ms Flint will also participate in the next round of the project from the other side of the lens, taking photographs.

Mothers and Daughters is currently on display at Parker Coonawarra Estate, displaying intergenerational similarities and differences, while celebrating the ongoing community support passed down to generations to come.

Opened on International Women's Day last year, it will be the estate's showcase event during the Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival this weekend.

CELEBRATING WOMEN: Claire Larkin OAM is one of many women featured in the second installment They Came for Work and highlights Ms Larkin's involvement in the Penola War Memorial Hospital and the Mary MacKillop Centre.

Naracoorte track ready to pump

BIKE riders, skateboarders and scooter enthusiasts are encouraged to descend to Naracoorte next week for the opening of the town's new skate bowl and pump track.

The $250,000 facility forms part of Naracoorte Lucindale Council's implementation of the Market Square Masterplan, which has included shade structures over the playground, improve paths and upgrades to the car park to facilitate long-term parking.

Playground soft-flooring upgrades, additional shelters and picnic furniture, the installation of a dog park and landscaping have also been undertaken as part of the masterplan.

The joint project between the Naracoorte Lucindale Council and the Federal Government will be officially launched by Barker MP Tony Pasin and Naracoorte mayor Erika Vickery on May 17.

Ms Vickery said Federal funding for the project was $215,000, with Victorian-based Grind Project undertaking the lead contract role and local businesses sub-contracted to complete some of the works.

READY TO ROLL: The Naracoorte skate bowl and pump track will be officially launched at a ceremony next week.

She said free snacks will be provided for children at the opening event, which will be held from 3.45pm to 5pm to allow families to attend the opening.

"We used a government grant to advance this project and we thought it would be appropriate to have an official opening of the pump track and skate bowl to celebrate the facility," Ms Vickery said.

"It was open during school holidays and the young ones have been loving it and using it right through.

"It really is one of those positive projects we can do for our youth and the opening is a really nice way to launch the finished project."

NO STOPPING: Wattle Range Council will remove 11 parking spaces from Williams Road to install No Stopping zones.

Williams Road is now a no go zone

NO stopping zone will be established around the Williams Road vicinity of Boneham Aged Care Service, resulting in the loss of 11 parking places in front of the facility and the adjacent community church.

Council voted to support a staff recommendation to remove the parking spaces following a request from the aged care facility and feedback from nearby residents.

A majority of the 11 respondents agreed Boneham did not have enough on-site parking spaces to accommodate visitors.

However, nearby property owner Ken Allwright strongly disagreed with the proposed changes, saying the proposed parking restrictions will force visitors to park at the bend further down on Williams Road and create a safety issue on the bend.

In a letter to council, Mr Allwright said installing a no parking zone in front of the facility will result in cars parking on the apex of the slight bend on Williams Road.

Mr Allwright suggested developing the vacant land adjacent to Boneham into a parking area for staff and visitors to mitigate any potential risk.

"Having people exit their cars on this stretch of road when cars are parked either side of Williams Road and the large heavy trucks that come around that bend, their welfare would always be put at risk," he said.

"As a duty of care to our travelling public, I do not believe your solution to stop this problem from occurring outside the main entrance to Boneham will be fixed by moving everyone up the road 50 to 100 metres."

Mr Allwright's concerns about visibility were shared by respondents who agreed with the proposal, with two other Williams Road residents noting the proposal will cause more congestion towards the bend.

But a council report said an assessment had indicated the road is wide enough at the bend as there are no median strips and with vehicles already parking there, no safety issues were raised by Boneham's management.

The No Stopping zones will become effective as soon as signage is installed.

RAQUEL MUSTILLO

A BUDGET variation of more than $47,000 to construct retaining walls and furnish a new kitchen camp at Beachport's Southern Ocean Tourist Park has been reluctantly agreed to by Wattle Range elected members.

At Tuesday's meeting, councillors expressed their concern over a staff request to increase council's contribution to the project following revelations furnishings - including indoor and outdoor tables, chairs, a microwave, toasters, kettles and lounge suites - had not been included as part of the initial build specification. The variation for the project is the second in less than six months.

At the January monthly meeting, council appointing Steplen Construction to complete the works for $294,953.

At the same meeting, elected members approved a $121,000 variation - raising council's total contribution to $341,550 - to accommodate construction, 10pc contingency and an upgraded power service for the facility.

Council's newly-appointed director development services Emma Clay said the inclusion of a range hood to help with smoke extraction from cooking areas was also required as part of the upgrade.

Ms Clay estimated the cost of the furnishings as being $41,800, with a retaining wall to the kitchen at $8792.

"There is a high risk of earth collapse onto the walls of the new building if retaining walls are not installed," she said.

Despite the original business case submitted for the 2020/21 budget stated the purpose of the facility was for a usable space in the cooler months and wet weather, Ms Clay said the kitchen had no provision for heating or cooling of the building.

"Council officers have sought the required energy assessments to determine if heating and cooling can be achieved whilst meeting the requirements of the National Construction Code," she said.

"Should the energy assessment come back favourable, the cost for the supply and installation of the split air conditioning unit is $18,000."

Ms Clay flagged a further contribution of $5000 for window glazing if the energy assessment determined an upgrade was required.

Corcoran Ward councillor Dennis Muhovics said the project appeared to be "very poorly planned", noting councillors had already supported a budget variation for the project earlier this year.

Cr John Drew also expressed disappointment over the expenditure and the oversight of internal and external furnishings for the facility.

"They seem to be elementary omissions," he said. "Even the issue of the retaining wall, we should have had a retaining wall in the initial design."

"Yes we will vote in favour of it because it is necessary to finish the job, but it's disappointing in this case we haven't come up to scratch."

Chief executive Ben Gower acknowledged the concerns of elected members, telling the chamber he agreed "elements were missed in the design and planning phase". "I won't say too much about how I managed that internally, other than I have been acutely aware of that issue and actions have been laid out," he said.

"Director [Emma] Clay is brand new and she is trying to fix these elements."

"I commend her report for trying to bring the kitchen up to an appropriate standard and I am sure we will get a commitment we will have the right discipline applied to these projects in the future."

IN BRIEF

Council pulls funding for Robe boat show

ROBE District Council will no longer allocate funding towards the Robe Boat Show after posting a $631 loss for the 2021 event.

Elected members voted to stop contributing to the two-day event after a requirement the event be at least cost neutral was not met. Council's financial commitment to the Robe

Boat Show 2021 was a sponsorship contribution of $2500 in cash and $2500 in-kind support.

According to council, the total contribution and expenses exceeded the value of $5000 - resulting in a $1265 deficit. "After reconciling these in-kind expenses and taking into account the profit of $633.80, the total net result of the 2021 Robe Boat Show is a deficit of -$631.23," a staff report said.

"Therefore the event has resulted in an overall loss."

Staff recommended council did not make the final monthly contract payment of $3000 for the contract, but elected members supported paying organisers the remainder of the final contract payment, which was $2368.77. Council voted to reallocate the boat show funds to the event budget for council to run an alternative event or events.

Volunteers vital to service

VOLUNTEERS are vital in delivering ac.care's mission of ensuring all country people have a safe home, enough money to live on and strong, positive relationships.

Formed in Mount Gambier 35 years ago, the "country specialist" agency combines the efforts of staff, community partnerships and dedicated volunteers to make a difference in people's lives.

"We are a community-based agency working with the people around us as part of their community, which shines through in the way volunteers commit to our mission and support us in contributing to improving the lives of country people," ac.care chief executive Shane Maddocks said.

"Thank you to our volunteers, who all make a wonderful contribution to expanding our capacity to make a difference."

The agency's volunteers include more than 200 remarkable individuals, couples and families who share their homes with over 370 children as foster carers across eastern regional South Australia, supported by ac.care staff.

"These dedicated volunteers, who open their hearts and homes to vulnerable children in need of positive relationships truly transform young lives," Mr Maddocks said.

"Sadly, we always need more volunteers to accommodate the growing number of chil-

Street backed by a dedicated support team.

Some volunteers gather weekly at the centre to help pack and distribute emergency food relief hampers to assist people doing it tough in Mount Gambier.

Meanwhile, other volunteers share their skills and knowledge, providing opportunities for social engagement and empowering community members to secure tenancies or invaluable employability skills.

Volunteers also help with reception duties through to general maintenance at the Millicent Community Centre, which delivers a diverse range of services to the community, not only providing ac.care's emergency and family support programs, but also acting as a Service SA and Services Australia agent for the town.

A further team of volunteers at Kingston South East also distribute emergency relief packages, as well as coordinating a second-hand shop to raise funds to support ac.care's valued programs.

"Our volunteers are an instrumental part of the agency and we simply couldn't provide the range of services, programs and support we do without them," Mr Maddocks said.

Strengthening communities

THE week of May 17, 2021 is National Volunteers Week.

It's a week to highlight the importance of volunteering and acknowledge and thank those that give their time to volunteer for the benefit of others.

The impact volunteers have on local communities, both socially and economically can never be underestimated.

Never has this been more evident than after a year where Australia has dealt with a global pandemic.

Amidst the pandemic, while many of us stayed home, volunteers continued to deliver essential services, organise food packages and offer care, comfort and more to support the well-being of Australians.

Volunteering is a key part of the bigger picture in our society, one that increases the strength, resilience and wellbeing of our community.

It comes in all shapes and sizes - from a casual "yes I'll help" through to a regular gig with one of the many community organisations who work tirelessly to help those in need.

Around 8.7 million Australians regularly volunteer their skills, services and time to improve the lives of those around them.

Not only is volunteering a great community service - it also has enormous financial value - a value estimated in Australian's case to be around $290b per annum.

To all volunteer's past and present - thank you for the vital role you play each and every day, and for making our communities stronger, especially during times of need, crisis and isolation.

Generosity appreciated

Wattle Range Mayor Des Noll (right) with volunteers from the Nangwarry Forestry and Logging Museum.

WATTLE Range Council Mayor Des Noll welcomes National Volunteer Week as an opportunity to acknowledge the generous contributions of the broad variety of volunteers active across the council region.

“Thank you for freely offering your valuable time and skills to the communities of Wattle Range,” Mayor Noll said.

“As selfless individuals, you contribute so much to our community. You are a large part of what makes Wattle Range Council such a rich and vibrant community.”

“We hope that volunteering has benefited you in the same way your countless hours have benefitted the community. Maybe you have made some new friends, developed your skills, or just simply had fun. Whatever your reason is for volunteering, please know it is worthwhile and we are grateful,” he added.

Many of these individuals may have come across their volunteering role through the council’s Community Volunteer Project, an online tool to help link up local community groups with prospective volunteers.

Anyone wishing to volunteer who does not know where to start, should remember that they can always head to the council website for local opportunities - www.wattlerange.sa.gov.au/living-here/community-information/volunteers.

“Thank you once again,” Mayor Noll concluded.

Contribution recognised

AS we approach National Volunteer Week, on behalf of the City of Mount Gambier I wish to acknowledge the invaluable contribution of volunteers across our city.

The theme for National Volunteer Week 2021 is Recognise. Reconnect. Reimagine.

As a council we RECOGNISE, celebrate and thank volunteers for the vital role they play in our community.

Following a year when many experienced increased loneliness or isolation, we have RECONNECTED with our volunteers and now we REIMAGINE how we can support them and the many ways in which they assist, not just in our organisation but across the city.

We all know of people throughout our community who selflessly give hundreds of hours of their own time to assist individuals, groups, organisations and associations to continue to prosper and I thank them for their efforts and encourage everyone to take the opportunity to express their gratitude throughout this annual celebration of volunteers.

At the City of Mount Gambier volunteers enhance our capacity to deliver services across many areas from the Mount Gambier Library, Riddoch Arts and Cultural Centre, ReUse Market, Valley Lake Conservation Park, Visitor Centre and they also provide invaluable assistance to community events and through the Youth Advisory Group.

I also take this opportunity to offer our appreciation to the sporting, cultural and service clubs, emergency volunteers and non-government organisations, each of which provide an invaluable contribution to Mount Gambier.

The ongoing dedication and selflessness of volunteers benefits us all.

During Volunteer Week we recognise that Mount Gambier continues to prosper thanks to the commitment of our many wonderful volunteers.

As Mayor of the City of Mount Gambier, I thank all volunteers for the vital role you play each day, and for making our community stronger.

Volunteers bring joy

LEIGH Jones has been a dedicated volunteer at Resthaven Mount Gambier for many years, bringing joy to residents' lives through his involvement and love of people.

Known for donning Hawaiian shirts on-site, Leigh has a fun, enthusiastic energy that residents look forward to each week.

"Leigh visits us every Monday, Thursday and Friday and is famous for his men's group, Coffee and Chat," Resthaven Mount Gambier acting lifestyle coordinator Carolyn Taylor said.

"The group is so popular that he runs the session every Monday and Thursday morning, with around six to eight residents joining him each time," she said.

"Residents simply love him. Leigh understands the group and always has exciting ideas to run past the men.

"Recently, Leigh brought in old newspapers from 1935, instantly sparking a discussion amongst the group.

"The men were conversing about old buildings they used to work in that are no longer around.

"There was much interest in developments that have been made since those newspapers were published - we learnt plenty from the residents in that session."

On Fridays, Leigh enjoys chatting with residents about their day and assisting them however he can, including taking the shop trolley around with treats for purchase.

"Staff really appreciate Leigh and his commitment to residents, he is a real asset to the team," Ms Taylor said.

"We encourage volunteers to take ownership of their involvement and time with residents, and they do just that."

Resthaven is currently seeking new and enthusiastic volunteers to join the team and make a difference.

Established in 1935, Resthaven is a South Australian not-for-profit aged care community service associated with the Uniting Church in Australia.

Every day, Resthaven shares the lives and wisdom of older people and their carers, opening doors to the full range of aged care service options available.

Their service

VOLUNTEER service is the backbone of community programs across Australia, and on the Limestone Coast it is no different.

Through the Red Cross, hundreds of volunteers and members support communities from Mount Gambier, Kingston, Bordertown, Millicent, Naracoorte and Robe and everywhere in between, providing services that are safe and highly valued.

The Red Cross could not run its transport services for older people, undertake daily phone support for the isolated and vulnerable, calls to those in isolation due to COVID-19, social programs for veterans, employment mentoring for new migrants, school-based disaster reliance education programs, or emergency and disaster response, without our volunteers.

Recently, traumatic events have struck a number of our communities, and Red Cross volunteers and members have responded with tremendous care and compassion.

This National Volunteer Week, Red Cross would like to thank each and every one of our volunteers, as well as our members and supporters for all that you do. If you, a family member or friend, is interested in volunteering for the Red Cross, please get in touch with our office at 49 Helen St, Mount Gambier on (08) 8725 3622.

Farm

State of our pastures

PEST HATCHES: Significant red-legged earth mite hatchings have occurred in the Limestone Coast and these insect pests are active in seeded pastures and crops.

THIS is the seventh of a series of articles prepared by Gambier Seeds to feature in The Border Watch this year. The focus of these articles will be to assist farmers to optimise productivity from their pasture and forage bases. At Gambier Seeds we believe that pastures and pasture renovation are an investment, not only in your farm production and profitability, but in its future.

DESPITE the welcome rain this week, new sown and established pastures have been impacted by the recent dry period.

After inspecting several paddocks across the district this week, a number of new challenges are emerging that will need to be addressed on farm.

Typically, early sown crops would be at a stage now where they are beyond being able to be impacted by these pests.

However, the dry conditions have meant minimal growth for the past seven to eight days.

This has left the plants more vulnerable to insect pests.

I am strongly advising re-checking and monitoring these new sown paddocks and treat appropriately if any issues found.

The key pests present or found in the past week include:

Snails and slugs: The rain has now reactivated snails and slugs and the soil moisture levels and cooler temperatures are allowing them to move and forage more freely. Both have the capability to devastate new seeded pastures and crops. I recommend baiting at emergence of new seedlings and then again at around five to seven days post-first application. In our experience in snail prone areas, this double baiting typically gives adequate protection through the establishment phase. This year however, due to the dry period, we have found we are having to bait for a third time as the seedlings have not "outgrown" the snails this year.

Cockchafers: This is shaping up as one of the worst years for red-headed cockchafer we have experienced. Damage has been seen for almost three weeks, but activity has increased in the past 10 days. Control options are limited but consult your agronomist when you find you have an issue. Visual cues are birds feeding in areas repeatedly or seeing disturbed ground or dead plants in patches within the paddock. Dig in these areas to find the grubs to identify which ones you have. Black headed cockchafers have not been actively feeding due to the dry start, but where we have found some and then sprayed for them, we have had significantly more come to the surface to die than we thought were present. This highlights that a potential large issue is looming for us later in the season. I recommend checking paddocks where finding the red heads, and if find any black headed cockchafer, spray for these. Even if only spray one paddock, you can check the paddock after spraying to assess how many are present when they come to the surface. This will give indication as to whether to continue spraying at rates for black heads as well as the RLEM.

Red Legged Earth mite (RLEM): The cold weather during last week also brought on our first hatching of these annual pests. I was however unpleasantly surprised at the number that hatched and how widespread they were. On Tuesday of last week, we had none present – by the weekend they were already doing significant damage. I found established pastures are not being badly affected, but new pastures and cereals are at spraying thresholds for damage. Ensure you check paddocks this week, and if needing to spray, I recommend discussing with your agronomist applying a rate and chemical will also control black headed cockchafers.

The other issue we are seeing is a lack of nutrient across many established pastures, especially paddocks where fodder was conserved last year.

The wet spring and summer rains have meant we removed more nutrient than normal with higher production over this period.

Nutrient removal needs to be addressed this autumn.

I am also recommending consideration is given to applying nitrogen earlier this year, as most perennial pastures are starting autumn with a much lower nitrogen base than in a "normal" year.

KEEP ON TOP: Black headed cockchafers can be easily controlled within pastures and crops.

Women meet

AFTER an 18 month hiatus due to COVID restrictions, Women in Agriculture and Business South Australia Limestone Coast held its annual regional gathering in Naracoorte.

Hosted by the Lochaber branch, the event was well attended by members from Wirrega, Padthaway and Kalangadoo branches.

Women in Agriculture and Business state president Narelle Scott presented membership awards to Adair Dunsford for 40 years of service, Lynette Staude and Ronda Noak for 30 years, while Michele Jones received recognition for 20 years of membership.

Primary producers Enid Modra and Louise Charlick will receive their respective long-service awards at a later date as both were unable to attend the gathering.

Kingston resident and guest speaker Pip Rasenberg addressed the group about recycling, her locally-produced market and produce bags as well as her handmade waxed food wraps.

Black Island Produce owner Danielle England spoke to the group on initiatives to market homegrown produce and reduce the use of plastics and single-use packaging.

The audience enjoyed hearing the third-generation farmers' commitment to the local environment by supplying vegetables that have been grown on her Keilira property by the box.

REGIONAL GATHERING: Women in Agriculture and Business South Australia president Narelle Scott and Young Women and Agriculture in Business treasurer and Kalangadoo branch member Sandra Young (far left) congratulates Ronda Noak, Lynette Staude, Michele Jones and Adair Dunsford on their long-time membership at the groups' annual regional gathering.

Webinars dig deep into soils

HEALTHY soil will be the key focus of a webinar series hosted by the Limestone Coast Landscape Board, with landholders, primary producers, advisors and people with an interest in land management encouraged to take part.

The five-part series will delve into topics such as soils of the Limestone Coast, what makes fertile soil, soil carbon and biology, clay and sandy soils.

The Limestone Coast region features 62 different types of soil, with 59pc of these considered key soils such as sandy or clay soils.

Hundreds of deer removed

THE impact of feral animals on the World Heritage listed Budj Bim Cultural Landscape has been significantly reduced due to the successful implementation of an aerial shooting operation.

Over two weeks, helicopters were used to target feral animals such as deer and pigs that are negatively impacting fire affected parts of the National Park and Indigenous Protected Areas.

According to Victoria's Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning, the removal of feral animals will help protect culturally important sites and give the environment a better chance at recovering from the 2019-20 Budj Bim bushfire.

Deer and pigs cause significant environmental damage through grazing, trampling, and forming wallows in drainage lines resulting in soil erosion and impacts to riparian vegetation and water quality.

This can increase pressure on native wildlife, threatened species and vegetation communities that are vulnerable after fires.

More than 1100 target feral animals were removed from the area, most of which were Fallow deer.

The significant reduction in deer will reduce grazing pressure on native vegetation and aid Manna gums to successfully set seed and recruit.

The reduction in pig numbers will reduce risk to sensitive cultural heritage sites and benefit adjacent landholders where deer and pigs can impact agricultural productivity.

The aerial shooting operation was carried out under strict conditions designed to ensure it was safe, effective and humane, and in areas which were closed to the public.

The aerial shooting operation is one component of a broader Budj Bim integrated invasive species control project being led by the department in partnership with Gunditj Mirring Traditional Owners Aboriginal Corporation, Parks Victoria and Winda-Mara Aboriginal Corporation in response to the 2019-20 bushfire.

The project was funded by the Victorian Government's $51.5m Bushfire Biodiversity Response and Recovery program.

Through the understanding of soils and their constraints, landholders can make effective on farm decisions resulting in a boost to their bottom line.

"The webinars and workshop are a key step in the Limestone Coast Landscape Board supporting primary producers to increase production in balance with sustainable management of resources and our Landscape," board chair Penny Schulz said. "We are encouraging anyone who is involved with soils in the region to consider the various topics the workshops will cover and register their interest," she said.

"The soil events and webinars, which are free for all participants will feature presentations from highly respected speakers on healthy soils with a focus on the particular soils of the Limestone Coast."

Hold onto your aching sides

THERE will be laughs aplenty tonight in Penola as Wynns Coonawarra Estate welcomes a number of comedians straight from Adelaide Fringe and Melbourne Comedy Festival.

Held at Rymill Hall this year instead of at the Wynns Gables to adhere to COVID-19 restrictions, the Coonawarra Comedy Club is guaranteed to give visitors a good laugh.

The Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival event features a fantastic line up of Amos Gill, Micky D and James McCann.

Wynns cellar door manager Tony Gleeson urged Limestone Coast residents to come along for a night of quality entertainment.

"This year it will be different because Rymill Hall is larger than Wynns so it will have a different feel but it is also in Penola, which is so much closer for most people and it also means we are able to continue the event for people and continue the comedy club," Mr Gleeson said.

"We have a fantastic line up of comedians this year are we are all looking forward to laughing all night."

Mr Gleeson said organisers were excited to bring down top-class comedians this year with the night expected to be full of laughter.

The event will be fully licensed with bar facilities available and cheese platters on sale.

Tickets are available at $35 per person from either the Wynns Coonawarra or Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival websites.

HOLD YOUR SIDES: Wynn Coonawarra Estate cellar door manager Tony Gleeson gears up for tonight's Coonawarra Comedy Club at Rymill Hall.

Christmas here a bit early

charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

CHRISTMAS has come early at Di's Gifts and Flowers with festive decorations now available through the Penola store's year-round room.

The store will offer a 20pc discount on all Christmas decorations during the Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival as part of a special sale. Previously a pop-up shop, the popular decorations are now available year-round with Di's Gifts and Flowers owner Di Williams stating the initiative had worked well so far to serve residents' needs.

"Now people are able to come in and purchase decorations throughout the year and don't have to worry about doing it at the last minute," Ms Williams said.

"The room also gives people the inspiration that Christmas can be thought about all year and makes it more budget friendly with a lot of people picking up decorations as they are travelling through, which is great because they take them home with them as a memory piece.

"We find that people are especially drawn to the light up lanterns we have and they are especially wonderful because they have a small Christmas theme inside them and they billow snow around the scenery."

The store owner said many customers were allured to decorations which light up and sing and said it further gives the Christmas spirit to homes. "As wonderful as the pop-up shop was, we have found by having a small room out the back makes it so much easier for people to pop in and have a look around, especially now it is open all year around," Ms Williams said.

EARLY CELEBRATION: Di's Gifts and Flowers owner Di Williams looks forward to welcoming patrons to the Christmas decoration room.

Ms Williams said she expected this weekend to be a busy time for Penola and Coonawarra businesses with the arts festival bringing visitors to the region.

"It is wonderful we are able to host the event this year and I am really looking forward to people bustling around town once again," she said.

"It is usually a very happy weekend and people are moving around and out and about and it will be fantastic for Penola."

The Guide

TOP PICKS OF THE WEEK

SATURDAY

7MATE, 7:30pm

FRIDAY

THE BLIND SIDE

7MATE, 7:30pm

Sandra Bullock (above) trumped Meryl Streep (Julie & Julia) for the Best Actress Oscar in this warmhearted sports drama based on a true story. Bullock is in stellar form as Leigh Anne Tuohy, a wealthy Memphis socialite who puts a roof over the head of homeless black teenager Michael Oher (Quinton Aaron) after he befriends her precocious son S.J. (Jae Head). Together with her husband Sean (country singer Tim McGraw), the gutsy mother-of-two helps the gentle giant overcome a childhood of poverty and parental neglect to become a rising star in the NFL. Though not without its racist undertones, this underdog tale takes an inspiring real-life story to compose an emotionally involving and satisfying film.

SATURDAY

SPIDER-MAN: HOMECOMING

NINE, 8:30pm

A marriage between Sony and Marvel Studios, Spider-Man: Homecoming marks the return of the lycra-clad superhero to the Marvel universe. Starring baby-faced Tom Holland (pictured) as the titular hero, we jump in after the events of Captain America: Civil War as Peter juggles schoolwork, friends and teenage issues while crafting his crime-fighting skills. Under the eyes of Happy Hogan (Jon Favreau), Peter has a chance to prove himself when villain Vulture (Michael Keaton) arrives. It was an inspired choice to bring Spidey into the Marvel Cinematic Universe. Funny and lighthearted, Homecoming is a breezy, refreshing return to fun.

Tom Holland stars in Spider-Man: Homecoming

SUNDAY

Dattner is a fierce leadership coach who is passionate about empowering female scientists to create great change. She rounds up 70 of the best from around the world for a breathtaking and personally challenging trip to witness climate change firsthand. Solid stone charmer

SET on a huge 1063m² (approx.) block, on arguably one of Penola's most sought-after streets awaits this solid stone charmer. Perfect for the investor, family or retirees, this property offers something for everyone.

This is where the charm and character of old, meets modern convenience in the most complimentary of ways. The visual appeal of high ceilings and timber floor boards blend seamlessly with the practicality of (all replaced) aluminium windows and doors as well updated fittings and fixtures throughout.

A living/dining space is the heart of this home with feature corner windows and mantle and the practicality of a reverse cycle air conditioner, and slow combustion fire; A must have for the South East. Setting this space off is the glass sliding doors out to the private garden to the side of the property.

The kitchen is contemporary and well thought out with cupboards literally to the ceiling. A neutral colour pallet gives a clean, light and airy feel to the space both in the kitchen and the bathroom. The bathroom is spacious and has a touch of luxe with black accent tapware.

All three bedrooms are generous in sizing, with two of them boasting floor to ceiling built in robes. Also worth noting, is the spaciousness of the entry, the cosy study nook and the additional room accessed via the rear veranda (a hair salon in a former life). This could be a great addition to a home business or even just as additional storage.

Continuing outside, improvements include a single stone shed and a plethora of secure enclosed yard for kids to play or dogs to roam. A block of this size, together with good bones means this property could also lend itself to what could be an extensive addition to the rear of the block.

In this fabulous location, and fast moving market - we don't expect it to be on the market for long.

Call Meg or Karly today to arrange a private inspection.

PENOLA COONAWARRA ARTS FESTIVAL

Friday 14 - Sunday 16 May 2021

12494826-HC21-21

CHARLOTTE VARCOE

charlotte.varcoe@tbwtoday.com.au

A JAM-PACKED weekend of events is planned for the 2021 Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival, which launches today.

The three day festival features over 50 events in the Penola and Coonawarra district, including exhibitions, workshops, competitions and comedy.

After a difficult decision to cancel the 2020 festival due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the festival returns with a creative and captivating showcase.

Families will be able to join in on art activities, face painting and community fundraisers - including in the town's historic Petticoat Lane - Adelaide Fringe's Basketball Man presenting a free afternoon performance.

A program highlight will be tonight's announcement of the 2021 John Shaw Neilson Acquisitive Art Prize winner along with the Local Art and Design prizes.

Aspiring and established musicians are also invited to the Open Mic competition at the Royal Oak Hotel on Sunday with plenty of cash prizes for heats, finals and cameos.

The festival headquarters will be stationed in the main street as the gateway to further events and allows visitors to ask questions about events, obtain a program and head off to see the sights.

Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival committee member Simon Weston said this year's event was condensed to three days rather than the usual four days during the planning stage to limit the impacts of a potential cancellation due to COVID-19 restrictions.

"We also have reduced spacing and distancing laws and we felt this course of action was a smart move," Mr Weston said.

"We have made subtle changes to the times and dates of some of our events, such as the festival beginning on the Friday night with the prizes being our first event but then there are also a number of other events hosted on the Friday which would typically be held on the Saturday."

Mr Weston said it was fantastic to finally deliver the festival following last year's cancellation with many hours of work going into planning behind the scenes.

"The satisfaction in knowing that we can provide some relief to the lack of events and general happiness is very rewarding for us," he said.

"The community can expect a nice local arts festival for the local people and surrounding neighbours.

"There will be plenty to look our for with every winery hosting exhibitions, workshops across the board and even a movie night at Coonawarra Hall."

Echoing Mr Weston's comments, festival committee chair John Mossop said this year's line-up represented the culmination of strong community creativity and dedication.

"The Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival has distilled the traditional bumper line-up of events, turning its focus instead toward its much-loved hallmark events such as the Opera, Children's Program and Shenanigans," Mr Mossop said.

"We are buoyed by the opportunity to once again present thearts in our own region, in a safe environment and particularly for our own communities, after being 'COVID-fatigued' from the previous year."

WOODWORK DISPLAY: Handmade woodwork will be on display during the Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival at Majella Wines.

Woodwork a cut above the rest

TIMBER will be a major feature at Majella Wines over the weekend as part of its Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival installment.

Beautiful wooden boxes by Brian Lynn and charming wooden rolling pins, bowls, plates and ornaments of Andy Clifford will be on display throughout the event, alongside wine tasting.

Mr Clifford, of Yallum Park, has a long history in the region for his amazing talent in working with timber and using rare and century-old timbers from the area.

Mr Clifford produces exquisite works of art with his talents also extending to useful household items, which will also be on display over the weekend.

He also specialises in artistic pieces, some of which can be seen on display as Limestone Coast Wine Show trophies in many local wineries.

Mr Lynn has always had an interest in wood and despite not being deemed a successful woodwork student, he has recently discovered a passion for working with what some may see as useless offcuts.

He then transforms the cuts into wonderful and delightful boxes, which showcase the uniqueness of each piece of timber.

Throughout the weekend-long event all items will be for sale during Majella Wines opening hours of 10am to 4.30pm daily.

Artist is playing fowl for exhibition

CHARLOTTE VARCOE

A UNIQUE exhibition will be displayed at Balnaves of Coonawarra this weekend as part of the annual Penola Coonawarra Arts Festival.

The exhibition, Fowl Play, will feature artist Karin Seja's eight acrylic canvas paintings of local bird life.

Recently retiring from graphic design following a 40-year career, the artist is now turning to a childhood pastime of painting wildlife.

Themed with black and white paints, wildlife will be the main attraction to the whimsical display available for viewing over the weekend.

Balnaves of Coonawarra marketing coordinator Emma Rasheed said the exhibition was a fantastic opportunity to showcase the artist's talents.

"Ms Seja is a family friend of the Balnaves and was the designer who created our iconic logo," Ms Rasheed said.

"Therefore it was only fitting that we display her wonderful artwork."

The exhibition will be on display at the Balnaves of Coonawarra wine room throughout the weekend with the paintings also for sale.

"The paintings are for sale and $50 of each sale will go towards the local Stand Like Stone Foundation," Ms Rasheed said.

The exhibition will be displayed over the weekend with wine tastings, wine by the glass and picnic cheese boxes also available for purchase between 11.30am and 4pm daily.

In Memoriam

STEPHENS, Bruce

28/9/28 - 17/5/11

The man we knew as Grandy, or Bruce or even Blue. Whichever way you knew him, there was never a bloke more true.

Grandy was a humble man, loved the simple things in life. His home, his boat, his family and most of all, his wife.

He lived his life with purpose; there was always things to do but when we ever needed him, he was there - we always knew.

It was very rare to see Grandy without a smile from ear to ear. He had more strength than many men in his 82nd year.

He took on his biggest challenge, never shied away from the fight. His only concern at the end of the day was whether the fish would bite!

A lifetime full of stories, the precious memories we've got. The one thing that I'm sure of is, we were a lucky lot!

The voice as rough as gravel, the heart as warm as toast. Everything about the man is what we loved the most.

Sentiments shared by Mary Stephens and all her family.

CALLISS

After Bill's loss the Calliss family would like to thank the Paramedics who firstly helped and transported Bill, and the doctors and nursing staff of the High Dependency and Medical Wards of Mt Gambier Hospital for their care and support.

Thank you to South East Funeral Services for all their respect and compassion. Your support and guidance was fantastic. A special thanks must go out to Barbie Sawyer, Bill's Diabetic Educator, for all her years of care and support.

And friends and extended family for the absolutely magnificent flowers, cards and phone calls, and the people who travelled from far and wide to be part of the celebrations of Bill's life.

Olympians in to compete

"There is a significant hill at the back of the lake and then the riders come down to a very fast finish.

"Not long after the start/finish line there is a tight corner onto Bay Road between the two lakes - they are going pretty quick and have to narrow to a skinny bunch to get through."

Zeven said there were many spots to watch the kermesse, which he said was something special to witness as the riders completed so many laps of the course.

He said the weekend - specifically the 100 Mile Classic - continued to attract top riders for a few reasons.

"The toughness of the course is probably the biggest attraction," Zeven said.

"The elite riders like to come down and show what they are made of, while for other riders it is a 'bucket list' ride.

"It is a rare event this year where your slightly-better-than-average cyclist gets to ride alongside Olympic riders."

Motorists are reminded to be aware of cyclists on the road over the weekend, with John Watson Drive and Bay Road around the Blue Lake closed to traffic on Sunday.

Limestone Coast riders - Seniors: Matthew Opperman (former winner), Robert Mann, Dave Bryant, John DePree, Tess Wight, Luke Wight, Nick Kidman.

Juniors - Under 15/17: Harry Opperman, Niel Van Niekerk, Jami Buckley, Riley Hill, Elmer Buckland.

Under 11/13: Freya Miller, Eddie Buckland, Molly Opperman.

McQuade holds on

A SEE-SAWING final decided the Mount Gambier RSL Bowls Club Ladies 100-up Singles title, as Carmel McQuade ran out a deserved winner.

McQuade faced tough opposition from Merna Whitehead, with the lead changing several times in the final.

In the end a consistent effort from McQuade was enough to claim the title.

The format for the day had bowlers drawn and play a four-bowl singles game, with points awarded for the closest four bowls to the jack.

A strong contingent of eight women entered in what was the final women's competition for the season at the club.

Quarter final pairings saw Di Adams defeat Lyn Chirgwin, McQuade defeat Beryl Messenger, Whitehead defeat Sandi Elliott and Veronica Opie defeat Trish Webb.

In the semi-finals McQuade overcame Adams and in a close encounter, Whitehead just edged through against Opie to set up an intriguing final. The final brought the best out of both McQuade and Whitehead.

McQuade eventually strung together a good run of shots to claim the honours.

TITLE WIN: Carmel McQuade and Merna Whitehead fought out a classic final for the RSL Bowls Club 100-up Ladies Singles title.

STRONG DUO: The pairing of Bob Solly and Phillip Wilson claimed the Mount Gambier RSL Bowls Club Men's 16 Handicap Pairs tournament.

Tight bowling for men's pairs

THE pairing of Bob Solly and Phillip Wilson claimed a close overall victory in the Mount Gambier RSL Club Men's 16 Handicap Pairs tournament.

The day saw 14 competitive pairs enter, with each pairing not to exceed a total handicap of 16.

The format for the day was three games of 10 ends, with the winners the pair with the highest number of points at the end of the day.

The quality of bowling was high, with all pairs producing some of their best bowling, which resulted in no three-game winners.

There were eight pairings which finished with two wins and one loss which meant that the winning team was determined by the number of ends won over the day.

Solly and Wilson claimed the honours with a total of 60 points, from Michael Fox and Geoff James on 58.

FISHING

SOME wild weather is lashing the coast as I put pen to paper, but the last week has been quite good for the offshore guys fishing in the 40th annual tuna and sports fish tournament held by the Port MacDonnell Offshore Angling Club.

The average tuna size for the competition this year was a bit smaller than most had hoped, but the smaller fish allowed anglers a chance to get their ultra-light gear out and hone their skills.

Some great light line captures were recorded over the week, with tuna caught on 2kg, 3kg and 4kg line, plus sharks coming on 2kg and 4kg line.

The champion angler for the week was Kevin McLoughlin onboard Reel Scream who managed a tonne of fish over the week, his most notable captures being his 28kg+ school shark caught on 2kg line and 20kg mako shark on 4kg line.

The major tag and release prize went to Mark Ewens onboard Sea Rider who managed 107 tuna tagged and released for the tournament.

The most meritorious tuna for the week was won by Tommy Egan onboard Brojak and catching light line fish from big boats is no easy feat.

The juniors were well represented, with this year's champion award won by Georgia Barrett who managed to tick off a huge number of fish on the list, one being a pending Australian record on 4kg line.

There has been no barrel news from the past week, even though a few anglers did put in some big hours.

CHAMPION ANGLER: Kevin McLoughlin with a nice mako shark caught during the tuna and sports fish tournament.

The signs are there, but they just have not been hungry.

Surf fishos have been getting stuck into a few more salmon and I have heard a few reports of fish from the Jones' end of Nene Valley, but the majority have come from inside the Canunda NP.

The size and numbers seems a bit better in there so far, which is encouraging.

There have been a few caught in the Beachport salmon hole this week and the size seems to be slowly improving.

There have been some nice garfish caught along the Limestone Coast.

The Petrified Forest at Port MacDonnell has been productive, as has Cape Douglas.

Livingstons has been good for the waders, but some fairly hefty piles of weed on the beach have made launching a tinny difficult.

Tommies, salmon trout, mullet and silver trevally have been in thick numbers in the same spots.

Most have been small, but there is the odd bigger sample mixed in.

Whiting numbers have been surprisingly good this week.

I have seen some reasonable fish from inside the Port MacDonnell breakwater over the last week when anglers could not get out wide to target the offshore fish.

There have been a few reports from Carpenter Rocks from the land-based guys.

The news is definitely slowing down, but there are still fish there for those willing to brave the conditions.

There are still a few reports filtering in from around Beachport and Southend this week, but much the same as down this way, things are definitely on the slow down.

The Glenelg River fished fairly well over the weekend, with mullet, bream and estuary perch all caught.

The mullet have been spread out from Nelson to Dry Creek, so just use the sounder, track down the schools and you are in with a shot.

The bream are also well spread out.

I know of some nice fish from the lure fishos on the sand flats of the estuary, through to some monster 45cm+ fish on baits in the upper reaches.

Perch are happily smashing deep diving minnows and fairly heavily weighted plastics hopped along the deeper rock walls of the mid sections of river, so mix it up and you will have a great session.

Until next week, safe fishing.

Local greyhound rewards

GREYHOUND RACING

GREYHOUND racing has lots of thrills and excitement, especially if you own a share in your own racing dog.

People from all walks of life participate in greyhound racing, with syndication an easy and affordable way to get started.

That is the way it was at Tara Raceway last Sunday when Cawbourne Shiny, a July 2019 son of Ritza Lenny and Cawbourne Clover opened his winning account in the Williams Crane Hire Maiden Stake over 305 metres for the nine-member Rise N Shine Syndicate.

Unable to match the early speed of Miss Sniper, it was not until rounding the bottom turn Cawbourne Shiny railed through on the early leader and ultimately ran out a two-lengths winner over Galactic Dreamer in 17.62 seconds.

The win was greeted with the enthusiasm usually afforded a feature race winner, syndicate manager John Podgorski of Mount Gambier accompanying fellow syndicate members and their supporters as they awaited the brindle dog's return with Tarpeena trainer Dita Mitchell.

For Podgorski - who previously had enjoyed a casual interest in greyhound racing - and the East Gambier Football Club-oriented syndicate, this is their first involvement in greyhound ownership.

"I had been keen to form a syndicate to race a greyhound and not all that long ago I was introduced to Dita and spoke to her about purchasing a greyhound to race," he said.

"She said she would look around but it could take a while."

Well, as it turned out, not very long at all.

"By pure coincidence, later on the same day that I had been speaking with John, Gifford Hill trainer Tony Rasmussen rang me to let me know he had three ready-to-race greyhounds for sale," said Mitchell.

"The youngest, a brindle dog named Cawbourne Shiny, had raced only once previously for a fourth placing at Murray Bridge so I suggested to John and the syndicate that he could be worth having a go with."

A syndicate consists of between two and 20 members who own the greyhound and share the costs of purchase, kennelling, training - and the winnings.

Each syndicate has an appointed manager who is responsible for managing the affairs of the ownership group with the trainer.

All members of the syndicate must be registered as either an owner or an owner/trainer.

SA greyhound racing clubs, including Mount Gambier, are always seeking expressions of interest from people looking to become involved in the syndication of greyhounds.

As such, Greyhound Racing SA Syndication Coordinator, Sean Donnelly, will be at Tara Raceway's meeting on Sunday, July 11.

He will be able to guide any prospective owners through the process of starting a syndicate.

Many syndicates registered are formed through sporting clubs, work colleagues or families and friends.

All are keen to experience that winning feeling and the enjoyable social aspects of being at the track.

That was certainly the case last Sunday at Tara Raceway.

Tandiki highlights leading trainer's winning day

GREYHOUND RACING

LEADING Tara Raceway trainer Tracie Price took the training honours at last Sunday's meeting when Slashing Sunny, Tandiki and Rocketline took his number of local wins this year to 37.

While the Compton-based trainer has enjoyed bigger days at the race track, he would have derived plenty of satisfaction from the meeting after the win of Tandiki in the Pro-grehoundtips.com grade five final over 512 metres.

Away well from box one, the white and black daughter of Peter Rocket and Headline could not match the early pace of Aston Model and Rough Pearl and settled a distant third down the back straight.

But turning for home she had the leaders in her sights before unleashing her customary strong finish which resulted in a three-quarters of a length win over Rough Pearl in 30.19 seconds.

The win was Tandiki's first this year at what was only her fifth run after three months on the sidelines.

It was not the first time she had been laid up for some time, as Price was quick to point out.

ON THE MONEY: Sianna Magic races to the Greyhound of the Year lead after defeating Arriba Arriba over 400 metres.

"She's certainly had her share of setbacks and Michael and Willie (local owners Michael Robinson and Willie Vossen) have been very patient," he said.

"I'm hoping now for an injury-free run and if that's the case I'll be looking at Murray Bridge and the 680-metre distance with her."

Rocketline, Tandiki's brother and raced in the same interests, quickly rounded up the Trackside Meats Mixed Stake (400m) field, running out a two lengths winner over former WA chaser Sunset Firefly in 23.11 seconds.

Price's treble kicked off in the Gordon Refrigeration Maiden Stake (400m) when first starter Slashing Sunny displayed plenty of early pace and despite using plenty of the track finished too strongly for Stylish Tyrone when winning by a half length in 23.48 seconds.

The winner is by Cosmic Rumble out of Wentworth Park and The Meadows winner Wilma Bale, also the dam of Charming Charlie (by Dyna Double One) who won four races at Tara Raceway last year for Price.

Meanwhile, Sianna Magic, the dog that was sacked at breaking-in and found her way to Monty Wilson's Mumbannar kennels, has taken the lead in the Mount Gambier Greyhound of the Year.

This follows the all-the-way two-lengths win over Arriba Arriba in 23.17 seconds by the daughter of Premier Fantasy and Smooth Momentum in yesterday's Bourne Kennels Stake (400m).

Sianna Magic has now raced on 12 occasions, all this year and all at Tara Raceway, for six wins and six second placings which gives her 36 points and a two point lead over Another Pick who picked up a point yesterday when running third in the race won by Nitro Yap in a best of day 22.78 seconds.

Another Pick, owned and trained at Edenhope by Cap Abbott who won the 2019 GOTY with Black Spring, has accumulated six wins, four seconds and two thirds from 16 starts at the track this year.

Grand Giveaway, better known at Tara Raceway's Thursday meetings, surprised in last Sunday's Greg Martlew Autos Stake (400m) for Mortlake couple Rachel and Shaun Baulch when leading all the way to defeat Golden Lester by half a length in 23.40 seconds.

A giveaway greyhound by El Grand Senor out of Bel Air Mist, she has raced on 17 occasions this year at the local track for five wins, three seconds and four thirds and sits in fifth spot on the GOTY list with 30 points.

Small trainer with top results

david.gilbert@tbwtoday.com.au

NARACOORTE trainer Greg Scholefield is thoroughly enjoying the month of May.

Mainly thanks to his five-year-old gelding Jaccka Ted who has won races on the first two Saturdays of this month at Globe Derby Park in Adelaide.

"I purchased him about three months ago from David Drury and he's settled in well", was Scholefield's modest assessment of his newly acquired pacer.

Jaccka Ted has had just the five starts for Scholefield and the latest two wins have come on the back of a six-week spell after the pacer finished ninth in the Mount Gambier Gold Cup on March 13.

Both wins have been with Adelaide reinsman Wayne Hill in the sulky and at backable odds ($5.50 and $6).

It continues the amazing winning strike rate Scholefield has with his small team of pacers.

Admittedly, the efforts of the stable star Emain Macha (35 wins from 66 starts) have been a major contributor to the strike rate.

"It makes it much easier to get out of bed these mornings when you have a couple of good horses in the stable," the 72-year-old horseman added.

Scholefield has a 700 metre track on his property which has a gradient for him to slow work his horses, while fast work is undertaken on the Naracoorte racecourse.

He has a bit of an opinion of Stratofortress, a former New Zealand pacer, who ran third in Adelaide last Saturday night at his second start for the stable.

As for Emain Macha - "He will be back in work in around three weeks after having his pallet cauterised," Scholefield said.

"He had the operation after it was discovered his pallet was flipping up when under pressure in races, causing him to make a hell of a noise."

SEASON FURTHER EXTENDED

THE local harness racing season has been going since last October and it seems it will continue well into winter.

There is one more meeting in May, two extra meetings have been included for the month of June and there is a possibility the season could continue even further.

The two June meetings are both on Tuesday evenings - on the eighth and 22nd - and are part of the ongoing co-share agreement with the Port Pirie club.

"At our meeting in Adelaide last week, Harness Racing SA stated as long as there are the horse numbers, race meetings will continue at Mount Gambier and Port Pirie," Mount Gambier harness Racing Club committeeman Phil Wood, who is also the president of the SA country clubs board, said.

Long time supporters of the Mount Gambier club cannot recall a season ever going as long as the present one.

Extra trial dates have been scheduled for the Greenwald Paceway, starting this Sunday morning followed by Tuesday night, June 8, Sunday morning, June 20 and Tuesday night, June 22.

LOOKING FOR SOME FUN TIMES

BORDERTOWN trainer Jimmy Dodgson is hopeful Shock Alert, a relative newcomer to his stable, can graduate through the grades to become a country cup horse.

A former NSW galloper who had won races previously over a mile or further at Warwick Farm and Rosehill, Shock Alert had his third start for Dodgson at Donald last Saturday in a BM 64 handicap over 1350 metres and got the chocolates by half a head.

"He hadn't won a race for nearly two years and we've had to rejuvenate him and fix some of his little problems, and I reckon we can have a lot of fun with him," Dodgson told The Border Watch.

Some punters had a bit of fun with Shock Alert last Saturday as $41 was bet on race morning about his chances before firming to $11 at starting time.

"Someone had a crack at him but it wasn't my money, however I did head to Donald confident he would improve on his two un-

PROVING THE GOODS: Jaccka Ted, a recent acquisition to the Greg Scholefield stable at Naracoorte, is proving his worth with two wins in Adelaide in the space of eight days this month.

RANK OUTSIDER LED ALL THE WAY: Supporters of local reinsman David Drury had a windfall when he drove My Porsche (no. 2, middle) to victory at 150/1 last Sunday evening for what is believed to be the longest priced winner ever at the Greenwald Paceway placed runs around here last month," Dodgson said.

"Nearly all of his wins have been over 1600 metres or further and I'm hopeful he can measure up to be a country cup's horse."

Dodgson's stable star Territory Titan returns to race in Adelaide tomorrow and will line up in the Group 3 $152,000 Robert A. Lee Stakes over 1600 metres.

FULL HOUSE FOR CASTERTON

WITH the Casterton cup meeting on Sunday restricted to a crowd of 1,500 due to COVID, Casterton Racing Club manager John Donnelly advised earlier this week it is already a sellout.

There will be plenty of Croweaters in the crowd for one of the most popular country cup meetings on the circuit at one of Australia's most beautiful racecourse settings where the Glenelg and Wannon rivers meet.

When nominations closed on Tuesday, nearly 30 Limestone Coast trained gallopers were among the entries for the eight-race program.

The richest race is the $75,000 Two Rivers steeplechase, over 3800 metres supported by the $45,000 Casterton Cup (2000 metres).

South Australian gallopers are likely to play a big part in the result of the Casterton Cup.

Adelaide trainer Shayne Cahill has nominated the consistent performer Dexter You Devil, while there is plenty to like about some of the Limestone Coast runners nominated.

The Naracoorte stayer Farooq won the Edenhope Cup in March but has failed to flat-ter since.

Mount Gambier trained gallopers nominated include Jester Halo, Muntham Missile, Brigadier and Bossy Britches.

Muntham Missile won the Hamilton Cup last October and showed he is running back into form with a barnstorming third at Warrnambool last week after as much as 125/1 was bet.

Bossy Britches failed at Warrnambool last week but it is hard to forget her fast-finishing second - when perhaps a tad unlucky - to Farooq in the Edenhope Cup at her only 2000-metre start.

RANK OUTSIDER STOLE THE SHOW

THE win by the Balmoral pacer My Porsche (150/1 starting price with fixed odds) last Sunday evening is believed to be the longest priced winner ever at the Greenwald Paceway.

It was a windfall for fans of driver David Drury who was able to lead all the way on the Janet Exell trained mare.

Fellow driver Jayson Finnis grabbed the spotlight by driving three of the five winners, two of them for his wife/trainer Alyce Finnis.

It started when Juddy Douglas ($4.40-$5.50) came from last to get the photo in the opening event from the well-backed Our Sir Ivanhoe ($18-$6.50).

The Barry Finnis trained Seal The Destiny ($4.60-$2.90 fav.) was the middle pin of his treble in the NR 42 pace when the judge found a narrow margin in his favour over Morgan Art ($31-$9).

It was much easier for the husband/wife team when Art Jester ($1.15 fav.) careered away in the straight to make it successive victories in race four.

A couple of the Jim Barker stable runners had been well supported and failed earlier in the night, but they got the cash in the final event when Presidentialchange was backed to start favourite ($5.50-$2.20) and won courtesy of a drive-of-the-night performance from Jackie Barker.

Twists and turns for men's

IN an interesting twist, each grade in the men's stableford competition at the Blue Lake Golf Club on Saturday had a winner with 40 points, then a three-point gap to all those in second.

But before that Matt Patzel took out the overall win with 41 points.

Patzel started steadily with pars on the opening two holes to earn six points and it was steady as she goes from there before his only one-point hole of the day on the ninth.

Turning with 19 points, Patzel sensed a possible win and thanks to a birdie on the 15th he did just that, with another 22 points on the inward nine.

It was a good win for Patzel, who has been knocking on the door for some time and he will be more than happy with his consistency through the whole 18 holes.

There was a mixture of A, B and C grade players who chased hard and Richard Evans, Ian Bown and Kevin Mansell all finished tied on 40 points and took their respective grade wins.

In A Grade Bown was a clear winner with, Shane Stevens runner-up and Keith Ransom a distant three points further back.

Bown was steady through the middle part of his opening nine, reeling off consecutive pars to earn 19 points.

An even stronger back nine led by a birdie on the 11th and an off-the-stick of 36 for 21 points was the highlight.

Stevens and Ransom required a count-back to separate second and third.

Stevens got the nod after splits of 18 and 19, with a birdie on the 17th always going to help him in a count-back situation, while Ransom reversed those splits, his birdie coming on the ninth.

In a light hearted aside Ransom, in order to spot his ball easier, used a fluoro yellow ball on Saturday.

It came in handy when he hit a shot into the trees and could see his ball quite easily nestled high in a branch.

It was the same scoring in B Grade, with Evans's 40 three points better than Adam Jones and Andrew Russell tied on 37.

Evans was unlucky not to feature in the reckoning for the outright win with an impressive birdie on the difficult par 3 16th hole, but the damage had been done before that with one-point holes on the 11th and 14th.

He would still be happy with splits of 19 and 21 to take the grade win.

Jones also came in over the back nine with 21 points which helped him claim second outright.

Birdies on the ninth and 15th holes were negated with a couple of one-point holes as well and as soon as he gets rid of the double bogeys there will be a big W waiting.

Russell set the course alight early, a 36 off the stick showing what he is capable of and had 23 points in his back pocket, looking to build on that over the inward nine.

A par on the 10th for another three points had him believing in one of those rounds, but then the wheels fell off with two nil-point holes and a one-pointer to come in with just nine points over the last six holes.

After claiming the main prize in the feted GEM Easter Tournament, Mansell has got used to that winning feeling and returned to the top step of the podium with a win in C Grade.

Buoyed by a convincing win by his beloved Cats on Friday night, Mansell had an up-and-down round, mixing some impressive golf with disappointing wibes.

He had wipes on the 11th and 12th holes, but then parred the 15th, 16th and 17th to finish with 40 points.

Shaun Martin was another who had his struggles but kept at it and showed his ability with consecutive pars on the 15th and 16th to have splits of 18 and 19 and take second place, while the likeable Michael Millhouse took third, winning a count-back with a solid second half of 21 points to add to his 15 on the front nine.

Brian Dunn was unluckily counted out of the prize winners after he tied with Millhouse in C Grade but had to settle for a ball prize instead, together with Tony Morandin, Peter Mikelsen, Marc Dalton, Wayne Dunford, Tim Bates, Trevor Gartside, Conway Johnson, John Robertson and Vic Smith.

Russell added to his prizes with the novelty event of best front nine.

Martland on fire with solid run to stableford win

ROSEMARY Martland was a clear winner in the women's stableford competition at the Blue Lake Golf Club on Saturday with her 37 points being the only player to score over their handicap. Martland set up her win with a solid run of pars through the early part of her round and despite a double bogey on the seventh hole, still turned with 19 points.

After a tardy start to her back nine with another double, the talented Division 1 player showed her class with pars over the 14th, 15th and 16th holes for splits of 41 off the stick on each nine.

A count-back was needed to split Geraldine Scott and Viv Wilson, tied on 31 points each.

Both players tried to gift each other the win with scrubs towards the end of their round and while Scott may have thought she had thrown it away with just 15 points over the inward nine, it was still two more than Wilson.

To be expected Martland also claimed the novelty front nine event to add to her prizes.

Chasing fine lead

ON a day where most players struggled to break even with their handicap, you could drive a K&S B Double between first and second in Tuesday's stableford competition at the Blue Lake Golf Club.

Bruce Grubb finished three points clear of second place with his superb 40 points securing him the win.

Grubb started in the best possible fashion with his birdie on the first earning a huge four points and from then on he scored points on every hole, even his two double bogeys on the fourth and sixth garnering three points.

Turning with 22 points, Grubb was out for maximum profit but a couple more double bogeys hurt the balance sheet and he had to be happy with a standard 18 points over the inward nine.

Another 20 handicapper in James Parker left his run a little late, storming home with 22 points on the back nine which was always going to hold him in good stead if a count-back was required.

With the help of a birdie on the 12th, Parker amassed an amazing 20 points over the last seven holes.

His 37 points tied with Garry Fox who was always going to be hard pressed to match Parker's back nine score.

Fox, on a mission to play better than he did on Saturday, did not see much improvement early but after the halfway mark he was on the run, paring the last five holes to finish with 21 points on the back nine to take third.

A group of players on 36 and 35 took home a ball prize which ran right down to Ray Patching who will be surprised to score a ball with his 32.

Milton Bignell took out the pro shot on the fifth, 2.4m from the hole, while Grubb's 22 points on the front nine was good enough for the novelty event.

Perfect day of par play for Blue Lakes golfers

ON an ideal day at the Blue Lake golf links, the rescheduled third round of the Metro Bakery and Cafe Silver Salver attracted 27 contenders and the scores were of a high standard for the most unlikely game in golf - the dreaded par competition.

Top of the leaderboard was the ever-consistent Ronda Edwards in Division 1 who signed for 3-up.

Her card included three pars and one pick-up on the front nine, plus another three pars and two pick-ups on the back.

Dianne Perryman came in equal to her handicap with 1-up for second place.

Five pars on the front was impressive, but two pick-ups let her down, while seven squares and two pick-ups on the inward nine was good enough to consolidate her place on the podium.

Captain Helen Myers rounded out the podium, pleased with her score of 1-down.

Division 2's Lyn Annand has showed a consistency on Wednesday's and Saturday's the previous few weeks and last week was no exception.

Her card included two pars, three pick-ups and four squares for the front nine, three pars, two pick-ups and four squares on the back to play to her handicap.

Lucy Richards claimed second place with a strong score of 2-down, followed by Lynette Hirth with 3-down.

Nearest to pin second shot on the uphill, 129-metre par three second hole winners were Division 1's Carol Megaw and Division 2's Hirth.

The pro-shot winner on the tricky par three downhill fifth hole was an excited, relatively new to golf, Helen Bissett.

Entries close on Monday May 24.

Novice's goal achieved

FORMER junior soccer coach Nick Morony has only been playing golf competitively for about 15 months.

But just like the vast majority of those who have been playing for many years, he has quickly realised three or four bad holes can quickly ruin the most promising of rounds.

The 26-year-old tasted his first Saturday success at the Mount Gambier Golf Club back in January this year, shooting a +3 in the par competition to post the low round of the day.

His handicap then was 25 and while he was down to 22 last Saturday, that did not stop him from coming in with 41 points to take out the stableford competition by a single point from Grant Stephenson.

But winning for a second time was the furthest thing from his mind as he neared the final few holes with an excellent score in the offing.

"My goal for a fair while now has been to break 90, so I didn't really care whether I won or not," Morony said.

"I've been in a position to do that (break 90) a few times but I usually throw it away on the last three holes."

His goal did not look achievable on Saturday, when he shot 47 on the back nine after starting his round on the 10th hole.

That brought him 19 points, helped in no small part by three-pointers on the 11th, 13th, 14th and 15th holes.

Clearly he was going to need a better-than-average front nine.

A three-point par on the first hole helped, but the par-four second would be the key to his round.

A great drive followed by a perfect eight-iron to about four feet set up a five-point birdie and when he parred the third for another three points he was up to 30 with a further six holes to come.

More importantly was his opportunity to shoot less than 90 was well within range.

Bogeys followed on the fourth and fifth holes, but doubts started to creep in after a double on the par-three sixth.

Another two bogeys on the seventh and eighth saw him up to 39 points and meant he could still bogey the par-four ninth to come in with 89 off the stick.

A duffed chip almost proved costly, but he managed to salvage a bogey five that gave him the elusive 89 and also the best score of the day.

"I didn't play the ninth well at all - I really thought I'd thrown it away again," he said.

"I guess my target now will be getting down to an 18 handicap."

Morony's score was easily good enough to take out C Grade, finishing four points ahead of Matthew Bueti.

Meanwhile Stephenson's 40 points saw him win B Grade by one from Brad Von Duve.

In A Grade the low round of the day was turned in by five-handicapper Josh Gosling who shot 74 off the stick to notch 39 points.

While Gosling produced the round of the day, the shot of the day came from runner-up David Pick.

Playing off a 12 handicap, Pick found himself behind some trees off the right side of the fairway after two shots on the par-five seventh, but incredibly he holed out for an eagle three.

Another player who might have wished he could play three holes over again in last Thursday's competition was Tony Steen.

Playing off a 10 handicap, Steen came in with 40 points to post the best score of the day.

That was despite having a double bogey six on the 13th for just one point and wiping the first and 15th holes.

In his other 15 holes he was a remarkable even par off the stick, no doubt leaving him wondering what could have been.

His 40 points was one ahead of a trio of rivals, with Dave Evans managing to edge out Bryce Whicker and Stuart Skirving on a count-back.

Monthly medal to McIntyre

ONLY a small field of 23 women took to the Mount Gambier Golf Club Course last Wednesday, contesting the second round of the monthly medal and putting competitions.

Long hitting Helen McIntyre (89-19-70) was the best placed in the field as she registered nett 70.

The ever-consistent vice-captain, Jan Shanahan (91-18-73) played to her handicap, with 45 on the front nine and 46 on the back.

In third place was Heather Teakle (99-24-75), who would rue an eight on the last hole, which pushed her down the order.

Only three balls were in the run-down and went to Yvonne Shirley, Heather Barry and Maxine McGregor.

Speciality prizes for the second shot on the 17th hole went to A Grade's Bernie Jennings, B Grade's Heather Teakle and C Grade's Vicki Clark.

The pro-shot on the eighth hole went to Bev Pedlar.

In conjunction with the monthly medal, a putting competition was conducted and won by McIntyre with 30 putts.

Penne Saffin carded 37 points to claim the win with consistent nines.

In second position was Vicki Clark who had a good day out to post 35 points.

Clark had five three-pointers and two four-pointers, which included pars on the hard 10th and 11th holes.

In third place on a count-back was Leanne Hunt, also with 35 points.

Tough wind conditions affect scores

AN intrepid band of 41 SE Veterans golfers defied the dire forecast of high winds and heavy showers to play at Beachport.

The results were not all that good, with 34 points from Beachport's John Howe enough to claim first division from Bordertown's Graham Pilgrim on 30 and another local Peter Buckley, also on 30.

Second division went to Millicent's Jimmy Hyland with the best score of the day, 37.

Next was fellow Millicent golfer Derek Bowering on 27 and Lucindale's Adrian Thiele with 26.

The Ross Orchard prize was won by Robe's Gordon Fleming and Blue Lake's Gav Sparrow.

Only one nearest to pin was successful and that was new member Bill Mullan on the sixth hole.

Graham Pilgrim's consolation was the Scotch.

One of the SE Veterans stalwarts with over 400 games, Beachport's Roy Mitchell of Beachport, returned from Queensland recently where he was runner-up in the Australasian Over 80's championship- an impressive effort from the 90-year-old.

Monday, May 17 will see the SE Veterans head to Harrow for the three-way challenge between SE, Wimmera and Glenelg districts, with the SE side looking for more numbers.

A visit by Glenelg District to Millicent for a shield will take place on Monday, May 24.

TREVOR JACKSON

MCNAMARA Park was a hive of activity over the weekend, with the Seniors road race meeting proving popular with competitors and spectators alike.

Events ranged from sidecars through to old and more modern solos, with combined ages of bikes and riders seeing some events run as 120+ years categories.

Cup races were held on Sunday, with some spirited riding on display and some classic machinery for spectators to admire.

The 45+ Lightweight Cup went to Martin Greenwood aboard a 250cc Honda, from Andrew Coghill and John Snoad.

The 100+ Lightweight Cup showcased some classic machinery, from Yamahas and Hondas to Ducatis and a lone BSA.

Mike Engberg claimed the win on a well-presented 400cc Yamaha, from Garth Williams on a 350cc Yamaha and Doug Churcher on a 350cc Honda.

The lone BSA - a 350cc variant - finished down in seventh place.

The 45+ Cup saw a mix of bigger machinery, with Rusty Crane riding his 1000cc Suzuki to victory, ahead of Raymond Ross on a 1000cc Yamaha and Christian Carlson on a 675 Triumph.

Brad Phelan rode his 1000cc Katana to the win in the 85+ Cup race, ahead of Roger Gunn on a 1200cc Harris Suzuki and Graham O'Neill on a 750cc to clean sweep the race for the brand.

The Period 2/Class C/125cc Cup race saw just four competitors, with David Short setting the fastest time on his 125cc Morbedilli, ahead of Gemma Kernich on a 125cc Honda, Paul Dempsey on a 500cc Triumph and Chris Lang on a BSA 635.

The 120+ Cup race again showcased some interesting machinery, with a mix of the best of British motorcycling.

Paul McGahan piloted his Triumph 500 to victory, from Geoff Kelly aboard a Norton 500 and Les Toohey's BSA 500.

Toohey set the fastest lap on his BSA, as the podium was well contested.

David Jones put his new outfit to good use, this time with Tim Leighton in the chair, to win the Combined Sidecars Cup.

The Jones sidecar is certainly one of the more striking seen at McNamara Park and with any bugs ironed out, should prove competitive for the Nelson rider.

CLOSE QUARTERS: John Snoad and Darren Trotter go head-to-head through a corner at McNamara Park.

TENTATIVE STEPS: David Overmeyer remains focused as he leads a group of riders through a bend at McNamara Park on the weekend.

LATE RUN: Rusty Crane took the lead late in the 45+ Cup race for the win.

OUT IN FRONT: It was a lonely ride for Martin Greenwood out in front in the 45+ Lightweight Cup at McNamara Park on the weekend.

STRONG RIDE: Mike Engberg leads the 100+ Lightweight Cup at McNamara Park on the weekend.

Archers' soggy Sunday success

A SHORTENED archery event was added to the Blue Lake Archers outdoor archery schedule for Sunday's Mothers day event.

A 60-arrow round created by the club was picked as the round of the day to allow for a later than normal start, which allowed for Mothers Day lunches to be completed.

The round chosen was intended to be run in dubious weather conditions, but in this case meant a quick day on the range for the three archers that were available to compete.

A full round of the oddly titled Soggy Sunday round requires only 60 arrows at a range of 50 metres on the larger 122cm target face.

Given the less than ideal conditions, surprisingly good scores were recorded for the afternoon.

Two of the three archers were even able to break their handicap rating ceiling.

Ben Kilsby led the off-the-bow results throughout the afternoon which included three perfect 60-point ends.

Graham Lock was Kilsby's foil for the afternoon.

Although unable match Kilsby's pace, Lock was in contention in adjusted scores while also keeping Paul Freeman at bay.

SHORT ROUND: Paul Freeman checks the progress in the online scoring app while Ben Kilsby clears the target face of arrows after scoring during Sunday's Mothers Day event.

Lock also picked up a perfect 60-point end, his first on the outdoor range for some time. The day quickly concluded with Lock and Kilsby finding they had tied in the adjusted scores, both on 604 points.

Kilsby was awarded the win in the count-back of superior 10-point scoring arrows, with Freeman third, just 10 points off the leading pair.

Indoor archery continues at Blue Lake Gymnastics Club, Malseed Park Friday at 7.30pm followed by outdoor archery at Corriedale Park 12.30pm Sunday.

Soggy Sunday outdoor round, handicap scored, benchmark 600 points: Ben Kilsby 604 (off the bow 584); Graham Lock 604 (557); Paul Freeman 594 (542).

THE Mount Gambier Cycling Club hosted the Mother's Day 25km Handicap race on the weekend, with 12 riders competing along the Caves Road course.

With the wind from the north-west, the riders enjoyed a tailwind start, before battling the headwind on the return leg.

The first rider to greet the starter was Louise Abraham, who was given 16-minute head start to make as much distance before the next group of Jami Buckley, Spek Peake and Mike Bakker were sent off.

A further two minutes later the group of Phil Stasiw, Dean Zeven, John Cranwell and Bruce McLaughlin left the start line.

The final four riders are deep in their preparations to tackle the 100 Mile Classic this weekend, with Rob Mann, Dave Bryant and Matthew Opperman starting their chase with more than 21 minutes on the clock, with Nick Kidman forced to wait a further 90 seconds.

The tailwind ride out can be tough for Junior riders who have limited gearing, but Buckley held onto his group well to the turn.

The groups worked well together to eat into the time of those ahead.

The ride back into the wind was difficult for the riders on their own and the importance of cohesive groups working together came to the fore.

The middle groups came together with approximately eighth kilometres to go, before being caught by Bryant and Opperman at the five kilometre marker.

Some riders tried to jump onto the back of the stronger riders, but were unable to hold the draft.

Abraham was finally caught with the finish line almost in sight, as Bryant won the sprint finish over Opperman to be first and fastest.

Abraham held on to finish in third position, before the larger group finished.

There will be no club racing this weekend, with members assisting with the running of the 100 Mile Classic and SA Kermesse Championships.

Tight contests at Millicent

ROUND 10 of Millicent squash threw up some entertaining clashes.

The Division 1 match of the night played out between Bruce Kennewell and Steve Gray.

Kennewell took the first game 15-10, but Gray fought back to take the second 15-10.

The third game was a tight battle, with Kennewell prevailing in the end 15-13, while Gray again fought back in the fourth to take it 15-11.

The fifth and deciding game was again a tight contest, with Kennewell prevailing 15-12.

As expected, the final points showed the closeness of the contest, Kennewell with 66 and Gray 65.

In Division 2 Paul Whitford and Fiona Oliver provided an entertaining clash.

The last time the two played Oliver took the chocolates winning 3-0.

This time Whitford took the first game 15-11, then backed up with the second 15-10.

Oliver dug deep and took the third 15-13 but could not keep the momentum going in the fourth game, Whitford winning it 15-4.

The final point scores for the match saw Whitford with 58 and Oliver 40.

More thrills: Double header at SEAC Park

A BUSY weekend is scheduled for SEAC Park this weekend, with a Rally Cross to take place on Saturday, starting at 1pm, followed by the second round of the 2021 Super Series Autocross starting about 9.15am on Sunday.

Rally Cross is a different event to what SEAC Park normally runs.

A series of time trials takes place, with each competitor recording their best time for grouping of drivers in similar lap times, regardless of vehicle types.

Heats are then run for each grouping, depending on numbers of competitors, with the pole position rotated through the group and after a rolling start, awarded points for finishing positions.

Providing a good race surface, SEAC Park will benefit from this week's rain to reduce the dust raised by four to six cars on track at the same time.

Returning to a more normal type of competition on Sunday with the Autocross, all competitors will run solo on the track, against the clock on each run, with the tally of time and penalties at the end of the day's competition sorting the serious runners from those just out for a skid.

Spectators are welcome either day and can view the action from the road side on Megaw Road or head into the complex, look through the pit area and watch competition from either of the purpose-built viewing mounds.

Normal COVID awareness is to be observed and catering should be available on site on Sunday.

EAST GAMBIER 58 d MILLICENT 46

IT was only a matter of time before Millicent's stunning undefeated run ended, which happened at the hands of East Gambier in Round 5 of Western Border netball.

The rampaging Bulldogs started the match favourites against the reigning premiers - results in the first four rounds and the new look for the defending champions shaping that view.

Not since round 14, 2018 when West Gambier secured a 10-goal victory had the Saints suffered a loss and the weekend's highly anticipated clash was always going to be a classic.

The battle of the top two did not disappoint, with Millicent holding a two-goal lead at quarter time before East worked its way to a two-goal half time buffer.

That lead was extended in a hard fought third term and sat at seven before the final quarter where East conjured significantly more scoring shots to take the premiership points with a 12-goal final margin.

Millicent came into the match with a plan for the star studded East line-up but four minutes in those plans had to be revamped when goal shooter Tabatha Sanderson dislocated a finger.

That shook up the Saints lineup, with Lucy Denton to goal shooter, Portia McRae onto the goal keeper role, Hannah Nitschke out to goal defence, Kimmi Tincknell to the defensive wing and Lisa Duldig back to centre.

Denton was impressive in goal shooter for the Saints and she scored 25 from 27 in the final three quarters and showed composure in the heat of battle.

But East was able to create more scoring opportunities.

With Emily Hunter controlling the mid-court and Tyne Bosko getting some important touches at wing defence, the Bulldogs kept building their lead.

The accurate finishing of Amryn Bosko and Tenille Gray was also a factor, especially in the third quarter where their 17 from 17 helped turn the match in the home side's favour.

The impressive victory from the Bulldogs now sets them up much as the hunted, the new benchmark of the competition.

WEST GAMBIER 66 d NORTH GAMBIER 58

ANOTHER clash which was expected to be tight, delivered, as both North Gambier and West Gambier look to develop new look line-ups and have already suffered from the inconsistency that can bring.

The first three quarters were the goal-for-goal battle anticipated as the tall timber at either end - Tigers' shooter Caroline Davey and West shooter Sarah Ritter - were strong targets and accurate finishers, ensuring almost every scoring opportunity ended up on the scoreboard.

Davey was coming off a 100pc shooting performance against Millicent and converted 39 from 44, including no misses in the second half.

While she was clearly the Tigers' best, young defender Jade Ritter never gave up the fight and was one of the Roos most impressive performers.

At the other end, Sarah Ritter showed why she is considered high-end talent in the halls of power at Netball SA, netting 46 from 49 in a best-on-court performance.

North led by one at the first break, before West put the foot down to take a three-goal lead into the half.

By three quarter time the stage was set for an epic finish with the scores tied at 50 apiece, built on the back of some critical turnover ball from the North defence and a 100pc shooting performance from Davey and Ellen Brown, who netted 20 from 20 to bring North back into the contest.

No one could have predicted how the final quarter would pan out.

Jade Ritter got some critical touches, restricting potential match winner Davey to four attempts and along with Amy Cram created enough turnover ball to give West the edge in supply as Tara Bryant, Carlee Ransom and Lisa McGregor were precise with ball in hand, showing patience until they could find Sarah Ritter in space.

It saw West dominate the scoreboard to take the quarter 16-8 and secure the win.

SOUTH GAMBIER 64 d CASTERTON SANDFORD 34

IT was just not the Cats' day as they hosted South Gambier in a match where both sides were gunning for a breakthrough victory in 2021.

The opening quarter was tight as the defenders from both teams made finding the goalers in space a difficult task and in the end it was the weight of supply that saw South enjoy a four-goal quarter time lead.

South had 25 scoring shots to 14, with the height of shooter Grace Edwards coming into play as she dominated the rebounding duels and earned the chance for second and third opportunities to score.

The second quarter was also tight as Cats defender Caeleigh Humphries started to win some important ball and Scarlett Jarrad's strong driving saw Casterton Sandford continue to match it with the Demons.

The defensive pressure of Renee Pluckhahn, Brandi Bouchier and Ellie Bouchier was able to again restrict the scoring opportunities and were it not for the accuracy of Paige Murrell in the opening half, netting 17 from 19, the Cats might have trailed by more.

The Demons were again finding plenty of avenues to goal thanks to the strong driving of Imogen Walker and Alyssa Duncan who hit the circle hard and fed Lara Munro and Edwards with precision.

By half time the difference was just seven goals.

The stage was set for an epic second half with both teams swinging the changes in a bid to gain the edge.

Cats coach Tori Broomby moved into goals alongside Murrell, while Humphries and Foster swapped defensive roles and Madison Mutch moved to the attacking wing.

For the Demons, Olivia Patzel entered the game at centre and Hannah Witherow took the defensive wing.

The Cats got the better of the start in the second half but then Humphries fell awkwardly, injuring her wrist and was forced from the court.

No sooner had Humphries departed than Murrell, who was clearly impeded by a back issue, struggled to three quarter time but then also had to vacate.

It was clearly unsettling for the home side but the shining light was the debut of Ebany Jarrad who took the goal keeper bib in the last quarter.

While Edwards still secured plenty of scoring opportunities, Jarrad took some rebounds, got some important touches and took a handful of clean interceptions in a debut that will comfort the Cats.

The margin was 19 at the last change and 30 at the end, with a lack of accuracy in the final quarter from the Cats seeing the score blow out arguably beyond what the general play suggested.

MATT BEGGS

JUST two teams remain undefeated after four rounds in the 2021 Kowree Naracoorte Tatiara Football League season.

Kingston and Keith kept their unbeaten starts to the season going after both had comfortable wins on the weekend.

BORDERTOWN 17.11 (113) d

LUCINDALE 13.7 (85)

BORDERTOWN recorded its first win of the season after defeating Lucindale by 28 points.

The Roosters held The Roos at arm's length for most of the game, led by Curtis McCarthy with four goals, plus Joshua Searle and Thomas Whittlesea with three each.

Billy Hayes, McCarthy and Whittlesea were the better players.

Scott Spriggs kicked three goals for the Roos, while Henry Tregoweth, Sam Mardling and Spriggs were named in Lucindale's best.

MUNDULLA 23.19 (157) d

BORDER DISTRICTS 4.3 (27)

MUNDULLA produced a dominant performance to claim the victory over Border Districts.

Mundulla came off a loss to Kingston and bounced back in style with a 130-point win.

James Hinge kicked seven goals in the victory, while Harry Dowling helped contributed three.

Jake McGrice, Hinge and Lachlan Duell were named best.

Brayden Denmead kicked three goals out of the four Eagles' goals, while Rodney Oliver, Mitchell Coles and Mark Quinn were named in the best.

KINGSTON 13.20 (98) d

KYBYBOLITE 6.11 (47)

KINGSTON pulled away from Kybybolite in the second half to record its fourth win from four games and a perfect start to start the season.

The Saints had an even list of goal contributors with Brett Simpson, James Siviour, Ben Warner and Brock Kennedy all kicking two each.

Ben Warner, Liam Toohey and Chad Wood were Kingston's best.

Kyby had all single goal kickers, with Calum Masters, Dylan Brodie and Jack McKay standouts.

KEITH 15.15 (105) d

NARACOORTE 6.8 (44)

KEITH hit its straps in the second half to record a 61-point victory over Naracoorte and keep its perfect start going.

Ben Simounds kicked seven goals to take his season tally to 27 after just four games, equal top in the standings.

Jeremy Lush and Aydon Inness added three goals each, while William McMurray, George Thring and Jack Jones were the Crows' best.

Rory Taggart kicked three goals for Naracoorte, while Dylan Albrecht, Adam Searle and Jamie Bettoncelli were the better players for the Demons.

PADTHAWAY 13.14 (92) d

PENOLA 8.8 (56)

IT was a tight contest between Padthaway and Penola up to the main break, before the Lions were able to break away in the third quarter to record a 36-point victory.

Tobin Cox has been outstanding early in the season and added nine goals to take his season's tally to 27 - now equal in the season standings with Keith's Ben Simounds - while Jake Vandermeer added three.

Cox was rightly named best player, along with Jason McCarthy and Matthew Raitt.

Luke Walker was the only multiple goal kicker for Penola with two, while Scott Merritt, Bradley Bryant and Simon Zadow were named best.

Bordertown hosts Naracoorte this week in what should be a close encounter.

Both are in good form and will be confident heading into the match.

The match of the round will be at Keith when the Crows host Padthaway.

The league-leading goal kickers in Simounds and Cox will look to put on a show at both ends of the ground, worth the admission price alone.

Kybybolite hosts Border Districts and could be a chance to break the drought this season.

Mundulla will look to continue its winning form when it hosts Lucindale, while Penola faces a tough test, up against the red-hot Kingston.

At home the Eagles will throw everything at the contest, but will struggle to knock off the ladder leaders.

PORT MACDONNELL 24.18 (162) d TANTANOOLA 6.7 (43)

IT was a goal-fest down at the Bay when Port MacDonnell handed Tantanoola a football lesson in Round 5 of the Bendigo Bank Mid South Eastern Football League season.

Not content with five goals in each of the first two terms, while holding the tigers to just four for the half, the Demons ran rampant after the long break and banged on another 14 majors.

Dylan Bromley and Daron McElroy were in ominous form up forward, with six and four goals respectively.

Brandon Newton, Malcolm Lewis and Kevin Thomson added three each, while Matthew Stark contributed a further two.

Tantanoola struggled to move the ball forward, with the Demons' defensive efforts thwarting many opportunities to score.

Only Jack Dawe kicked multiple goals, with just two to his name.

The result suggests plenty of versatility up forward for the Demons, with three spearheads in Thomson, Bromley and McElroy able to inflict plenty of damage.

The likes of Mark Smith, Ned Wilke and Tim Sullivan move the ball well up the ground to provide those scoring opportunities, which was front and centre in the result.

Tantanoola had few answers for the Demons' pace out of the defensive zone and up the ground, with the final score testament to the class down at the Bay.

KALANGADOO 27.18 (180) d NANGWARRY 6.1 (37)

AN expected result came over at Kalangadoo as the Magpies made short work of Nangwarry.

Nine Magpies put their hands up to score, with Michael Krieger topping the list with nine majors.

The Saints simply had no answer, especially in the first half with a 96-0 scoreline at the long break.

Rookie coach Luke Thomson must have delivered some stern words to his charges at the break, with the Saints able to find six major scores in the final half.

Five of those came in the third term, but the Magpies added eight of their own to keep the momentum flowing, with another five in the final stanza to finish the game off.

Lachy Jones and Ty McManus added four each for Kalangadoo.

Nangwarry's six goals were shared equally by Thomson, Jake McKeon and Thomas Vanderhorst.

HATHERLEIGH 17.21 (123) d GLENCOE 3.6 (24)

HATHERLEIGH kept the big-win theme going on Saturday with a demoralising victory over Glencoe.

The Murphies were down on their luck, with Zacc Cocks and Clayton Von Duve out injured - Cocks possibly looking at the remainder of the season - while Matt Scanlon succumbed to an injury during the warm up in his debut for the club.

The Eagles made a steady start, with five goals in the first term to a solitary major from Glencoe.

Hatherleigh added another three majors in the second term, then banged on nine after the long break to run the game out.

The 17 goals were shared between 10 players, with Max Telfer and Joe Ferguson-Lane top of the list with three each.

Jake Wight added two to his season coffers to lead the goal kicking with 25 majors, just one ahead of Kongorong's Cameron Sandercock.

ROBE 11.19 (85) d KONGORONG 8.9 (57)

THE result was somewhat closer over at Kongorong, but the home side still succumbed to a strong Robe roster.

Inaccuracy in front of goals probably flattered the Hawks, as the Roosters had the weight of possession up forward.

There were no big bags of goals in this one, but Riley Dickinson kicked four, while Zac Deane contributed three.

With Robe sitting top of the ladder and Kongorong down the order in fifth place prior to Saturday's game, the result was expected.

The Hawks dropped a position after Port MacDonnell's big win, as the Demons leapfrogged Kongorong and Glencoe to move up to fourth place.

Teams settle into season

KALANGADOO 63 d NANGWARRY 17

A STRONG four-quarter effort handed Kalangadoo a dominant victory over Nangwarry in Round 5 of Mid South East netball on Saturday.

The Magpies started with the strong defensive combination of Mikalia Pitt and Chelsea Croser, who were relentless in the circle and helped the side to a 15-6 quarter-time lead.

The dominance continued in the second term, despite Ebony Lawson and Hayley Burner moving the ball well for the Saints.

By the main break Kalangadoo had stamped its authority on the game, with a 33-9 scoreline.

Nangwarry struggled to find space in the circle and the Magpies were relentless as the game wound down, to run out convincing victors.

Jane Auld and Pitt were named best for the Magpies, with Hayley Vanderhorst and Lawson best for Nangwarry.

HATHERLEIGH 48 d GLENCOE 38

DESPITE 10-goal win to Hatherleigh, the Eagles were made to work hard for the full four quarters against a determined Glencoe.

The first quarter saw turnovers by both sides, with Glencoe's Sarah Edwards and Emily Thompson combining well and able to get hands to many rebounds, while Hatherleigh's Maddie Pulmer took a while to settle into the goal circle, missing a few early opportunities, but the Eagles went to the first break with a slim one-goal lead.

The second quarter saw Hatherleigh step up its defence and that, combined with some wayward passing by the Murphies, made it hard for the Glencoe goalies to find many opportunities.

At the other end of the court Lacey Haines made the most of her opportunities, with nine goals for the quarter to stretch the margin to seven at half time.

Hatherleigh's mid-court in Tegan Merrett, Sarah Faulkner and Lara McGregor showed good ball movement down the court, before Faulkner left the game injured.

While Glencoe's Rebecca Edwards had made her opponent work hard all day, she stepped it up a notch in the third term, with many deflections that unfortunately were not able to be converted.

Hatherleigh stretched its lead further by the final break, with Glencoe then in catch-up mode.

ROBE 57 d KONGORONG 31

Robe showed its strength from the outset against Kongorong, with an 11-goal lead at the first break to stamp their authority on the contest.

The second quarter saw Kongorong's Sarah Beare return to centre, while Robe swapped its circle defenders.

Although it was a more even contest on the court, Robe extended the lead to 15 goals at half time.

After the main break Robe introduced Maisie Hayes to the defence circle, while Kongorong started the quarter with more determination which generated some impressive passages of play and scoring opportunities, but the Roosters extended the lead by a further three goals.

By the final term Robe had a strong hold on the contest and ran out comfortable victor.

Kongorong's Sam Fox and Emily Lightbody were named best, while Georgia Perkins and Asha Pettit were given the nod for Robe.

TANTANOOLA 70 d PORT MACDONNELL 37

Tantanoola was relentless in its quest for victory despite the trip down to the Bay.

The visitors started strong, feeding the ball well into Emma Gould who shot 15 of the 19 goals scored.

Gould continued her precise shooting, moving and holding throughout the game to make it a tough job for the Demons' defenders Lisa McGregor and Morgan Amy.

While slow to start, Port MacDonnell lifted in the second quarter but still not enough, with Tantanoola's accurate shooting and strong rebounds by Emma and Jami Walker dominated the contest.

Tantanoola was too strong in the last quarter, with an 18-7 term to finish the game in style.

Brown reaches major milestone: 200 games

TANTANOOLA Football Club stalwart Hayden Brown will reach a major milestone this weekend when he runs out for his 200th A Grade game for the Tigers.

Brown started his football journey for Tantanoola at an early age in the junior colts and it was not long before his natural talent was on show, with best and fairest awards in the junior and senior colts, along with runner-up in both grades.

In 2006 he played his first A Grade game and went on to play in the Tigers' first premiership in 20 years under coach Adam Walden.

Brown was captain of the Under 17 inter-league side and was runnerup in the league best and fairest that year, while in 2009 he captained the Mid South East Under 19 inter-league side. He has been captain numerous times for the Tigers A Grade side and leads by example, with his relentless attack on the ball.

His work off the field is something the club is grateful for and he has coached both junior and senior colts sides, been the assistant

MILLICENT 13.14 (92) d EAST GAMBIER 11.8 (74)

MILLICENT continued its impressive run in the 2021 Bendigo Bank Western Border Football League season, with an 18-point victory over East Gambier on the weekend.

The Round 5 clash showed the Saints' improvement since the pre-COVID season, where the side failed to win a game.

This season the Saints sit on equal points with North Gambier and East, down in fourth on the ladder with three wins from five outings.

Saturday it was all about a strong start and a sustained effort, which saw Millicent lead at every change.

On the back of a 12-point lead at the long break, the Saints kicked on and slammed home six major scores in the third quarter to control the contest, with a 42-point advantage heading into the final stanza.

The Bulldogs did fight back, with five last-quarter goals to just one, but the damage had been done and the Saints rejoiced.

Much of it came on the back of seven goals to 2021 recruits Gene Robinson and Jacob Carger.

Robinson, who was in line to play in 2020 - but for the COVID pandemic - kicked four of those, while Carger slotted home three and Sam Willis added two.

In contrast, Todd Lockwood, Mark Rumbelow and Giancarlo Cooper kicked two each for East.

For Saints' coach Clint Gallio it was a welcome result which suggests his side is on track in what he describes as a competitive season.

"I think the competition is really tight this year," he said.

"I think on any day any team can win.

"The start of the season has been really challenging - coming into the season before you play everyone it is an unknown.

"But once you have played everyone you get a bit of a feel for it.

"I think we have done enough and improved week to week to be competitive, which is pleasing."

Robinson currently leads the league goal kicking with 27 majors.

SOLID START: Millicent Football Club A Grade coach Clint Gallio (pictured) is pleased with his side's start to the 2021 Bendigo Bank Western Border Football League season. Picture: FRANK MONGER

Once again his inclusion this season was somewhat of an unknown after not having the chance to pull the boots on last year due to the coronavirus pandemic.

However, Gallio is pleased with his performance so far.

"He has been great," he said.

"He is obviously a quality player, has kicked a lot of goals in some good leagues and provides a great target for us.

"He has great knowledge, so with our young side and the blokes moving and rolling through our forward line, he has been great for their footy too.

"He has kicked a couple of good bags and is vital to helping our team and our kids improve."

Gallio said it was hard to rate Robinson's possible input prior to this season, despite his involvement at training.

"When you are just training you can see he is fit, can catch the footy and looks after his body," he said.

"You get glimpses at training and he probably has a lot of pressure on him because he has kicked a lot of goals.

"But seeing him play now is quite impressive, he is a smart footballer and obviously his goal kicking ability is up there with some of the best.

"You can see his effort and work rate on the track, which he carries into the game."

Tom Renzi is another player who Gallio said had slotted into the side well, with his work as assistant coach valuable to the Saints' efforts.

Club stalwart Steve Duldig has also popped up in a couple of A Grade matches, which Gallio said may be the case throughout the season.

It adds up to a good mix of youth and experience which seems to be working for the Saints so far.

"We have enough experience to help our young blokes along and I think the way we train from week to week sets us up for Saturday," Gallio said.

"Everyone knows their role and how we want to move the footy and we have blokes who can play multiple roles, which is real valuable."

The Saints face South Gambier again this week and the Round 1 loss to the current benchmark of the league does not appear to bother Gallio.

"We have played them once and have reviewed that game," he said.

"We have a couple of things we thought they did well and we will try to minimise that.

"We have a couple of things we thought we didn't do so well, so we will try to improve on that this weekend.

"Going to South, it is a lot bigger oval which throws another spanner in the works, but we will look to control what we can control and give ourselves every opportunity to take it to them."

Roos and Cats up against it

trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

NORTH GAMBIER 15.11 (101) d WEST GAMBIER 12.8 (80)

IN a game of mixed fortunes, North Gambier pulled out all stops in the final quarter to claim a come-from-behind victory over West Gambier in Round 5 of the Bendigo Bank Western Border Football League.

The lead fluctuated throughout the day at Vansittart Park, with the Roos coming out hard to take a handy 15-point lead at the first break.

The Tigers appeared a bit out of sorts on home soil, but rectified the situation in the second term to take the lead by one point.

The Roos bounced back in the third quarter and again the lead changed, this time with the visitors opening a 17-point advantage which could have been enough.

However, the home side found something extra in the final stanza to bang on six major scores while holding West goal-less to run out emphatic victors to the tune of 21 points.

Coach Justin McConnell and tall forward Sam Stafford combined for nine of the Tigers' 15 majors.

Austin Kitchke also added multiple goals

Garret Ha was a strong focal point for West with three majors, while Todd Lewis, Lawry Bradley-Brown and Michael Minuzzo added two each.

SOUTH GAMBIER 20.13 (133) d CASTERTON SANDFORD 5.3 (33)

IT was a fruitful trip across the border for South Gambier, which resulted in a big win over Casterton Sandford down at Island Park.

Apart from the opening term, where the Demons held the lead by just four points, the Cats were outgunned, with few options to chip away at the deficit.

Seven second-quarter goals to the Demons all-but put the game to bed, with a massive 49-point lead at the long break.

The third term saw both sides kick two major scores, but in the final stanza the Demons ramp rampant, with eight goals to the Cats' one.

While South would miss the injured Brodie Foster up forward, such is the firepower it made little difference.

Coach Brayden Kain stepped up and headed the list this week with seven goals, Jake Tentye added four, Brent Howard three and Colby Munro two.

For the Cats, only Ricky Killey kicked multiples, with three to his name.

THE Castec Rural Pioneers men climbed up to third place on the NBL1 South conference ladder with two road victories on the weekend.

The men battled hard for a 97-91 victory over Dandenong Rangers on Saturday night, before backing up with a stinging 123-95 win over the Melbourne Tigers on Sunday.

The weekend heralded a return to form for Titus Robinson in his second and third games for the club after spending a couple of weeks quarantining in Adelaide.

He joined the Pioneers last home game for a short stint, but the weekend saw more court time and higher returns as a result.

Saturday night Robinson found his range and contributed 21 points in 24 minutes of court time, while Sunday he added 15 from 15 minutes.

It was also a big weekend for Nick Marshall, who has shown some good touch in recent weeks.

Saturday he offered 19 points at 50pc from the field and beyond the arc, but Sunday he hit his straps, with a breakout 32-point game.

He upped his percentages from the field and hit those points in 26 minutes of court time.

Saturday night saw the Pioneers trail Dandenong by six points at the final break, only winning the third term and by just three.

A strong 28-16 final term turned those fortunes around as the visitors worked hard down the stretch to secure the win.

Dawam topped the score sheets with 27 points, to join Robinson and Marshall in double figures.

With such a strong performance against the Tigers, as expected several Pioneers reached double figures.

In fact six players - including Marshall and Robinson - achieved that milestone, with FINDING FORM: Tom Kubank has found form in the NBL1 competition, with a 20-point game on the weekend a personal highlight of the double-header road trip.

Dawam contributing 20 points and 11 rebounds to continue his impressive debut season.

Tom Kubank was also impressive, with 20 points to his name, while Kyle Tipene (17) and Tom Daly (11) joined the list.

The Pioneers set the win up with three solid quarters to run out to a huge 40-point lead at the final break.

The final term saw the visitors outscored by 12 points, but there was no coming back for the Tigers, who also had six players in double figures.

The Pioneers host the Knox Raiders on Saturday night at the Icehouse.

The Raiders sit 10 positions below Mount Gambier on the ladder with two wins and two losses for the season.

Tough road trip for Pioneers women

TREVOR JACKSON

trevor.jackson@tbwtoday.com.au

IT was a tough road trip for the One Forty One Pioneers on the weekend, with two losses in Round 4 of the NBL1 South women's basketball conference.

The Pioneers faced Dandenong Rangers on Saturday night and suffered a heart-breaking overtime loss by just four points.

From there they were dealt a big defeat at the hands of the Melbourne Tigers, going down by 42 points.

The Pioneers were out of the blocks early on Saturday night, with a 22-point first term for a nine-point advantage.

Dandenong closed that margin in the second quarter, but by just two points.

A big third term from the home side saw scores tied up at the last break, with both teams hitting 19 points in a frantic final stanza to send the game into extra time.

Unfortunately the Pioneers could only muster six points to go down 88-84.

The result was certainly not from a lack of effort, as Jasmin Howe finished with a game-high 35 points.

Howe spent the full 45 minutes on the floor and shot at 61.9pc from the field, including 55.6pc from three-point territory.

Sherrie Calleia contributed 20, while Hannah Young also reached double figures with 14.

Sunday was a complete turnaround, as the Tigers were simply too strong.

However, an even first term gave the Pioneers some hope of another tight contest, as they trailed by just one point.

From there the Tigers began to find their groove and built the lead methodically each term.

A 28-17 point second term, followed by 33-15 in the third put the game beyond doubt.

The Tigers pushed on in the final stanza and the Pioneers were simply not in the contest.

Again Howe was in good form, with 20 points to her name, while Shakera Reilly (11) and Young (10) also reached double figures.

Young also pulled down 12 rebounds.

Melbourne currently sits fourth on the ladder, while the Pioneers are yet to record a win and sit down in 15th.

The Pioneers host the Knox Raiders on Saturday night at the Icehouse, with another tough hitout expected.

The Raiders are currently undefeated after four games and third on the ladder.

SHARP SHOOTER: Pioneer gun Jasmin Howe was in top form on Saturday night against the Dandenong Rangers, with a 35-point game in the overtime loss.

It is a huge drawcard for the race, which is possibly the richest in the southern hemisphere, with around $14,000 up for grabs over the two days.

That includes a $2000 cheque for the 100 Mile Classic winner, along with a further $900 for the fastest time.

The event is hosted by the Mount Gambier Cycling Club, with president Dean Zeven excited about this year's race.

"It is so important for the club to run the race," he said.

"It is a big honour and such a big event, which attracts riders from all over Australia.

"For our local club riders to show they can do it and often finish strongly is a huge achievement."

Zeven said countless hours go into the preparation for such an event, with police presence required, road closures for Sunday and the usual approvals, which he said are becoming more difficult to acquire.

While much work goes into the event, Zeven was clearly pleased to be involved.

"There are not many handicap events over this distance and not with this prize money," he said.

"It is probably the richest handicap race in the southern hemisphere.

"There are some great viewing areas on Saturday, with the start on White Avenue and registration at the BMX club the perfect spot to see the riders congregate before the start.

"The sprints at Millicent and the climb up Range Hill are also good spots."

The first riders will leave from White Avenue, near Millard Street at 10am, with the following groups released at predetermined times.

The riders proceed along White Avenue and Benara Road, turning on to the Kongorong-Tantanoola Road to Millicent.

At Millicent the riders turn at Short Street for a sprint and return along Millicent Road to Glencoe via Mile Hill Road, then along the Kangaroo Flat Road to Millicent Road.

Once back in Mount Gambier they head along Jubilee Highway West, down to Tollner Road, along White Avenue and Grant Avenue where another feeding station also provides good viewing.

Riders continue down Bay Road to Port MacDonnell and then turn for the return to Mount Gambier.

After having close to 160km in their legs, the riders then tackle the fast downhill section of Bay Road to the finish line, which is always exciting.

Sunday's kermesse simply adds to the weekend, with some of the top riders again competing for the state championship honours.

The races run over a predetermined time, plus laps to decide the champion, which kick off at 8am for the junior riders.

The elite men will race for 75 minutes around the Blue Lake, plus two further laps, while the women cover 50 minutes plus two laps for their Open championship.

"The South Australian champion gets crowned, but Victorian and NSW riders compete as well," Zeven said.

"It is a real test of stamina and strength to go flat out for around 90 minutes on such a picturesque course.

CYCLISTS will take pride of place on the roads around the Limestone Coast this weekend as they contest the Lush Desserts 100 Mile Classic on Saturday, followed by the Bendigo Bank Open State Kermesse on Sunday.

For the female riders, a 110km course will run on Saturday, set to finish just prior to the men's event down Bay Road in front of the police station, with an Open kermesse championship on Sunday.

The time-honoured 100 Mile Clas-

After a break last year due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the event is back bigger and better, with some high-quality riders nominated.

That includes none other than the Australian Tokyo Olympic Games men's and women's track teams, who will use the event to hone their skills, with coach Tim Decker joining them.
